

WOMEN TO HAVE COURSES IN GOLF

Sport to be Given as Three Term Subject

CLASSES BEGIN IN FALL

Good Work Shown Among Players on Campus

Golf for the women of the University has assumed rather a definite form for the coming year. Realizing the growing popularity to furnish a very thorough course on this sport. Adequate facilities for its background are among the plans now being formulated.

A practice room in the Woman's building will be built so as to accommodate a large class in the fall and winter terms. This room will be used for lecture as well as for putting and driving practice.

Bronaugh to Coach
Golf will be a three-term subject beginning next year, with much time spent in the winter months on creating a background around the game. The fundamental lectures which will proceed real practice work will be: "The History of Golf," "The Trend of the Game," "The Science of the Game," and "Golf Etiquette."

George Bronaugh will retain his position as coach for the coming year, and will devote more of his time to this work.

At present there are 30 girls taking lessons in the game. At the beginning of the term, over 60 girls signified their intentions of taking golf, but class accommodations limited this number to only 30. As this sport is the fourth most popular game with the women, all those desiring to take the game will be able to do so in the future.

With a fall and spring tournament for women scheduled for next year, possible candidates for women's title-holder are being considered from the girls who are out for golf this year.

Promising Players Listed

Among the promising players that are taking golf this term is Eloise Huggins, a Portland girl, who has displayed remarkable ability in learning the game. Marie Schulerman is another girl who is fast mastering the principles that govern a good game of golf. With some consistent practice and acquired confidence, Miss Schulerman should set a low mark in the fall tournament. Lillian Luders is a player of an exceptional caliber, having developed a drive that is quite masculine in appearance, due to the distance that it covers. Bernice Davies completes the list of outstanding material to be considered in the coming fall tourney. By the end of this term, with much practice, a very strong class of women golf players is expected to be developed.

BOOKS BEING MOVED TO NEW LIBRARY STACKS

The work of shifting books into the two new tiers of stacks that have been installed in the library is well under way. The first floor of the stacks is practically filled. Books of natural sciences, religion, philosophy, mathematics, and library sciences are moved there.

On the main floor the works on social sciences, education, general literature, English and American literature, and useful arts are stationed in order that they may be nearest the circulation desk. The books that are being moved to the floor below includes languages, foreign literature, travel, biography, and description. The basement will be filled largely with documents and newspapers and the top floor with periodicals, some of which will not be moved until summer.

LIBRARY SHOWS RAPID GROWTH SINCE 1877

Benefit Entertainments, Literary Societies and Gifts Aid in Increase

A miscellaneous collection of 500 volumes, paid for by funds raised locally by means of entertainments, was the beginning of the University library. This was in 1877, the second year of the University, for during the first year there were no library facilities at all. These books were purchased and cared for by two literary societies. Then, in 1882, Henry Villard, president of the Northern Pacific railroad, visited the University and seeing its dire need of books, offered a gift of $1,000 for library funds. Later in a deed, Mr. Villard gave the University property valued at $50,000 with the provision that $400 a year should be expended on the library. Various gifts from this time till 1901 made possible an increase of 4,000 volumes.

Gradual but continued increases were made in the library. In 1915 there were 68,454 and from then on perhaps the greatest increase was made. In less than 10 years, the circulation became four or five times as great till last year the total number of books circulated was 311,774. At present, the actual number of books on the library shelves is estimated at 130,000.

EXPERIMENTS MADE ON COLOR-BLIND STUDENTS

Dr. Crosland Proves Case of Natural Cause

Dr. H. R. Crosland, of the University department of psychology, has recently completed a series of experiments upon a University student who is color-blind. Dr. Crosland has sent the results to the Journal of Experimental Psychology, which deals with all experimental researches in connection with this subject.

Besides being color-blind, the student is near-sighted and has a form of crossed eyes technically known as divergent strabismus. The experiment was instituted to determine whether or not the near-sightedness and crossed-eyes were the cause of the color-blindness, or due to natural causes, and it was found out that the latter condition was the cause.

The student could not distinguish between the true colors, such as blue and red, but could make remarkable selections of different shades of grey in matching skeins of yarn. Thus it was proved that he could draw a distinction between different degrees of light and darkness and not between colors, so that all characteristics of the case pointed to natural color-blindness instead of a result of the other defects.

GIRLS' TENNIS TEAMS TO HAVE LADDER MEET

Class Players to be Picked on Night of April 10

In order to choose the women's class tennis teams, a ladder tournament will be run off in the next 10 days, Augusta DeWitt, head of tennis, has announced. The names of the women representing each class, have been given a place on a ladder which is placed on the bulletin board at the entrance to the women's gymnasium. On the night of April 10, the woman whose name is at the top of her respective class will be given first place on her class team, and will play in the singles tournament. The two women whose names appear next will represent the class in the doubles tournament. The fourth woman will be given a place as substitute on her class team.

In running off this ladder tournament, it will be possible for any girl to challenge any other girl whose name is two places above that of the first girl. If she wins two sets out of three, she can move her name up on the ladder and the name of the girl who loses down on the ladder.

The girls out for places on their respective teams are as follows: Freshmen, Mary Alice Ball, Laura Prescott, Marjorie O'Brien, Ruth Melsome, Camille Burton, Isobelle Amon, Rhona Williams; sophomores, Mariette Beattie, Dora Gordon, Anna DeWitt; juniors, Florence Huntress, Carol Clark, Mildred Crain, Grace Sullivan, Augusta DeWitt, Maude Schroeder, Judy Raymond, Marian Smith; seniors, Helen Smith, Bernice Gano, Maud Graham, Adah Harkness.

The Myrtle Point and Bonanza teams. The Oregon High School Debating league was organized in 1907 by Prof. E. E. De Cou, of the University mathematics department, who was its first secretary. Dr. Dan E. Clark, director of correspondence study of the extension division, is the present secretary of the league.

EXTENSION DIVISION PUBLICATION IS OUT

Many Articles Written by Students Printed

The student number of the Extension Monitor, the publication of the extension division of the University of Oregon, was distributed yesterday. The majority of articles appearing in this number were not written with the idea of being printed, having been selected from the daily papers of the extension students. "A Deserted Logging Camp," by Alice Scott Perkins; "Notes on Oregon History," by A. C. Strange, school superintendent of Astoria; "My First Day in School," by Mrs. G. W. Hult, and "The High School Graduate and His Country Parent," written by Helen Pridmore of Springfield, are among the interesting articles in this group.

"Fire Protection Week," is the subject of an article written by E. H. Hall, forest examiner of Cascade National Forest. "In 1922, forest fires burned up, in Oregon and Washington alone, $2,435,210 worth of timber and property," is one of the astounding but true statements he makes.

"News Here and There" contains many interesting bits of news of the extension students from all
