

THIRTY ATTEND ANNUAL Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE

Nine Northwest Schools Are Represented

About thirty delegates are expected from the various Northwest colleges and universities to attend the annual Y. M. C. A. officers' training conference, which will be held on the Oregon campus Saturday and Sunday of this week. Six Oregon colleges, two Washington colleges, and one Idaho college will be represented at the conference, which is held each year to train the newly elected officers of the various college Y. M. C. A.'s.

Beside the student delegates, there will be in attendance W. W. Dillon, interstate secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Gale Seaman, Pacific coast secretary; W. F. Hypes of Chicago; Prof. Duback of O. A. C.; and E. W. Warrington, who is Y. M. C. A. secretary at O. A. C.

The conference will convene Saturday morning at 11:15 a. m. in the "Y" hut, and adjourn Sunday afternoon at the home of Rev. Henry Wilson Davis on College Crest.

Today at 1:15, in the "Y" hut, the field council for Idaho, Washington and Oregon will meet and discuss matters of student interest in Y. M. C. A. work. There will be 12 delegates to this meeting and they are in charge of the Seabeck conference at Seabeck, Washington, for this year. The field council will adjourn its meeting in time to attend the Officers' Training conference.

VISITING SECRETARIES ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Round table discussion will be conducted this afternoon by Jake D. Allen of San Francisco on the topics: "Internal and External Publicity" and "The Secretary and His Job." W. B. D. Dodson, manager of the Portland chamber of commerce, is to speak at the secretaries' assembly hour at 11 o'clock. Yesterday the secretaries were entertained at the Eugene chamber of commerce during the luncheon hour, at which time Jake D. Allen spoke on "The Chamber of Commerce as an Institution." Committee organization and control was the subject for round table discussion in the afternoon. J. H. Fuller of Ashland addressed the delegates at their morning assembly hour, and E. C. Robbins, dean of the school of business administration of the University, spoke during the morning on "Principles of Economics."

Today's program follows:
9:00-9:50—Mechanics of Public Speaking ..... A. S. Dudley

EASTER IS OBSERVED BY ALL CHRISTIANITY

Local Churches Especially Invite Students of University to Attend Service

By Walter Coover

Easter Sunday is one of the most important days in the church in that it is the celebration of the most important event in Christianity, the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

It is notable in that it is universally observed by Roman Catholics and Protestants alike. As the Romans were converted to Christianity, the ancient heathen customs were discarded. The Easter festival, however, is largely a combination of the best traditions of these old pagan spring festivals. The observance of the resurrection has been carried down through the centuries in spite of the divisions within the churches.

Nowadays in America, special musical services, sunrise prayer meetings and breakfasts are characteristic of the day. The crowds for the Easter services are among the largest of the year. Last year, in the country about Los Angeles, meetings were held at sunrise on six different mountain tops with an estimated attendance of 125,000 persons.

The churches of Eugene are making special efforts to attract the University students to the Easter services. Many attend at this time who do not at other times. These persons are especially invited to attend the breakfasts, communion services, sermons and sacred concerts which will appear on the programs for the day.

The First Christian church will start observance with the Sunday school, making a special effort to reach an attendance of 1,200. The regular morning service consists of Easter music by the choir and a sermon by the pastor, Dr. E. Y. Stivers, on "The Resurrection of Christ and Immortality." The evening will be given over to music and a pantomime, "The Foolish Virgins."

A breakfast at 7 o'clock for the young people and a communion service at 8 mark the early morning at the First Methodist church. Sunday school comes at 9:45, with classes for University men and women. The "Hallelujah Chorus," and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," both by Handel, will be sung during the morning service, beginning at 11 o'clock. Dr. J. Franklin Haas will speak on "The Easter Message of Spring." In the evening, a sacred concert will be given by Mu Phi Epsilon, national honorary musical fraternity.

The Episcopal church will hold a Choral Holy Communion at 6:30, a Holy Communion (spoken) at 8 o'clock, and a Choral Holy Communion and sermon at 11. At 7:30 p. m., the Evening Prayer and sermon will be special for the Ivanhoe Commandery No. 2, of the Knights Templar.

A communion service and a breakfast are on the program for 7 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian church. At 11 o'clock, the choir, under the direction of John B. Siefert, will sing three special numbers, and Rev. Bruce Giffin will deliver a sermon on "Immortality Brought to Light." There will be no evening service, the congregation uniting with the Methodists for the Mu Phi Epsilon sacred concert.

St. Mary's Catholic church will hold a high mass at 8 o'clock and a low mass at 10:30. Special music will be given at high mass.

The First Baptist church is not planning an Easter service but hopes to bring their campaign for a new church building to a successful close on Sunday. Special music will feature the Sunday school hour.

MEIKLEJOHN SPEAKS ON FUTURE COLLEGES

called distracting value of athletics?" asked one interrogator. "My chief complaint about athletes," he said, "is that . . . the athletes hire someone else to do all the thinking for them. If they would play their games, all right. Instead, they take all the fun out of it by paying high-priced coaches to solve all the problems, in short, to do everything that's worth while. When students will play their own games, they will think their own philosophies."

In planning for the college of tomorrow, Dr. Meiklejohn held there are two fundamental moral laws which must be faced and obeyed if the most is to be gained from the education of the future.

"The first duty of every human being," he said, "is to appreciate what there is to be appreciated—to be sensitive." To do thusly, he said, is to live. "That's life at its very top," he declared. Those guilty of the "crime of dullness"—those who "just don't exist"—they are the ones "living life at its very bottom."

The second law is nothing more than several new versions of "Love thy neighbor as thyself." One of them, "If there's anything good in the world to have, it's as well that another should have it as me," is easily translated into the principal of democracy—to the substance of Christianity. Dr. Meiklejohn is a believer in democracy. Whether or not education—in a broad sense—will ever be the possession of the many, he does not profess to know. He believes the stakes are worth playing for. "The best games I've played," he said, "are the games I've had the least chance of winning."

Preceding the talk at Alumni hall, Dr. Meiklejohn and President and Mrs. Scholz of Reed College were entertained by a faculty dinner at the Anchorage. The meeting last night was under the auspices of Agora, men's discussion group, which threw the meeting open to Crossroads, Dial, Dean Allen's editing class, and others interested.

EPWORTH LEAGUE TO HOLD CONVENTION AT ASHLAND

Lester Turnbaugh, senior in journalism and vice-president of the Epworth league of the Southern Oregon district, will attend the annual convention of the organization to be held at Ashland the weekend of April 27. Willa Loomis, senior in mathematics, and Charlotte Winnard, sophomore in social ogy, will also attend the convention.

They will all drive south with Dr. J. Franklin Haas, pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Haas will give the opening address, while Turnbaugh will take part in the program.

"Scaramouche" —Ask the next person you meet.

My dearest Anne: Student Union! The whole campus is thrilling with enthusiasm over it. Even the most enthusiastic fall before the glowing eloquence of Doug Farrell and Haddon Rockley. For my pledge I have an endowment policy with Mr. George Goodall on which I will pay $25 a year. At the end of ten years it will amount to $300, instead of $250 it would otherwise.

The drive will be next week and I am one of the solicitors. I know it isn't entirely true that clothes make the man, but they do help—and I know that I will be able to solicit better in my modish gown of print crepe de chine I bought at Larges. Dark blue with gayly colored flowers makes an adorable "setting" for the puffed lace neck and sleeves.

I wish you could see the lovely Easter window display at Elkins Gift Shop. Blending in perfect harmony are Sargent's "Prophets," a picture of the Christ, St. Cecilia plaque, and the motto cards. A pot of lilies, a beautiful art lamp, and candlesticks of white with tinted flowers at the base, add the finishing touch that makes it so beautifully artistic.

One cannot think of Easter without hats. Gertrude, Betty, and Frances bought some beauties today at the Style Shop. A black crown with a yellow brim is Gertrude's, with a trimming of horse-hair pompons in black edged with Chinese yellow milan. Betty's is of white straw with three cords in pastel shades edging the brim with flowers to match, hand-tinted in gold. Frances chose a sand-colored hair-cloth trimmed with a lilac band in naere shades.

A gray, hand painted, gold embossed Easter booklet will gladden my family at Easter. It was at Coe's Stationery I found it, when I was getting cards for my friends and fellow schoolmates. I even am sending you one—I know the daintiness of it will please you.

When I bought some Three Flowers Cold Cream at the Red Cross Drug store, I received with it the handiest sized box of Three Flowers powder. I had never used it before and I'm just finding out what I have been missing. When you put it on you know it is going to stay—not even rubbing off on coat laps.

I must tell you about the clever dress ornament I found at Sleier's Jewelry when I dropped in to get my watch that I had fixed there. The ornament has the appearance of leather but is rubber, and beautifully colored in batik effect. It is slashed in long strands which hang to the bottom of the skirt.

You know how perfectly furious it makes you to try to turn on a light and find the globe missing. We have been wearing out our globes changing them from one room to another so our house manager made us all happy by buying a supply at Bailey's Electric Company. She bought all Peerless frosted ones, and they give such good light.

The picture I had taken at Martin's Studio for my Mother's day gift. It turned out so well and is one that my mother won't have to blushing claim as her daughter. It is in a swivel frame of silver gray trimmed in blue. The linen finish softens it so and makes a picture so much more attractive.

I'll have to go out and take my turn with the new lawn mower we invested in at Manville Brothers. The girls have been having more fun with it—and incidentally the lawn is beginning to look more civilized. We have a new hose too, so as soon as we get the grass cut we'll water the lawn so more will grow and give the rest a chance at the lawn mower. Write soon to your CAROL.
