The Hosts Assemble

The forces are maneuvering for the great offensive. On the morning of April 23 will come the "zero hour."

Step by step the plans for the four-day drive are shaping themselves. Each hour, each minute brings an additional feature to be perfected.

As the scheme is talked about, is thought of, and is written of, the concept of a student building grows increasingly attractive.

There should be other features including billiard rooms for those who like the game, fireplaces for campus chatter, private rooms where symposiums may be held.

The values of an exclusive student building are certainly innumerable. It should be a virtual hive of activity with students coming and going all day long.

But before this dream becomes a reality, something very important must take place. The money must be secured. Certain ones are entrusted with the task of raising the money.

"Skinny" Reid

Big, lovable "Skinny" Reid is gone. His studio in the Music building is unutterably empty, and the dust has begun to gather on the keys of the instrument upon which, during the last days of his brief life, he must have expressed the aching of his weary soul.

The campus saw "Skinny" every day and thought it knew him. He was responsive and affectionate and smiling. Who could know that within were many emotions, turbulent, and shaking the foundations of life?

At the end, it was his love of his mother, ill beyond all recovery, which drove him to the black depths of discouragement and foreboding. It was like "Skinny" that it should have been the love of his mother.

Never again with the skilled hands of the great-hearted musician reproduce the harmonies that kept his campus audiences very still. Never again will he raise his voice with the Glee club in praise of his Alma mater.

Oregon" sound out under his powerful touch at the close of assembly.

These were the things of his life and his art; and they were fine. Yet after all somehow his art failed to save him with the gift of peace.

MANY NOVEL COSTUMES TO BE SEEN IN "SALLY"

W. B. McDonald, known on the campus as "Mac," is especially interested in the coming showing of Ziegfeld's "Sally" at the Heilig Monday night, not only because he is manager of the house which has billed the big attraction but because he has heard so many good things about the show that he wants his student friends to have a chance to verify them.

Ziegfeld costumes, always famous, will be very much in evidence, he has promised the girls on the campus, and advance notices as to the charm of the chorus is said to have interested a number of the University men. Producers of the junior Vod-vil hope to add to their stock of ideas from the colorful coming attraction.

REX

"The Night Hawk," which has been running at the Rex theater, will be shown there for the last time tonight.

BUSINESS STAFF SHIFT ANNOUNCED BY MUNLY

Opportunity Open to Make Positions Next Year

The first announcement of appointments to the business staff of the Emerald were made last night by Leo Munly, manager. The changes appear in the masthead of the paper this morning.

Velma Farnham, editor of the Carol the Co-ed column; Lyle Janz, editor of the Obak's Kollege Krier section, and Mary Brandt, editor of the professional and business guides, have been appointed to form the specialty advertising staff. William James, who was on the specialty advertising staff last term, has been transferred to the local advertising department. Earl Slocum has been appointed to the local advertising department, also.

Reappointments are: Lot Beatie, associate manager; James Leake, manager of the foreign advertising department; Walter Pearson, assistant manager of the foreign advertising department. Kenneth Stephenson is again the circulation manager, with James Manning as an assistant. On the upper business staff, Maurice Warnock has been reappointed advertising manager, and Karl Hardenbergh assistant. Lester Wade, Earl Slocum and William James are on the upper business staff, with Frank Loggan reappointed as sales manager. Two men on the staff last term did not return to school this term. They are Frank De Spain and Chester Coon.

The spring term offers an opportunity for those interested in the business end of the newspaper, and in the advertising profession, to work up for positions on the staff in the following fall term. For these persons, the business staff of the Emerald is endeavoring to give opportunities in handling advertising accounts, methods of writing copy, and making market researches, real experience in salesmanship, besides the best methods in the advertising profession. Any one interested in such work may inquire at the manager's office any afternoon, and see about trying out for the staff.

PSYCHOLOGY STUDENTS SEE CARLSON EXHIBIT

As a practical study in color sensation, the 9 o'clock psychology class taught by Dr. Kimball Young visited the John F. Carlson exhibition of paintings in the gallery in the arts building yesterday morning. An impromptu talk to the class was given by Virgil O. Hafen, professor of fine arts, at the request of Dr. Young.

"There is something about the paintings to make one homesick when he leaves them," Professor Hafen said. "There is something personal about them."

He spoke of the artist's use of broken color to obtain the effect of out of doors. This method of painting was begun in England by the out-door impressionists. The effect is best at a certain distance. This is true, he said, of "The First Beam," with the early rays of the sun piercing the gray mists of morning.

Political Scandal Puts Campus in Air

Faculty and Students Charged by Krier

At the very eve of the opening of the spring political season a scandal has been found in local political circles that makes the president's cabinet and members of congress look like a Sunday school picnic. Prominent men declare that some of our local political buds would make Roy Gardner feel like a philanthropist, and the once famous Jesse James resign from the train robbers' union.

Men of all ages have had tendencies to use fair means and foul in the effort to assume office, but never before has this campus been so completely over-run by the evils of the spoils system.

The scandal includes men and women, faculty members and students, janitors and landscape gardeners; even the Pioneer is carrying a gun. Hundreds of local residents are shaking in their boots, fearing the publicity that this exposure is going to make of their reputations. What instructors will be left to carry on the work of higher education next year is a question, and it is declared that dozens of this year's seniors have admitted that they will not be back next year.

The truth became known recently

Dispenses Joy!

Mount the Stool—He'll Do His Stuff

You are just like the rest of us, you want good food when you want it. Believe us, you can learn about food from Obak's snow-white lunch counter. Men that really like to eat, for the sake of either entertainment or nourishment, will get more pure, unadulterated fun and satisfaction out of Obak's food than did the young fellow that pulled the plum out of the Christmas pie—and we don't mean possibly.

when it was noted that hundreds of students and faculty members left the city on March 19. Why did they leave? Where did they go? How and why? These are the questions that the Krier demands explanation to.

EDMUND HALLEY 1656-1742

Son of a London soap-boiler who became Astronomer-Royal. At the age of 20 headed an expedition to chart the stars of the Southern hemisphere. Financed and handled the printing of Newton's immortal Principia.

The comet came back

The great comet that was seen by William of Normandy returned to our skies in 1910 on its eleventh visit since the Conquest. Astronomers knew when it would appear, and the exact spot in the sky where it would first be visible.

Edmund Halley's mathematical calculation of the great orbit of this 76-year visitor—his scientific proof that comets are part of our solar system—was a brilliant application of the then unpublished Principia of his friend Sir Isaac Newton.

The laws of motion that Newton and Halley proved to govern the movements of a comet are used by scientists in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company to determine the orbit of electrons in vacuum tubes.

As spectacular as a comet has been the world's electrical development. By continuous scientific research the General Electric Company has accelerated this development and has become a leader in the industry.
