The Kick-off Value

Ever since the Oregon students raised over $200,000 toward the five-million-dollar goal of the University gift campaign, the A. S. U. O. and Emerald administrative offices have been flooded with letters from alumni and former students congratulating the student body and telling of the great value of the campus success in inspiring alumni workers to greater efforts for their Alma Mater.

It was one of the main arguments of the Student Union solicitors that the raising of the Union fund would mean a million dollars worth of impetus to the main gift campaign. Although the campus campaign has been over for only a few weeks this argument has been proved entirely sound.

Every town or city, where Oregon graduates reside, has heard of the remarkable accomplishment of Oregon students. What Oregon did during that week, ending April 26, was one of the main topics of discussion at every one of the alumni banquets which were held recently to promote the gift campaign. The dollars of students are producing thousands more for a greater Oregon, just as the Union campaign chiefs promised they would.

Back in New York city the message of the campus success helped inspire a large gathering of former Oregonians. The following letter from Allen Eaton, '02, to Claude Robinson, president of the Associated Students, gives some idea of what the alumni there are doing and of the interest which graduates of Oregon take in the activities on their home campus.

"... Your welcome message came in good time and was read at the dinner.

"As chairman of the Metropolitan District, including New York city and environs, I would like to extend the warmest congratulations of the former Oregon students here for the splendid and inspiring record of pledges by the present students of the University. We are as proud of what you have done as we are anxious to make a good record ourselves.

"Would you mind doing me a favor? Would you tell the folks that run the Oregon Emerald that it is one of the best edited college publications that I see. Then will you tell the Old Oregon staff that this publication is the best thing that has ever happened to Oregon alumni.

"As to the campaign, I wish I could tell you how essential to its success I think are such a student-body and such campus publications.

"Our reunion of fifty-one former Oregon students is quite the largest ever held here, but not the largest that we will hold. There are former students as far back as 1887 (Miss Philura Murch) and as recent as 1923 (Miss Alberta Potter).

"In addition to other telegrams to various alumni meetings, we have sent an expression of appreciation to Mrs. Fanny Garrison Villard, whose husband, Henry Villard, was, and still is, the outstanding benefactor of the University of Oregon. Mrs. Villard, who is well and active, has just written our committee: 'The Oregon telegram surprises and delights me and will deeply gratify my sons when they see it. The good that men do sometimes lives after them, but Mr. Villard seldom, if ever, had so great a reward for a kindly act as from the Oregon University at Eugene. That his wife and children are permitted to have so large a share in it gives them great joy.'

The Student Union building will mean much to the campus but it can never have the value, in itself, of the spirit which was created in raising the money to erect it.

The Emerald Aisle

By Enigma

One of the most acceptable largesses which could be bestowed upon a column manufacturer is some sort of a diagnostic like the following one that pulled itself under my door the other day.

To the Editor:
Sir, I am sure that you will sympathize with me in my deplorable condition. Were you ever at a loss for a word to express your feelings? That is my situation.

Word after word is passing through my mind and so it is time that I use one of them or they will be gone and with them my purpose.

The word I have chosen is "obnoxious." As you can see, it is not a pretty word, but is, however, more or less capable of expressing that which I am about to say.

In other words, it is most descriptive of your "Emerald Aisle." Really, sir, the taste left in my mind after reading your column was nothing if not dark brown.

Your driver is a bad reproduction of the acrimonious harangue of the United League of Neighborhood Mothers and Scandal Mongers.

DAY BY DAY, YOU ARE HARRASSING YOUR READERS BY CONTINUAL DIATRIBICAL TWADDLE. IT WOULD BE BETTER FOR SOCIETY WERE YOUR MENTALITY ALTOGETHER INERT.

When I read your column, it immediately becomes as clear to me as the inexpressive titterings of a conclave of grimalkins on a high-board fence.

Then, sir, I have come to the conclusion that you have contracted some disease of the mind—have perhaps been the unfortunate target for some brain-storm. And so, sir, would you be so kind as to call at my office some time before you have another column published. I think I may, perhaps, find some panacea in my medicine chest which will cause a slight calm at least. DR. DIATHERMANCY.

EDITORIAL
To Dr. Diathermancy:
Why didn't you call me a dog, Doc, and tell me I had the canine madness of something? I must say your grievance is quite pert if not perter.

Your didactical communication, as you see, was published and now in our future relations with one another, we shall recall to memory the age-old Ragnarok by mutually agreeing to retire to the palestra to have it out until one of us returns, a paladin.

At the Theatres

REX
Given a really dramatic story and setting, first rate acting, and a half-dozen big thrills, a motion picture is likely to create a sensation. That was just the result last night at the Rex theater at the opening of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," a Sawyer-Lubin production released through Metro. This is one of the biggest films of the year; it is a production that will live in the annals of the motion picture industry.
The cast was of superlative quality, including Barbara La Marr as The Lady Known as Lou, Lew Cody as Dangerous Dan McGrew, Percy Marmont as The Stranger, Mae Busch as Lou's companion, George Siegmann as the Malamute Man, and a host of others.

WOMEN JOURNALISTS ORGANIZE FRATERNITY

University of Wisconsin—(By P. I. N. S.)—Members of the journalism house, an organization of women students in journalism at the University of Wisconsin, have just incorporated and adopted the name, "Coranto." The name is taken from the title of the first English newspaper published in Holland in the seventh century.

The journalism house was first organized in 1920 to provide a place for a group of women journalism students to live and board together. It was the first women's professional journalism fraternity in the country, and Prof. W. G. Bleyer, director of the Wisconsin course in journalism, was active in its organization.

completed. The donor is an anonymous friend of the University.

The varsity was defeated by the Aggies 11 to 5 in the Junior Week-end baseball game played yesterday.

A new sorority known as the Delta Omega has been founded by 12 girls on the campus.

Cheating has greatly diminished since last year and the discipline committee has had no occasion to meet this term, according to a report issued by Dean Dymont.

Howard T. McCulloch has been awarded the Hilton prize.

UNIVERSITY OF MEXICO HOLDS OPPORTUNITIES

Americans May Attend 1924 Summer Session

During the past four years the University of Mexico has conducted a summer session, with unusual advantages for American students who wish to become better acquainted with Mexican life.

Courses are given in elementary, intermediate and advanced Spanish, in the history, geography and literature of Latin America and Spain, as well as in such fields as archaeology, folk-lore and politics.

Special opportunities are afforded students of the summer school under the direction of trained guides, to visit places of interest near the City of Mexico. Excursions are made to pyramids, volcanoes, monasteries, or Indian villages.

A tuition fee of $30 entitles students to register for four or more courses. Living accommodations can be obtained for from $2.50 to $4.00 a day. Special rates can be arranged for transportation by railroad or by steamship companies.

Mexico City is 7,500 feet above sea-level; the entire summer is pleasantly cool, and the air is invigorating. The university officials and the Mexican people are particularly cordial in welcoming American students and in helping make the occasion a helpful one.

Students or teachers interested in the 1924 summer session are asked to consult the nearest Mexican consul, or write to "The Mexican Consulate, New York City," or the American friends service committee, 20 South 12th street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

STANFORD GRADUATES 319 STUDENTS IN JUNE

Stanford University—(By P. I. N. S.)—Three hundred nineteen students are candidates for graduation from Stanford university in June, according to the final list issued from the office of the registrar.

The department of economics, in which 75 students are candidates for the degree of bachelor of arts, has the largest number of provisional graduates of any one department. Forty-seven are candidates in the departments of civil and mechanical engineering; 42 in the pre-law course, and 19 in the pre-medicine work. The department of English has 23 candidates, and the department of history, 22.

125 MEN NECESSARY TO KEEP UP CAMPUS

Stanford University—(By P. I. N. S.)—A force of approximately 125 men, drawing a combined monthly salary of $16,000, is necessary for the maintenance of the Stanford campus. Of these, 38 are common laborers, 13 are carpenters, 10 are teamsters, and the remainder are engaged in smaller groups in other occupations.

In addition to the money expended for employees' salaries, more than $40,000 is required annually to purchase supplies and equipment used in the upkeep of the grounds.

AMBITIOUS ATHLETE ACQUIRES STRAW HAT

University of Kansas—Murray Davis, pitcher for the University of Kansas baseball team, won a straw hat by the screw driver route this morning when he and his able assistant, Frank Rising, chiseled and cut their way to the hat in the large cake of ice that was on display at the east entrance of the campus.

The Lawrence Ice and Storage company had frozen the straw hat in a large 300-pound cake of ice as part of the advertising of straw hat day in Lawrence. They plan to wear it alternately.

JAPANESE STUDENTS FORM NEW ASSOCIATION

A Japanese Student Christian association has just been formed by the eight Japanese students at the State College of Washington, one of 18 similar organizations started in the United States by Dr. Roy Akagi, secretary for Japanese students under the friendly relations committee of the International Y. M. C. A. There are similar student secretaries for the Russian, Chinese, Filipino, and various other nationalities. Dr. Akagi has toured the country, visiting practically every large student center except Salt Lake and Denver, which he will see on his way back to headquarters at New York.
