The Kick-Off

The student body will raise funds for the Student Union. The students will kick off the $5,000,000 gift campaign. They have been entrusted with the task of inoculating the public with the spirit of giving.

The alumni, with that benign feeling toward their Alma Mater which can have only one form of expression, have pledged $1,000,000. This will build a men's gymnasium, a library and a memorial court.

Theirs is a signal responsibility. Success or failure may mean the spread or check of state-wide interest in the University Gift Campaign. With the money raised and the Union built and the alumni and the city both would find the going easier.

The advisability of the scheme has been agreed upon. Oregon students have never really had a center of academic, administrative and social activity. There have never been adequate quarters for student offices.

The feasibility of the plan is certain. Students in other institutions have raised remarkable sums for union projects which have proved indisputably successful. In fact, the oracles tell that not many years hence a university without a union will be like a dinner without food, there just won't be anything there.

The campaign for the Student Union will begin within the month. The entire campus will organize to attain the goal in sight. The quicker the money is secured, the sooner the building will be erected, and the greater impetus will be given to the campaign as a whole.

The students have an opportunity. They have only to succeed in doing their little part in establishing the Greater University. The rest will follow.

CASTLE
"The eternal triangle," that favorite device of the modern author, fades into insignificance when compared with the plot of "Lilies of the Field," a First National picture which opens today at the Castle, for its story involves seven women and four men in a circle of intricate love affairs.

REX
Johnny Hines, whose name stands for pep, effervescent punch and sparkling comedy, stars in "Little Johnny Jones," the screen adaptation of the George M. Cohan popular stage success, which opened with great eclat at the Rex theater yesterday, where it plays again today.

ZIEGFELD'S "SALLY" COMES MONDAY NIGHT

Ziegfeld's "Sally," which is scheduled for next Monday night at the Heilig and which the management of that theater promise will be the great theatrical event of the year, is attracting considerable attention on the campus and W. B. McDonald, manager, reports that, although prices are high, due to the quality of the attraction, that students will make up a large part of the audience.

Gallery rushing, always a popular method of seeing the big shows, will not be in vogue this time, however, "Mac" says, on account of the fact that every seat in the house is reserved.

The latest word is that several of the large cast have friends on the campus. A number of campus organizations are planning to entertain one or more of the main people in the cast. The company will arrive early Monday morning.

ZETA KAPPA PSI PLEDGES TO STAGE STUNT TONIGHT

Tonight at 7:30, in the corrective room of the women's gymnasium, the pledges of Zeta Kappa Psi, national honorary debating society for women, will stage a somewhat impromptu performance in the form of a pre-initiation stunt. No information has been divulged as to the nature of the entertainment, but it is thought that it will be worth the while of any women students who wish to attend. The affair is open to all women of the University.

WORLD PEACE THEME OF ORATORICAL MEET

Six Schools Will Contest on Friday Evening

The colleges that have definitely signified their intention of entering contestants in the state peace oratorical contest which is scheduled to be held in Villard hall on Friday evening at 8 o'clock are: Pacific university, Pacific college, Willamette university, Eugene Bible university, Oregon Agricultural college, Linfield college and the University of Oregon.

Two prizes of $75 and $50 will be awarded for the best orations on the subject of peace. A national organization which has for its purpose the promotion of international peace, is sponsoring this contest.

The titles of the orations to be delivered by students from the various colleges are as follows: "Peace Orations," "International Mind," "It Must Not Be Again," "A Nation's Soul," "The New Peace," "America's Sacred Trust," and "The Waging War Against War." The orations must not exceed 1,500 words in length.

The judges who will award the prizes are to be divided into two groups, namely, those who will judge from the standpoint of thought and composition, and those who will judge from the standpoint of delivery. The men who will judge on the basis of thought and composition are William O. Moore from Iowa State college, Charles A. Marsh, national president of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity and instructor at the University of California, southern branch, and Edwin Dubois Shurter from the Southern Methodist university of Dallas, Texas. The other set of judges will be announced tomorrow.

There will be no more contests after this until May 22, when the Northwest oratorical meet will be held between Washington, Idaho and Oregon.
