

WRITERS TO BE HERE SATURDAY

Many Well-known Authors to Attend Sessions

FIRST MEETING AT 2 P. M.

Students Asked to Banquet
in Woman's Building

Modern saleable books, novels, short stories, manuscripts and journalistic compositions of all descriptions will be the basis of prevalent gossip on the campus, Saturday, May 3, when the second annual conference of Oregon authors will meet at the University for a day with the students and writers of the journalism department.

The students in general will have an opportunity to hear the views of some of the authorities of modern contemporary literature at a meeting of the conference in Alumni hall at 2 p. m. The speakers of the occasion will be Victor L. O. Chittick of Reed college and Professors Herbert C. Howe and Kimball Young of the University of Oregon.

Many from Valley
"A noticeable fact in regard to the Oregon writers is that the majority are natives of Willamette valley," said Prof. W. F. G. Thacher, professor of short story writing in the University and chairman of the Authors' conference. These, he pointed out, who especially reflect the life of the Oregon people, are: Edison Marshall, the best known of the writers, from Medford; Charles Alexander and Albert Wetjen, from Albany; Victor Shawe, from Toledo; Anthony Euwer, Robert Ormand Case, Carolyn Davies and others from Portland, and Alexander Hull, from Newberg.

Many University of Oregon students who have already marketed articles and who are anticipating with interest the authors' conference are: Nancy Wilson, who has sold articles to the Hollands magazine, a Texas publication; Walter Evans Kidd, who writes magazine verse; and Sydney Thornbury, whose line is poetry. These students have studied for the express purpose of becoming short story writers, and intend to make this branch of journalism their life work.

Recognition Is Won
Former students who have won recognition in the writing world are: Edison Marshall, Robert Ormand Case, Ernest J. Haycox, Alfred Powers, Leslie Blades, Mary Lou Burton, and Grace Edgington.

Persons interested in writing are invited to attend the dinner in the Woman's building in honor of the visitors at 6:30 p. m. Tickets for the dinner may be obtained from the Co-op, Prof. Thacher, in the school of journalism, or Mrs. Mason, in the president's office. The tickets are 60 cents each, and a limited number are on sale.

VARIOUS ARTICLES FILL UP LOST AND FOUND BUREAU
Thirty-nine umbrellas, 12 pens, three pairs of eye-glasses, a fur neckpiece, seven caps, five hats, three Eversharp pencils, and numerous keys, gloves, rubbers, belts, books, and a silk scarf make up the collection at the lost and found bureau in the University depot. "With the warm weather, it seems that the students become more absent minded," said H. M. Fisher, who is losing hope of ever disposing of the horde of ownerless articles, especially the umbrellas.

24 SENIORS ELECTED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

were elected to the honor society. At the present time, 37 of the men and women on the faculty of the University are members of Phi Beta Kappa.

Attempts to secure a chapter were first made in 1916, but it remained for the organization of the University Honor society to bring recognition of the University's standards of scholarship.

SIDELIGHTS

be confronted with the actual words of their nominating speeches, they might register emphatic denials. For instance: "When a man can get by on the campus for three years like this man has done, he deserves the job!" That statement is open to several different interpretations.

One of our votes has been definitely decided upon. A man who has such strength of character and such an engaging personality that he can attain "a wide acquaintance among his friends" should be a credit to any office.

The falling of a bench seems to hold more interest for students and to cause more craning of necks than does the announcement of an unexpected candidacy.

After all, despite the absence of the passionate mud slinging element in Oregon politics, the political atmosphere has a tang of keen interest and busy activity that has a not unwholesome effect. Mud is difficult to remove, anyway.
