

O. A. C. TO GIVE MILITARY SHOW

Corvallis to be Scene of Battle Maneuvers

POLO GAMES ARE LISTED

Five Branches of School Are to Compete

Bell field at O. A. C., on May 24, will be the scene of the 11th annual military tournament to be staged by the O. A. C. corps of cadets. The tournament will be divided into four main parts consisting of a polo game between the O. A. C. cavalry unit and the Portland Hunt club, the Military Circus, a sham battle, and pyrotechnics and fireworks exhibition.

Two Polo Games Listed

The polo game will be held on the polo grounds at 2:30 in the afternoon for the benefit of out-of-town people who arrive there in the early afternoon. During the military circus there will be a short game on Bell field. On account of the small size of the field, this will be hardly more than an exhibition game.

The military circus, at 7:00 in the evening, will be the most important part of the tournament. This will be participated in by the five departments of the military service at O. A. C. and some of the events will have entries from the National Guard company of Corvallis and any other National Guard companies that care to compete.

Some of the main features of the circus are the wall scaling competition, the machine gun and the artillery exhibitions, and a number of riding contests and races. The athletic events of the tournament taken part in by the various units of the cadet corps will count toward the J. K. Partello cup, which will be presented to the winning unit at the end of the military circus. Sweaters will be presented to the members of the pistol and rifle teams, who have won all their contests so far.

Sham Battle Big Affair
After the military circus the night operations and sham battle will take place near Bell field. All the combatant branches of the army will be shown in action with their wonderful equipment of rifles, machine guns, heavy artillery and all kinds of shells and rockets.

The last event of the tournament will be the pyrotechnics and fireworks display, which will be the most spectacular ever presented in Oregon, according to Captain Louis J. Witt, a representative of the Hitt Fireworks company, which will supply the explosives and fireworks.

Varsity Beats W. S. C. in Last Inning Rally

southpaw, and Hugh Carlyle Latham of the varsity. Latham was greeted with a rousing cheer of welcome from his straw-topped classmates, the senior cops of '24, as he mounted the hillcock, and the tall one responded by hurling the best game of the year. For six innings he held the visitors runless, aided by the good support of the Lemon-Yellow defense, and but for some hard luck would have had a shutout. The Cougars' only runs of the game came in the seventh inning, when Beneke's single went through Wright's legs for a home run, scoring Zaepluf. Outside of this one canto, the Cougars were helpless before Latham's pitching and the excellent defense of the varsity. Twice big Hugh filled the bases purposefully by walking Cook, W. S. C.'s clean-up hitter, then retired the side by striking out Marker.

The varsity rang the bell in the opening inning, scoring the initial run on Sorsby's single and Hobson's two-base hit. Their second run came in the fifth, when Terrill walked after two were out and scored on hits by Sorsby and Ross. That was all of the run-getting until the ninth. The varsity fielding was of first class order throughout and it was the air-tight defense which staved the Cougars off inning after inning. Latham issued free transportation to nine men, but his excellent support prevented the visitors from gaining anything by it. In addition to staging a couple of neat double plays, the varsity also caught three men napping off the bags, and Jack Bliss caught one stealing second.

Is there anyone on the campus who didn't go in the fountain yesterday?

Phoebe Louise Wright has sworn off on wearing ties. She got a taste of the water in the fountain too.

Some of the boys thought the battle was on when Ed Kirtley and his six warriors made their last stand on the bridge over the mill race. Arbitration was finally called into play, however, and the boys went willingly back to the fountain.

As someone said, "It's a long way from the bridge to the bottom of the mill race. Too far for a comfortable fall."

"Nic" Carter says, "It's too darned bad we can't have Junior Week-end every day."

Knute Digerness put up a game fight but he finally went in. When he came out he seemed disappointed about something.

Just what will the campus look like without the green lids. They all went into the fire yesterday.

DEAN OF ALLIED ARTS TO TAKE EASTERN TRIP

Schools of Architecture, Libraries and Auditoriums Will Be Studied

Ellis F. Lawrence, dean of the school of architecture and allied arts, and W. R. B. Wilcox, professor of architecture, will attend the 57th annual convention of the American Institute of Architects in Washington, D. C., this month. Dean Lawrence expects to leave Portland May 13, as he plans to stop at the University of Michigan and at Cornell on the way. He will study schools of architecture, and visit libraries and auditoriums on the eastern campuses in relation to those prospective buildings at the University of Oregon. On May 20, there will be a meeting of the representatives of collegiate schools of architecture as a branch of the institute. Dean Lawrence will give a report to the sub-committee on education in his capacity as chairman. He is also a member of the committee on industrial relations. The institute proper meets May 21, 22, 23 and 24. "What is Precedure?" will be American Architecture?" doing to American Architecture?" will be a paper by Professor Wilcox for the institute. On the return trip in the course of a month or so, Dean Lawrence will visit the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston, Columbia University, Harvard, and Boudoin college, where he will look over the museum installation in its relation to the Oregon campus. Museum installations will be investigated by the dean in other places: the Museum of Natural History and the Metropolitan museum in New York, the Boston museum, the Freer gallery in Washington, the Art Institute and the Field museum in Chicago. Following the meeting of the institute he will meet Mrs. Lawrence in the east, and they will return together. During his trip, Dean Lawrence has been asked to address the Philadelphia Building Congress.

Carter's Lunch Box has decided to take out most of the stools. The freshmen all insisted on eating standing up last night.

The police say that some of the fellows who got painted yesterday were not students. They even came up to the campus to see about it.

At any rate, the "O" has a bright and shining surface.

Both line and dot markings may be used, either alone or in combination with the above limitations, provided all rough or raised edges are removed."

"Oh Boy! That's Just Right"

"Mothers for Tomorrow"

The past is past. Through mothers flows the tide of life from generation to generation. Tied by habit and social custom to their own generation, mothers have the difficult task of visioning the future sufficiently to train their children for new and untried experiments.

Just now, when so much seems chaotic in the social system, when many of the old customs and moralities of the past seem fading away, the problem is peculiarly difficult. The old type of politics, the old-fashioned traditions of religion and, indeed, the whole social fabric appears to be shifting. How shall the mothers of the present be at the same time mothers for tomorrow?

Such is the question which will form the basis of sermon of the Rev. Frank Fay Eddy Sunday morning at the Unitarian church.

The soloists in the musical program will be Robert McKnight, vocalist, and Nina Warnoch, violinist.

A cordial invitation is always extended University men and women to attend the services of this church. The Morning Service begins at 10:45 o'clock.

It is the little brown church on East Eleventh Avenue where the "Wayide Pulpit" preaches every day. Its members like to call it "The Little Church of the Human Spirit."
