The Emerald Aisle

By Enigma

The copy was late and Peter, my office spark, and I were busy far past dinner time. By the time we finally got started we were so hungry we could have found the abdominal capacity for even a college professor's brains.

So we waited down on the corner for the car. It seemed to us that we waited far beyond that day when they say the airplane will take the place of street cars.

Finally the old blunder bus came reeling and crunching down street. An old lady had been waiting there with us and so we permitted her to enter the car first because she asked it of us in such a lady-like manner.

JUST THEN THE 25 EMPLOYEES OF THE KOCKADERTZIG CORK-SCREW COMPANY, WHO HAD FINISHED WORK, CAME FOAMING UP FOR THE NIGHTLY CAR RIDE AND A CORKING GOOD CREW THEY LOOKED TO BE.

As the old woman entered the car she took a large sewing bag from off her arm and said to the conductor, "Really, I think these are the funniest cars I have ever seen. Back in Missouri, we get on the back end instead of the front. Did you ever try any of those kind?"

"Your fare please, lady," said the conductor. "Yes, I'm coming to it right soon now, mister. I thought I had it right handy here. You know my brother and his family live here and I just came out from the Missouri to see what kind of a wife he's got. You didn't think I was from that part of the country, did you?"

Now she took out a smaller bag—a by-product of the larger one. Out of that came her purse.

Peter and I and our followers were seriously thinking of resorting to cannibalistic methods of satisfying our abnormal cravings for food.

Twenty minutes of her past relations with mankind had this dear old lady related to the envious group now, as she opened her purse she handed the conductor a ten dollar bill.

AS THE PERSPIRATION FLOWED ACROSS THE DISCOURAGED LOOK ON HIS FACE, THE CONDUCTOR QUICKLY HANDED BACK HER $9.94 CHANGE.

"Please tell me when you come to Fortieth street, conductor," squeaked the old lady. "We do not go past Fortieth street," returned the conductor, "we pass only the streets toward the south."

"Oh, dear," she squeaked, "Why didn't you tell me this was the wrong car. I'm quite liable to be late for dinner after this length of time. I shall certainly report you to the company, sir," and she finally alighted from the car.

As for Peter and myself, we had in the meantime gone over to the corner grocery and purchased ourselves a banana apiece, the skins of which we threw directly in front of the streetcar. As the car started, we stepped upon the peels and were crushed by the wheels.

There's a fellow in Indiana who had the chance of a lifetime the other day. His mother had been married four times and they had a family reunion. He got a chance to talk to his four fathers. Most unusual.

Contrary to this comes the objection to the semester plan on the grounds that it causes too many interruptions in the work of the school year. Under the present plan, there is no interruption after in such institutions. For the purpose of this rule it is understood that "previous record" shall be interpreted as meaning the student's entire previous record in that or any other institution. Earned failures must remain failures on the record. Incomplete grades shall not be counted either as failed or passed until adjusted. A condition shall count as a failure until removed.

Throughout one calendar year after his first matriculation in a conference institution any student who is eligible for varsity competition except for rule 26 III (a) may compete in freshman contests, under the following limitations:

(a) So far as applicable, the above rules governing varsity competition shall apply to freshmen.

(b) A student who is an exception to the one-year residence rule shall not be eligible to compete on the freshman team.

(c) A student who has ever been eligible to membership on a freshman team in any sport in any institution granting the standard bachelor's degree shall not thereafter be eligible to membership in a freshman team in that sport.

(d) Freshmen shall not be allowed to play with the varsity men on a team representing the institution in any outside competition.

(e) No freshman football games shall be scheduled after the second Saturday before Thanksgiving.

In cases where colleges or universities violate the provisions stated herein, penalties shall be provided for as follows:

(a) Unless otherwise specified, the penalty for breach of any of the eligibility rules shall be disbarment of the student from athletics for one year from the close of the season of the sport in which he participated in violation of the rule. His illegal playing shall count as a year of participation in that sport.

(b) In the event a contestant has played in a conference game on any conference team and afterwards be found ineligible by the advisory committee, the game shall be forfeited to the other contending team or teams. The offending institution may, upon vote of the conference, be put upon probation for one year.

Section 26, article "j" pertains to the exchange of lists of eligible players, and reads as follows:

Certificates of eligibility signed by the registrar and the chairman of the faculty athletic committee, or other faculty representative to the Pacific coast intercollegiate athletic conference shall be exchanged by competing institutions not later than 10 days prior to the contest.

Said certificates shall contain each contestant's name, home address, preparatory school and college, if transferred, and number of years in residence, and number of seasons of participation in that sport, also certification of eligibility under each and every clause of these rules and regulations. Together with the general eligibility list from each institution shall go a statement of what remunerative occupation each certified member may be engaged in or expects to be engaged in during the college year, together with amount of time and wage per hour.

The eligibility certificate is arranged in columns, each column headed as follows: (1) Name, (2) home address, (3) preparatory school, (4) transferred from, (5) date first registered, (6) date last registered, (7) credit at entrance, (8) years registration to date, (9) hours passed, (10) hours failed, (11) hours in normal curriculum, (12) hours passed last quarter, (13) hours registered now, (14) seasons of participation, (15) remunerative occupation, (16) employer, (17) hours per week, (18) wage per hour.

The information in columns 1, 2, 3, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 is supplied by the student whose eligibility is being determined. The information in columns 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13 is taken from the student's record at the registrar's office. The accuracy of this information is certified to by the registrar.

When all of the information required for the eligibility certificate has been assembled and properly certified to by the registrar, it is then taken to the chairman of the faculty athletic committee, who generally rules out the name of the athlete who does not meet the eligibility requirement.

In case he should inadvertently certify to a man who is ineligible, it is still within the province of the secretary of the conference to remove the name, or it is within the province of any other member of the coast conference to raise the question of the eligibility of an athlete miscertified to. The information on the eligibility certificate is the athlete's complete record and is open to the scrutiny of all members of the conference.

In conclusion it might be said that each member of the conference files the same kind of a certificate of eligibility which is certified to by the registrar and the chairman of the faculty athletic committee, which certificate contains the complete and accurate record of the student in college. This certificate of eligibility is not an innovation, it is uniform, is sent out and received by all members of the conference.

Hail to the Scholar!

With the granting of a Phi Beta Kappa chapter to the campus, last year, and with the new grade-point system working out successfully, the student is at last coming into his own.

It has always been rather paradoxical up to this time that the good student in an institution, which has as its main function the dissemination of learning, has received much less credit than the most lowly athlete in the smallest of minor sports. It was not many years ago, in fact, that brilliant students were looked upon as freaks. Ever to mention classes or study, except during examination week, immediately labelled one as a grind.

Nowadays it is different. In addition to receiving the deeper benefits of scholastic accomplishments, which always go to a student by virtue of his labor and which is not added to or detracted from by what anyone else thinks about it, scholars are now recognized by their fellows, with much the same admiration that the successful athlete used to receive.

To possess a Phi Beta Kappa key, or even to be on the scholastic honor roll for a term or two, is rating as much public attention, and means as much to the successful student, as a University sports letter does to an athlete. It is gratifying to know that before a man can win a University letter he must have come up to certain scholastic standards. There is not always justice in the working out of the eligibility rules, but the fundamental idea is a good one.

Public recognition for either athletics or scholastic attainment does not guarantee success in life away from the campus. In fact, there are notable instances every year of campus leaders who are comparative failures after graduation.

No amount of recognition can replace the work which will be necessary to reach the top of the world outside the campus.

The type of people who were honored with election to Phi Beta Kappa, this year, shows that Oregon is producing a large group of students who have been able to do well in their studies as well as serving their fellows in campus activity. This means well-rounded personalities and indicates that a great many of them should be able to attain worth-while things in the years to come.

Examination schedules are just out, reminding the campus that the days of reckoning are again just around the corner—in fact June 11, the beginning of the end, is just three weeks from today. Good weather and the unusually large amount of activity on the campus has caused a distinct slowing down of scholastic endeavor. Leaders in the Student Union campaign were assured that they would be given some special consideration on account of the time they spent in "kicking off" the Gift Campaign. The drive cannot excuse more than a small part of the spring-term delinquency, however, and many students have hard work ahead if they wish to make a creditable showing for the term.

On the front page of this issue is a statement from the athletic director concerning eligibility rules for athletes. Oregon athletes are subject to the same rules as other members of the Conference. Students who are interested in the athletic situation should read what Mr. Earl has to say.
