

GOLF PROSPECTS LOOK PROMISING

Oregon Will Enter Team in Title Tournament

EXPERIENCED MEN OUT

Practices Held on Varsity
Three-hole Course

The University of Oregon will enter a golf team in the Pacific Coast championship tournament, which will be held in May, probably in Seattle, according to George E. Bronaugh, who is in charge of the sport here. Several golfers have already signed up, and more are expected to join as soon as the organization is completed.

An elimination tournament, to determine the two men who will represent the University, will be held starting within a few weeks, Bronaugh says. The matches will be held on the nine-hole course of the Eugene country club, while practice will be done on the University's three-hole course near Hayward field. This course is in good condition and the three holes are equivalent in playing qualities to any six of the course in the state, it is said.

New Entries Out

Four men of known ability are now turning out for the game, in addition to several others who are expected to show up well. Jack Marshall, Tom Mahoney and Don Goodrich have been working out since the first of the year, and are now rounding into form. Bronaugh himself will try again for a place on the Oregon team. Last year he finished well up in the tournament, scoring an 82 for 18 holes on the Waverly links in Portland. Marshall has been in matches at Gearhart and in Portland, and Goodrich has swung a club for the Eugene Country club several times.

List Still Open

New entrants in the varsity try-outs are Herbert K. McLain, John C. Boswell and Gilbert Rupert. The list is still open, Bronaugh announces, and he states that he will be able to give personal instructions to several more aspirants. Gymnasium credit will also be granted to men taking golf, it is announced.

Bronaugh will also take charge of the women's class, should enough sign up. The Scotch game is becoming more and more popular on the campus, and the time is not far distant when regular matches between all leading coast colleges will be held, it is said. The weather is approaching idealness for the sport, and both the University and the country club links are expected to be busy from now on.

MANY R. O. T. C. MEN WANT ADVANCE WORK

Forty Men Will Attend Camp Lewis
Session; Self Supporting
Sophomores May Go

Interest in the advanced work offered by the military department is on the increase, say local R. O. T. C. officials, and 40 men have signified their intention of attending the summer camp to be held at Camp Lewis, American Lake, Washington, from June 13 to July 24. About forty per cent of the men of the sophomore class have indicated that they will take the ad-

Men who have signified their intention to attend camp this summer will receive special instruction during the course this term. Several days on the outdoor range with the .30 caliber army rifle will be included in the preparations for camp. It is possible for sophomores who are working their way through school to take their advanced camp this summer instead of waiting until the end of their junior year, as has been required in the past. This special arrangement is made only for the convenience of men working their own way.

BOOKS OF EARLY PERIOD ARE ADDED TO LIBRARY

One of the latest additions to the library is the first printed copy of the "Tragedies and Comedies" of Beaumont and Fletcher, published in London in 1647. Other volumes almost as old are the "Works of Richard Hooker," 1662; "The Lives of Dr. John Donne, Sir Henry Wotton, Mr. Richard Hooker and George Herbert," by Isaac Walton, 1670; "Natural History of Selbourne," by Rev. Gilbert White, 1789, and a three-volume set of the "Works of Thomas Otway," 1768.

Some small books with fancy tooled leather binding are "Works of Thomas Southerne," in two volumes, 1721; "Dramatic Works of David Garrick," 1768, and "Poetical Works of Matthew Prior," in two volumes, 1779.

CAUSE OF DYMENT'S LONG ILLNESS FOUND

Dean to be Treated for Amoebic Infection

After being home only three days, Dean Colin V. Dymont, of the college of literature, science and arts, had a relapse yesterday morning and went to bed once more. His condition is complicated by a severe cold, but he hopes to be up again on Monday.

Dean Dymont is no better than when he left for Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, February 17, but on his way home, in an effort to ascertain what was pulling down his strength, he went to Dr. C. A. Kofoid, at Berkeley, a noted physiologist of the University of California, who, since 1918, has devoted nearly all his time to a study of a malady with which he found numbers of overseas men had returned. This malady was a form of amoebiasis.

In his treatise, entitled "Amoeba and the Man," Dr. Kofoid relates that he found about 13 per cent of the men whom he examined at the point of debarkation in New York city after the war infected with the amoeba, but in his opinion, a considerably larger portion of the overseas army had contracted it.

It was by the amoebic infection that after several days experiment in his laboratory, Dr. Kofoid found Dean Dymont to be affected. All of the 91st division, whom we visited in San Francisco were either being treated for it, or had undergone treatment and had been cured, Dean Dymont stated last night.

The organism was undoubtedly spread over France by troops called in by English and French from tropical regions of Asia and Africa—notably the Senegalese, Moroccans, Algerians and others.

The United States Veterans' Bureau, which Dean Dymont visited in San Francisco, has handled many hundreds of the cases. The infection has usually been supposed to be indigenous to the tropics, but Dr. Kofoid has succeeded in demonstrating that the organism can thrive in a temperate zone.

Dean Dymont expects to leave for Berkeley in about two weeks to undergo treatment for the infection, which will extend over several months. Two or three medical specialists around the bay are having success in eliminating the infection and restoration to normal action, after which complete rest is followed. During a bedside conference last night, with Major A. B. Richeson, a member of the staff of the United States Veterans' Bureau in Portland, Dean Dymont urged the institution of laboratory facilities to look for the infection among Northwestern overseas men.

Major Richeson is commandant of the first battalion of the 364th infantry of the 91st division, and served overseas, until wounded by a rifle bullet, September 28, 1918.

METHODISTS TO HOLD STUDENT CONFERENCE

Church Problems to be Topic at Louisville; Oregon Invited to Send Delegates

Shall the north and south branches of the Methodist church unite?

It is to help answer this and other vital church problems that the University of Oregon has been invited to participate in a national convention of Methodist students, the first of its kind ever held, at Louisville, Kentucky, April 18, 19 and 20.

It is proposed that every college and university in the United States where any considerable number of Methodist students are enrolled will send at least two delegates to the conference. Plans for the selection of representatives by Methodist students here, it is expected, will get under way immediately.

The proposal grew out of an unusual co-incidence that brought groups of students from the two branches of the Methodist church together at the recent Student Volunteer convention at Indianapolis.

At a meeting held at Northwestern university, Evanston, Illinois, definite plans were made for the holding of the conference in Louisville, April 18, 19 and 20, to bring together a group of Methodist students of America to study Methodism's part in the world's task and how students can relate themselves to that task.

At the conference both experts and students will present the various fields of the church showing what they offer in the way of service, what they are doing to meet the demands made upon them and what the possibilities are. This conference is very unique in that it has been called by students and is under student leadership.

that it insures a fair method of appointment, that it gives an equal chance for the states to improve, and, lastly, provision for the outstanding needs of education today.

Subsidy Unsound

In the concluding constructive speech for the negative side of the question, Miss Morrow called attention to the fact that illiteracy is decreasing in the United States in spite of the fact that 34,000,000 illiterates entered this country the last year. She attempted to show that federal subsidy is unsound in principle, and that in the past they have been failures. One of the arguments of the negative was that the Sterling-Reed bill would fail to coordinate governmental activities, and would cause even greater inequality.

"The state having the most will get the most, and the state having the least will get the least," said the speaker for the negative. "This bill will fail to accomplish the purpose for which it was intended, and, therefore, should not be made a law," she said in conclusion.

The judges for the debate were A. B. Richeson of the United States Veterans' bureau in Portland; M. S. Hamm, superintendent of the city schools of Roseburg, and Orlando Horning, debate coach of Salem high school. The chairman was M. K. Cameron.

WELFARE WEEK-END HELD AT PENDLETON

Miss Mozelle Hair Reports Work of Portland Extension
Social School

Miss Mozelle Hair, secretary of the University extension division, returned this week from Pendleton where she attended the Welfare Week-end held there March 21 and 22, under the direction of the Portland school of social work of the University of Oregon.

The Welfare Week-end is intended to be an exposition of the facilities of certain state agencies made available for dealing with health and welfare problems, as stated on the program which was issued for the sessions. The school conceives popular as well as professional education in social work, social responsibility, and community organization to be its legitimate function, the program continues.

The tuberculosis and baby clinics and those for sick and crippled children showed definitely the splendid work which the state is doing, Miss Hair said.

STATE Y. W. OFFICERS TO HOLD CONVENTION

Seven Schools Will be Represented at Willamette University
During Conference

The annual state student Y. W. C. A. officer and cabinet conference will be held this year at Willamette university, Salem from April 11 to 13. At this conference problems dealing with the means of carrying on association work will be taken up and plans of general interest to all associations will be discussed.

There are seven Oregon institutions of higher learning which will be represented at the conference. They are Oregon Agricultural college, Pacific university, Pacific college, Linfield college, Albany college, Willamette university, and the University of Oregon.

It is the plan of the campus association heads to have the five officers and all department chairmen attend the conference.

KANSAS STUDENT RULE CONSTITUTION REVISED

Kansas State Agricultural College—The students self government association at the Kansas State Agricultural college is under fire. It was the target at a recent meeting of the general science division of the faculty, and a complete new constitution was drafted and presented.

The principal faults found with the S. S. G. A. by its critics are that it is top heavy with machinery; that it is dominated by faculty influence; and that it is too far removed from the student body as a whole. Students in general exhibit no interest in the association and only a very small proportion have ever voted at an election.

OH BOY! PICNIC LUNCHEES

A picnic's a picnic and the lunch usually tastes good, but think how much better when—

1. The food is the best
2. The cooking unusual
3. The package attractive

That's the difference in George's picnic lunches and others. We are famous for our home-made candies and ice cream sodas and are now headed toward fame as preparers of lunches.
