OREGON TO MEET AGGIE TOSSERS

Varsity Nine in Good Shape for Attempt to Reverse
Count With Beaver Men

GAME IS AT CORVALLIS

Reinhart's Men Must Down
O. A. C. to Keep in Race
for Conference Pennant

Coach Bill Reinhart and the varsity ball tossers will embark for Corvallis this morning where the Lemon-Yellow nine will attempt to trounce the Aggies in one of the feature events of O. A. C.'s annual Junior Week-end program this afternoon.

Realizing that they must defeat the Beavers in both games this weekend in order to have any chance for the Northwest conference pennant, the varsity gang has been literally, as well as figuratively, "hitting the ball hard" all week in preparation for a desperate attempt to reverse the order of the two previous defeats by the Corvallis contingent. Coach Reinhart's proteges have engaged in hard-fought games with the frosh each night and in each tilt their showing seemed to indicate that a victory over Coleman's clever diamond crew is still in the realm of possibilities. The same brand of ball that the varsity put up against W. S. C. last weekend was continued in the frosh games, and in each contest the yearlings were defeated. Unless the unexpected happens, the Aggies are in for a real battle this afternoon and also tomorrow. At any rate, the varsity is in fine fettle for the contest.

Latham May Pitch
Phil Ringle or Hunk Latham will probably start on the hillcock for Oregon, opposed by either Tebb, Coleman, or Hughes. Hughes got off with a 9-3 win in the first game with the Aggies, but may not be so lucky if he starts today. The varsity stickers seem to have taken a liking to southpaw pitching, as was evidenced by the way they chased Otterson, the Cougar portsider, from the mound in the ninth inning of last Friday's game. The lanky Coleman also was credited with a win in his last appearance against the Lemon-Yellow, but he, virtually, was mighty lucky, as the varsity slammed him for 11 hits and had him in hot water continually. Had the varsity fielding been anything like that of last week, the Lemon-Yellow would have walked off with the game.

Dope Hard to Forecast
Granting that the defense is as good today as it was against the Cougars, Coleman will have trouble and plenty of it if he is on the mound for the Aggies. But the Beavers may start Tebb on the mound, in which case, the dope is hard to forecast. As yet the varsity has never faced Tebb, and he may prove an enigma. But there have been few pitchers this season whom the Lemon-Yellow stickers have been unable to connect with somewhat freely, so that it is unlikely that Tebb will have any better success than the others.

Aggies Are Weakened
The Aggies are reported to be weakened today by the inability of their first-string catcher, Faurie, to play on account of a sprained thumb. But, on the other hand, "Red" Ridings, their stellar shortstop, will probably be back in the fray, so that things are even up on that score. Ridings will bolster the Aggie hitting strength considerably, and it is fairly strong now, as Oregon outfielders can attest.

As for the varsity lineup, it will, no doubt, be the same as that which defeated Washington State, Sorsby, Terrill and Latham will take care of the gardens, providing the latter does not pitch. In that case, Wright, King, or Ringle will take care of right field. Cook, Ross, Bittner, and Hobson will cavort in the infield, with Jack Bliss behind the bat.

A Fitting Tribute

(AN EDITORIAL)

Friday and Saturday nights at Oregon are devoted to play by a majority of Oregon students. Even a great many of the most studious consider those nights theirs to use as they please in order that they may be rested mentally for the coming week.

There is one man at least in this student body who has not enjoyed that privilege this year. While Oregon danced or picnicked or read favorite books or slept on those nights of recreation, Claude Robinson, the student body president, could usually be seen bending over his desk in the little office in the "shack" making up some of the class work missed during the preceding week.

When people have to make up work it is usually on account of neglect. Not so with Oregon's A. S. U. O. executive. His difficulty was the great burden of work which pours into his office in connection with his official duties. Sacrifices of time, money and energy also have been necessary.

But Claude has given it up, cheerfully and without making faces or calling people to come and look at him. His work has been done quietly and well. A great many important movements which have been carried out on the campus this year have been the result of his planning, and in most cases someone else has received most of the credit.

His recent election to Phi Beta Kappa, which was a remarkable achievement, considering his outside work, and the high regard he holds in the minds of his fellow students, and especially those who have been closest to him, are two rewards which have come to him as the result of his service.

Yesterday his fellow classmates bestowed another upon him by giving him a substantial majority in the Albert Prize contest. It was a true vote of confidence for a deserving man. It was an appreciation of his splendid and self-sacrificing service to the student body that was unmistakable.

It is a fitting climax to the campus career of one who has served so well in the highest position the Associated Students can offer.

It is entirely fitting that the man who has held the position of student-body president, the highest place the campus has to offer, should receive the highest honor that a senior can receive.

The Emerald joins the entire student body in hearty congratulations to Claude Robinson—a leader, a student, but most of all a real man.

J. STITT WILSON TO SPEAK AT LUNCHEON

Three Dimensions of Man
Cited by Lecturer

Man has three dimensions, physicality, intellectuality, and spirituality, and the greatest of these is spirituality, according to J. Stitt Wilson, former mayor of Berkeley and well known lecturer, before college students throughout the country, who spoke last evening in Villard hall on the topic, "War and Democracy." Considering man in terms of mathematics, Mr. Wilson said emphatically, "You can't get a solid out of piling up plumes which have only length and breadth, and you can't get a man by piling up physicality and intellectuality. You will never know the meaning of life until you register yourself in your third dimension. You must work toward the ends, pursuits, reasons of life, and don't let anything cheat you out of the third dimension of your being," urged the speaker in great seriousness. It is neither the physical being or the mind that is the most important side of man, but his depth, said Mr. Wilson.

The speaker sketched the need of clear thinking and adequate definition in the world today. "What is needed," he said, "is thinking broadly, deeply, and clearly on every subject." It is a pathetic thing, he observed, to see the number of college students, particularly seniors, who do not know what they are going to do. "Life is undefined for them," was the way he expressed it.

In connection with definitions, Mr. Wilson pointed out the need for students to use powerful,

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL HAS LAST MEETING

Leake, Sophomore, Made
Emerald Manager

The final meeting of the 1923-24 executive council, held yesterday afternoon, with the new members sitting in, saw the appointment of a new Emerald manager, the re-election of the present graduate manager, and the carrying out of the usual routine of business, which included, this time, the formal awarding of numerous awards for activities.

Two candidates were in the race for the managership of next year's Emerald, but the recommendation of the present manager and of next year's editor swung the position for James Leake, a sophomore, who is reported to have done exceptionally good work on the business staff this year. The appointment has been held up for some weeks until the election of the new editor. The editor is responsible for the whole paper and his recommendation was absolutely necessary before the publications committee would make any recommendation to the executive council.

Jack Benefiel was unanimously re-elected to succeed himself in the office of graduate manager at the same salary he is receiving this year. The council expressed approval of the work which Mr. Benefiel has done, and in view of the large debt of the A. S. U. O., his policy of economy was commended.

In order to avoid any trouble over athletic eligibility, the council passed a motion to require athletic coaches to turn in the names of all men out for teams during

OREGONAS HERE; AT CO-OP TODAY

Year Book Ready for All
Who Pay Remaining $2;
Edition Practically Sold

1,500 COPIES PRINTED

Celebration Is Planned by Members of Staff Upon
Completion of Labors

The 1924 Oregoniana has arrived! Nearly a thousand copies of the eagerly-anticipated Oregon year book were brought from Oregon City by truck yesterday afternoon. Distribution will commence at 8 o'clock this morning from the Co-op and will continue throughout the day and Saturday. Books will be given out to subscribers who have already paid a deposit of $2.50 upon the payment of the remaining $2 of the total price of $4.50. In order to facilitate the process of distribution, Gibson Wright, circulation manager, has asked that all checks be made out before hand, payable to the 1924 Oregoniana.

Most Books Sold
Students are asked to call for their own copies, since no copies will be given out to other than the subscribers. It will not be necessary to present receipts, says Myron Shannon, business manager, for a complete indexed record has been kept of all subscriptions and the amount paid to date. There are not quite enough books on hand to entirely meet the student demand as yet and those who call for their copies first will be most sure of receiving them. Additional copies will be sent from the press on Saturday and at the beginning of the week.

Practically all of the books have been sold, Shannon announced, and those students who have not paid their deposits on copies stand a very small chance of receiving them. However, a waiting list is being made up and in case some of the books are not called for, persons whose names are on this list will be given copies. Fifteen hundred books were ordered from the printers and almost the entire number has been already sold.

Mrs. Warner Honored
The 1924 book contains 494 pages, which is 30 pages larger than last year's edition and one of the largest ever produced on the campus. It is dedicated to Mrs. Murray Warner, donor of the Murray Warner museum of oriental art, as a very small token of the appreciation of the Oregon student body for her generous and valuable gifts to the University.

"We realize that the year book is far from perfect," said Freda Goodrich, editor, last night, "but it represents the very best and most sincere effort on the part of the entire staff, and as such, we are proud to present it for the approval of the student body. We hope that it will prove a pleasurable reminder of a very happy and successful year at Oregon. If the students are satisfied with the book, we shall feel amply repaid for all of our long hours of work and effort expended in its production."

Oregoniana Staff Large
The 1924 Oregoniana staff was organized into an editorial board and section editors in charge of the various departments. The editorial board was composed of: Freda Goodrich, editor; Rosalia Kober and Taylor Huston, associate editors; Phil Bergh, art; Ruth Powell, picture mounting; Lester Wade, picture editor. The section editors were: Pauline Bondurant, administration; Margaret Skavlan, dramatics; Jack High, events; Lyle Janz and Knute Digness, feature; Marian Lowry, forensics; Frances Simpson, honoraries and clubs; Mary Jane Dustin, juniors; Katherine Watson, literary; Douglas Wilson, military; Paul Krause, medical; Junior Seton, men's organizations; Velma Meredith, music; Catherine Spall, publications; Augusta DeWitt, seniors; Kenneth Cooper, sports; Margaret Vincent, underclasses; Henryetta Lawrence, women's athletics; Margaret Morrison, women's organizations.

The business staff was under the direction of Myron Shannon, busi-

ROSEBRAUGH OUT OF TRACK MEET

Has Too Many Credits for Eligibility; Rosenberg's
Participation Questioned

DOPE AGAINST OREGON

Relay Team Weakened for Saturday's Dual Meet
With Oregon Aggies

Oregon's track chances took another slump yesterday, when it was officially declared that Arthur Rosebraugh was ineligible because he had more than enough hours for a degree. This is in accordance with a conference ruling, concerning which the faculty at the University of Oregon has nothing to say. There is also a question concerning the eligibility of Chick Rosenberg, which will be settled before the dual meet with Corvallis Saturday.

Aggie Team Good
Should Chick be unable to perform Saturday, it means that points will be lost in the javelin, broadjump, and pole vault. With O. A. C. turning out one of their best teams in years, these points will be sadly missed, especially as he is Oregon's only possible bet in the competition against Cram, the Aggie weight man, who won the pentathlon at Seattle; McAuliffe being the only other Oregon field man who performed in last Saturday's meet. The Aggies also have Sloan, Price and Eilertson to depend on for garnering points in the weights, for while these men are not record holders, they are hard, consistent workers.

O. A. C.'s best bets are in their quartet of milers, Walker, Graves, Butts and Mason, who are considered the best on the coast. Walker is last year's conference title holder and is considered a possible candidate for the Olympics. This same combination will be run

His House in Order Shows Clever Lines and Ironic Plot

By Margaret Morrison

Clever lines and subtly ironical comedy, rather than strength of plot or strong dramatic power, characterize Pinero's "His House in Order," produced at Guild hall last night by the University company. The play, while weak in construction and technique, succeeds through its sometimes obvious and sometimes not so obvious laughter at the expense of that much ridiculed institution—English aristocracy.

Patricia Novlan Byrne, taking the lead of the drama, Nina, carried her audience with her during the entire play by her kaleidoscopic personality. The fact that she had the sympathy of the audience speaks of true dramatic power in her interpretation, for the part of

ORDER OF 'O' BENEFIT DANCE ON TONIGHT

Sponsors Expect to Raise
$500 for Athletes

The Order of the "O" benefit dance, to be given tonight at 8:30 in the Woman's building, is expected to be a success, with 300 tickets sold since yesterday morning. Due to a mistake in the printing, the tickets are dated for Saturday, May 17. The correct date for the dance is tonight, May 16.

With another day to go in the drive for the benefit fund, it is expected that a sum of $500 will be raised for the aiding of injured athletes. The fund will be controlled by the lettermen's organization and the money loaned only to athletes who are in need of funds to continue their education after being injured in sports.

A new booth, built by H. M. Fisher, superintendent of grounds, painted green and yellow, has attracted the attention of the students and aided in the sale of the tags in front of the library. The committee wishes to remind the students that the sale of tickets is not merely to secure a crowd for the dance, but to reach every student on the campus in order that the benefit fund may be made as large as possible. Dating is going ahead at a rate that indicates a good sized crowd at the dance. Both men and women are getting the spirit of the drive and buying tickets.

The drive will be continued tonight until everybody has had a chance to purchase one of the green tags, which are selling for 50 cents each. Since the women, as well as the men, are being asked to buy, some of the campus swains are having an amusing time determining whether or not their partners for the dance have tickets. They are a bit timid about asking the question outright, yet are very much interested in learning the state of affairs.

A feature by Camille Burton and music by the Mid-nite Sons are inducements offered to those wishing to attend the dance. Mr. and Mrs. Dean Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Earl, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hayward, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Benefiel will be patrons and patronesses.

ROBINSON WINS ALBERT PRIZE

Gillenwaters, Winterer, and
Lawrence Head Classes;
Some Races Are Close

CARTER SENIOR SCRIBE

Freshmen Cast Heaviest Vote; Balloting Handled
by Joint Election Board

Claude Robinson was selected as the man in the class of 1924, who has made the greatest all around development during his University life, at class elections yesterday, and will be awarded the Albert prize of $25, which is presented annually at commencement by J. H. Albert of Salem.

Claude Robinson has been very prominent on the University campus, contributing much of his time and energy to the interests of Oregon. He is president of the student body, a member of Tau Kappa Alpha, Alpha Kappa Psi, Agora, and Friars. He filled out the term of "Dutch" Gram on the executive council last year and has also served two years on the varsity debate team. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Two Offices Uncontested
Ted Gillenwaters, Steele Winterer, and Russell Lawrence are the men who were elected to the presidency of their respective classes yesterday. Gillenwaters won over Marvin Cragun by a vote of 147 to 27, for the office of senior class president. The vice-presidency was won by Charles Jost, who received 120 votes, against Ed Warren, with 55. Pauline Bondurant will be the secretary of the senior class, receiving 164 votes in an undisputed contest. The only entrant for the position of treasurer was Basil Burke, who had 162 votes cast.

To Jeanne Gay goes the honor of being class barber. She received 104 votes to 67 cast for Shelby Carter.

An exciting race was run for president of the junior class, between Steele Winterer and Clarence Toole, Winterer receiving 110 votes and Toole 105, while 59 were cast for Joe Frazer. Margaret Jamieson was elected vice-president of the class with a count of 109 votes, over Edna Murphy, who got 86, and Betty Raueh, with 77 counts.

DeLoris Pearson won the office of secretary over Dorothy Myers, with a majority of 26 votes, the former receiving 148 to 122 for the latter. Bob Gardner will be treasurer of the class, with a count of 102 votes, against Orlando Hollis, with 96. The office of sergeant-at-arms will be filled by Charles Snyder, who received 102 votes, Roland Eby, 89 votes, and Jack Seabrook, 77.

Freshmen Show Interest
The freshmen showed more interest in the election than any other class. There were four men out for the pilot of the class, Russell Lawrence winning that place by a vote of 126 votes to 101 for James Forestell, his nearest competitor. Fred West got a count of 79 and Pete Brooks, 55.

A very close race was run between Elizabeth Beans and Esther Setters, for vice-president, Miss Beans winning by a majority of only six votes.

"His House in Order" Shows Clever Lines and Ironic Plot

Nina is not so admirably drawn that it invokes sympathy. Making the best of a weak part, Terva Hubbard, playing Hilary Jesson, bachelor brother of the insipid Filmer M. P., gave interesting variety to an extremely monotonous character. Elderly snobs are seldom interesting, yet Beth Fariss in the part of Lady Ridgely gave the audience the greatest number of laughs in the "comedy." Her part was so obviously a caricature that the audience felt secure in laughing at her every word.

Clifford Zehrung, in the part of Sir Daniel Ridgely, showed the promise of a future lead in Guild hall productions. His characterization was never overdone. Gerda
