

The Sunday Eight o'Clock

By Bruce J. Giffen
University Pastor

Text: "Behold your God." Isaiah 40:9. The prophet was a seer: his was the vision and faculty divine; he was as well a preacher to his own day. And the soul of his message was that he was a herald of God. The character of God was his only stronghold. "Say, to the cities of Judah, behold your God!"

Is not this the complete and all-sufficient word for each generation? Goodness is godliness. The root fact of moral character is, that we think of God and seek to please him and grieve over what displeases him. What is to come to a generation that "has not God in all its thoughts?" Must He not be to us a God above us, as well as a God within and around us? It is not enough to feel the mystic presence that broods in the lonely places of the world, or to find in flower and earthworm an exquisite and unfathomable mystery, or even in the purposes and progress of humanity to find "the God of things as they are." This is a subtle and captivating doctrine. But it is not enough. If we completely identify the Almighty with his world, are we not in danger of being traitors to tomorrow? We shall cease to have a God who is a person, one to whom his children can speak. In the deepest experiences of life, one's "soul thirsteth for the living God." Says George Morrison, "You seem to bring God within my very grasp, if you say His life is in the violet, and His presence interwoven with the light of setting suns, but if that be all, things, whatever their essence, can never enter through the portals of the heart." You can admire the wonders of creation, but you cannot cry to it, "Father, I have sinned." Slip the anchor of a personal God, sovereign and transcendent, and you slip the anchor of accountability.

You may reply, I have conscience left. But conscience is not simple. It needs to be trained. Nurtured through ages in the belief in a God above, it may respond for a time to the calling of a faith that is now disowned. But the day will come when conscience will fail, if it is not fed. And, instead of heeding the imperatives of right and duty, we shall be mouthing such phrases as, "The vanquished party always deserves to be vanquished."

"Behold your God. He sits above the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers. He measures the oceans in the hollow of his hand, and stretches out the heavens as a curtain. He gathers the lambs in his arms."

low tone, rich and powerful. Only the finest wood was used; and the varnish was a rich dark red of highest quality.

In those days, secrets of varnish making and formulas were most jealously guarded, and extreme care was taken in its preparation. It is for that reason that, in the setting of the years, these violins have become more and more rich and mellow. And Maud Powell's Guadagnini was made in those olden times, when violin making was an art and not commercialism; when violins were made with loving care to last through centuries.

Thus the Chemet concert will be of interest not only because of the artist and the woman, but also because of the precious violin, and the wealth of romance it calls to mind.

only a question of the score. The locals ran up a score of 25 to 9 in the first half and allowed their opponents only three field baskets. The team showed greatly the effect of the loss of Shafer, who had been an ever consistent aid both on the offense and defense. Rockney filled in at guard and tried hard, but could not work into the teamwork as well as reliable "Jake." King substituted for Hobson and played good ball while he was in. He will probably be needed a great deal from now on as Oregon has a very strenuous schedule ahead.

The lineup and scores were:
Oregon 41 Whitman 15
Gowans 6 Fry 7
Hobson 8 Fry 0
Latham 24 Yenney 4
Gillenwaters 1 G. 2
Rockney 2 G. 0
Substitutions: Oregon: King for Hobson, Jost for Rockney; Whitman, Garret, 2, for Douglas.
Referee: Coleman, O. A. C.

Wilson Coaches Football Team

Woodrow Wilson at one stage of his career was a football coach. While he was professor of history and political economy at Wesleyan university, he served as football mentor, and in the years from 1888 to 1890 turned out two of the most successful teams the college has ever had.

He invented a new system of offensive plays which revolutionized coaching methods of the time. These were subsequently adopted by every team in the country.

One of the most interesting stories told of Wilson was the one about his saving his team from defeat by Lehigh in 1899. The Wesleyan defense was battered to pieces; disastrous defeat was threatened. Suddenly Wilson appeared in the grandstand and exhorted the despondent rooters to give a real cheer. The team responded, and tied the score as the last whistle blew.

Inter-Fraternity Athletics Abolished
Inter-fraternity athletics have been abolished at the University of Montana. All cups and trophies have been scrapped. It is hoped that this will abolish some of the bitter feelings which exist among the fraternities.

The Great KANSHI RAM
HINDU MAGICIAN AND

Not here, but in Lebanon, Tennessee. The above are the first few lines of a bill announcing an entertainment by a former Oregon student who is now attending Cumberland university in that city. Mr. Ram, who comes from India, was a student here last year, majoring in the school of journalism.

In a letter recently received on the campus he explains the entertainments this way: "Since I came from the Land of Mystery and Charm I did not know if there is anything in me that would sustain and uphold the reputation of my Motherland. Only recently I thought of getting a few magical articles and trying here in the South. On the first of February I gave a magical performance and mind reading act before the university and city folks.

"I don't know what words to use but I do say that the show was a great success. My performance was the talk of the city people, students and the country people; the local papers wrote long articles on what a wonderful performance I gave. "The theatre managers have" encouraged me to go on a magic circuit during the summer vacations. The southern states are asking me to come down south while the New England states have asked me to come up north. The chances are that I might go to the New England states because these states are thickly populated and secondly there are lots of summer resorts up there. "Sometime in the future I may plan to come to Oregon on a magic circuit as I am longing for Oregon and my Oregon friends. "I wish I had known I could play magic so dexterously while I was in Oregon and thus entertained my friends, but there perhaps the stimulus was lacking and the object of the hidden force was not set in motion."
