

WORK ON MURAL CARTOONS BEGUN

Students Make Decorations
for College Side Inn

SCHROFF HEADS GROUP

Preliminary Sketches Made at First of Year

Work on cartoons for the mural to be made for the College Side Inn has begun in the stained glass and mural decoration class, under the direction of Prof. Alfred H. Schroff, head of the fine arts on the campus. The mural will be taken up as a class problem, and each member of the class will be assigned one figure on the canvas to complete.

Students Take Part
Preliminary sketches were made by each student and submitted in a general competition during the first part of the college year, but the mural itself, instead of being a development of one of the sketches, will be a theme combining various ideas worked out.

Paper for the cartoons has been fastened to the east wall of the remodeled drawing and painting studio in the architecture building. On Tuesday, the first day the studio was opened for use since the extension of its north frontage, the work on the cartoons was definitely begun. Small sketches worked out in color covered part of the floor, and the drawing was started.

Schroff in Charge
The students will work under Professor Schroff as the apprentices in medieval times worked under the master painter or craftsman, and will benefit by his large experience in the work. Two of his murals, "Spring" and "Autumn," belong to the University, and may be seen above the fireplaces in Alumni hall of the Woman's building.

The details of the subject have not yet been completely worked out but it is certain that it will be a millrace scene. The theme is to be some joyous student activity in the out-of-doors, such as canoeing, games, or races.

and mothers of the state are asking for their children; increased productive power, greater efficiency, political advantages, and added culture. It is not right to these fathers and mothers that after they have struggled through about 20 years, denying themselves many things in order that their children might have the advantage of higher education, that we should apply wholesale methods, denying the individual contact with instructors that is so essential, or else turn them away altogether."

John MacGregor told of his visit to the Student Union building at California and of the important part this structure plays in the campus affairs of that institution. "My freshman class has been singled out for the greatest honor yet conferred upon any class," declared Dean Straub. "I see in this morning's Emerald where their quota is $60,000."

"Can you raise it?" he asked the men in the gallery.

"Yes," came back the unanimous response from the first year men. F. L. Chambers, chairman of the city drive in Eugene, was called to the platform to explain what the people of Eugene were going to do in the matter of constructing an auditorium as a part of the $10,000,000 campaign.

"You'll have to hurry to beat us to a building," he informed the students, in the manner of a blase business man talking to a competitor. "We're going to have a meeting tomorrow night, and we'll decide whether it's to be a half a million or more. We'll have a building up within two years. We'll probably be able to start work in the spring." As he sat down, the students, realizing he had said what is technically referred to as "a mouthful," gave him a long, spontaneous burst of applause.

SWIMMING LETTERS EARNED BY TWO MEN

Varsity Takes Two Meets and Loses Three

Two members of the Webfoot swimming team made their letters in the season just closed. Lyle Palmer, sprinter and relay man, and George Horsfall, diver and sprinter, are the two getting the awards. To win a letter in swimming, a person has to win a first place in a conference meet, or take eight points during the season.

Throughout the swimming season Palmer and Horsfall were high point winners of the Oregon team. Oregon won two swimming matches, tied one, lost three and finished third in the state championships at Corvallis, March 8. The Multnomah club of Portland decisively defeated the Webfoot squad twice. Oregon broke even with the Aggies in two meets between the schools. The varsity tied the freshman team once and defeated it by one point in a second meet.

Next year's varsity swimming team should be a strong one. Most of the present varsity men will be eligible and there are a number of good men coming up from the freshman team, including Lombard and Boggs in the sprints and Stone in the sprints and dives.

CHEMICAL FIRE TANKS TO BE PUT IN HOUSES

Thirty, two and a half-gallon fire tanks have arrived at the University depot for distribution among the fraternity and sorority houses. The tanks, which were received from the Howard Cooper company of Portland, were recommended by the state fire marshal.

Twenty or thirty more of the tanks are expected within a few days, according to H. M. Fisher, superintendent of the University buildings and grounds. Each building on the campus is furnished with several of these tanks, which are more effective than many gallons of water.
