

HOME COMING HEADS NAMED

Tom Robertson Will Assist Chairman, Luella Hausler Is Recording Secretary

MANY GRADS EXPECTED

Harmony Between Workers Is Aim of Directorate; Plan is on Large Scale

With the appointment of the Directorate today, plans are swinging into shape for a most successful Homecoming.

Tom Robertson has been named assistant Homecoming chairman, following the plan adopted last year, to assist the chairman, Jack High; and Luella Hausler, has been appointed secretary, to care for all the records, and appointments in general.

"The prevalent idea in the directorate appointments this year, was that of harmony. We anticipate that the 1924 Homecoming will be a decided success, and that is our ideal," said High, the general chairman.

Alumni Interest High

"We expect a larger attendance this year than ever before, and preparations are being made to receive a larger crowd. This is due to increased alumni interests and a large number of University of Washington students who are coming down. Everything is to be carried out on a larger scale and we expect the feature and naturalization events to be especially interesting."

Committee Heads Appointed

The Directorate will consist of Joe Frazer, who will have charge of the dance; Junior Seton, who heads the publicity committee; Fred Martin, who will direct the rally; Rodney Keating, who is to have charge of the naturalization ceremonies, and Dean Dymont, who is ex-officio on the naturalization committee; Carl Dahl is head of the welcoming committee; Hal Lundberg will take charge of the rooms and accommodations; Cybert McClellan and his committee will be responsible for the noise parade; Ed Bohman will direct the features; Lewis Carlson heads the committee on field decorations; and Marguerite McCabe will have charge of the campus luncheon.

The idea of the Directorate is to keep the big idea of Homecoming in everyone's mind and make sure that the work is tending in the right direction. The various committees, which will be announced in Wednesday's Emerald, will take charge of all the details.

RANDALL JONES TALKS BEFORE OREGON CLUB

At a meeting of the men's Oregon club last night in the lounge room of the Woman's building, Randall Jones, president of the A. S. U. O., pledged his support to the organization and spoke of the advisability of keeping together men not affiliated with any other organization on the campus, and in this way helping to keep alive the famous "Oregon Spirit."

After a short talk by Jones the meeting was turned into an informal discussion group and Jones met and talked personally with the members on various current campus topics. In an informal discussion the members expressed themselves in favor of the elevation of the freshman presidency.

It was agreed that the next meeting of the club would be next Monday evening at the Anchorage. About thirty members were present.

SPECIAL WORK TAKEN UP IN BOTANY DEPARTMENT

Special work is being taken up in the botany department, according to Dr. Sweetser. Study is to be made of an organism found in canneries that causes a skin poisoning resulting in the loss of the nails. This organism has been isolated by Dr. Thienes of the school of medicine and the investigation is also to be taken of a bacterium that spoils canned goods, especially in the local plant.

Yell King Urges Freshmen to Learn All Yells and Songs

"We want every freshman in the University to learn all the songs and yells as soon as possible," declares Fred Martin, Oregon's yell king. "They can find both the songs and yells in the back of the 'Hello' books which can now be obtained at the University Co-op, free of charge."

Martin also suggests that a good means of insuring knowledge of the songs and yells would be for each of the presidents of campus living organizations to personally see that every one of his freshmen are instructed about them. Presidents of the living organizations are urged to do this and also to see that each of their freshmen have one of the "Hello" books.

LIBRARY CONDITIONS AGAIN PROVE CROWDED

Four Suggestions Offered By Librarian Douglass

Disturbances and congestion, caused by the lack of room in the University library, can in some cases be avoided by consideration on the part of the students, says M. H. Douglass, librarian, who offers a list of four suggestions which will be believed will aid in making the library a desirable place in which students may study. These suggestions are the same as those made to the freshmen at the beginning of the term.

The library is usually more crowded in the evening, so Mr. Douglass first requests that the students be careful to observe the silence rule. He asks that there be no studying together and no visiting. The second suggestion is that insofar as it is possible, the students do their library work in the daytime. Not only are the accommodations better but the congestion during the evening is somewhat relieved.

Thirdly, Mr. Douglass states that there are some students, especially those who live in town, who are able to adjust their meal hours so that they can work while others are at meals and the library is quiet.

His last suggestion is that the students refrain from studying their own text books in the library. Last year, declares the librarian, it was observed that apparently from 30 to 40 per cent of the students used their own books or did their writing in the library.

The graduate room of last year is to be thrown open to the overflow in the reserve section, according to Mr. Douglass. However, as long as the regular rooms are not crowded, this room will be closed.

Graduate students are now being assigned desks in the stack rooms. Mr. Douglass requests that those who wish to have desks assigned to them make applications in the librarian's office. If the request is approved of by the head of the department in which the graduate student is registered, the privilege will be granted.

Students are asked not to apply unless they intend to make considerable use of the desks. Once a desk is assigned to a student, Mr. Douglass states, it is not available to others and it is his request that no desks be tied down by those who do not have sufficient work to make their privilege worth while.

LAW SCHOOL TO GIVE DINNER ON THURSDAY

The law school will hold an informal dinner and get-acquainted party Thursday at 6 p. m. at the Anchorage. The election of the president of the law school student body, a discussion of the honor system, and plans for future meetings and policy of the club will make up the program. Practically the whole student body has signed up for the dinner, which will be presided over by Dean William G. Hale.

SEVERAL HOUSES JOIN AGREEMENT

Plan Advanced to Provide For Strict Observance Of Frosh Prexy Support

PLEDGE IS ASKED

Interfraternity Council is Suggested as the Logical Body to Decide Question

With a single exception, all the men's fraternities have signified their willingness to make the frosh presidency a position of "respect and honor."

While a few of these houses agreeing to the general sentiment have made "reservations," the opinion is practically universal that the present custom should be changed. The objection advanced by the concurring house is one of practicability, the fear being entertained as to the ultimate success of the movement.

More Houses Agree Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Pi Tau have announced their position as that of agreeing with the twelve houses announced previously. Delta Tau Delta is anxious to make the position an honorable one, while Phi Gamma Delta is ready to help in any way to carry out the wishes of the majority.

Phi Kappa Psi came forward with a plan to insure permanency of the movement. Contained in a communication on the editorial page of this Emerald is an explanation of their plan in full. Briefly, before entering into any agreement they insist upon written pledges made authoritative through the interfraternity council wherein every University organization gives its word to faithfully observe the agreement. This is demanded to prevent "backsliding" by any of the organizations.

Council Should Decide

The Interfraternity council, a representative body of all campus living organizations, is the logical body to take final action on the question, according to those familiar with the situation. Any action endorsed by the Council carries with it a guarantee of permanency unobtainable through any spontaneous agreement among the individual houses.

Y.M.C.A. CONVENTION MEETS IN PORTLAND

Rev. H. W. Davis, secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., and Romayne Brand, member of the student cabinet, acting as delegates from the University, attended the convention of the Idaho-Oregon district of the association held in Portland last Saturday and Sunday.

The convention opened Saturday noon with a luncheon which was followed by sessions in the afternoon. President W. J. Kerr, of O. A. C., president of the district, acted as chairman and made the main address at the banquet held Saturday evening. Fred Lockley, of the Oregon Journal, also addressed the convention.

General problems of the Y. M. C. A. were discussed by the delegates at the Saturday sessions and college Christian work was discussed later Saturday evening and Sunday morning when the Oregon state student council met. Delegates from all the colleges and universities in Oregon attended this meeting.

JUNIOR CLASS MEETING TO BE AT VILLARD TONIGHT

There is to be a meeting of the Junior class, in Villard hall today at 5 o'clock. Reports will be made by Walter Malcolm on the coming underclass mix.

Final plans for the class dance to be held at the Campa Shoppe, October 17 will be discussed. Arrangements have already been completed by Maurice Warnock, general chairman, for several good features for the affair.

University Spirit Finds Voice In Slogan

'Home, Hello, Hit the Huskies,' Is Choice

"Home, Hello, Hit the Huskies." This slogan was picked as the prize winner for Homecoming this year, and was submitted by Dr. James Gilbert, head of the department of economics in the University, and an Oregon alumnus. He will receive two complimentary tickets to the Washington-Oregon game.

The winning slogan, according to the committee, expresses the whole spirit of Homecoming, the welcome to alumni and former students as well as the football game, and yet it is terse, brief and to the point.

About 150 slogans were turned in and it took the committee two days to pick the best one. "Most of those submitted resembled those of previous years too much," said Jeanette Calkins, the alumni secretary, and a member of the slogan committee. Others were too long to be used and many of them were in a sing song rhythm, like high school yells.

The slogan will be run across the front page of the Homecoming number of "Old Oregon," the alumni magazine and will appear on banners and be generally displayed throughout Homecoming.

MEN'S GLEE TO HOLD FINAL TRYOUTS TODAY

Twenty-five Men Qualify In Saturday's Test

The following men have qualified for the third and final try-out for the men's glee club and are to report today from 3:30 to 5:30 in the music building: Tom Powers, Tom McKinzie, Raymond Crites, Hollis Carey, Ernest Brokashira, Ronald Kretzer, Merritt Rodda, Leroy Stephens, Blair Alderman, Alvin Christianson, Vincent Hill, James Ross, Cleveland Robe, Charles Norton, Ward Rice, Robert Hunt, Raleigh Green, Paul Peek, Winston Lake, Arthur Gray, George Gardner, Frank Reid, David Foulkes, Frank Roehr and Reginald Heber.

The director also requests the following old members to report today: Dick Adam, Bert Holloway, Roy Bryson, Jack High, Charles Rhodes, Charles Dawson, Ted Larsen, Will Kidwell and Hal Lundberg. Today's try-outs will consist mainly of part singing and voice blending and for that reason old members are urged to report.

ABRAMSON MOORE AND BASSETT TIE IN CONTEST

Because the judges could not come to a decision between three men, a second tryout for the Pacific Coast Public Speaking League's speaking contest will be held. The men for whom this second trial will be held are Martin Moore, Sol Abramson and Bassett.

The first tryouts for this contest were held yesterday afternoon, and seven men turned out. After a rather heated meeting, the judges found it impossible to come to any decision as to the best of three aspirants. The date for the second trial has not as yet been determined.

The winner of this contest will be sent to Stanford, where the final meet will be held, as a representative of the University.

SENIOR CLASS MEETING

The senior class will hold its first meeting of the term Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 in room 105 of the Oregon building. Ted Gillenwater, senior president, urges everyone to be there. Senior Leap Week is to be discussed and other important matters will be brought up.

OREGANA EDITOR APPOINTS STAFF

Mary Clerin and James Case To be Associate Editors; Appointments Incomplete

STAFF IS REORGANIZED

New Oregana Office Located In Old Journalism Shack By A. S. U. O. Quarters

Appointments to the 1925 Oregana staff were announced yesterday by Augusta DeWitt, editor of the University yearbook. Since several of the members, appointed last spring by Miss DeWitt, did not return to the campus, a complete reorganization of the staff was necessary.

Mary Clerin, of Portland, who has been engaged both in journalism and other campus activities, was selected for the associate editorship. This vacancy was left by Marian Lowry, now society editor of the Eugene Daily Guard.

Staff Not Complete

There are still some appointments to be made before the staff is complete but as yet suitable persons have not been found to fill the positions. The entire list of staff members up to the present time is: associate editors, James A. Case of Portland and Mary Clerin of Portland; picture mounting, Dorothy Akin and Sigrid Martinson; administration, Sol Abramson; drama, Clifford Zebrung; events, Dorothy Meyers; features, Larry Riddle and Jimmy Leake; forensics, Eugenia Strickland; honorary organizations, Lillian Baker; juniors, Mary Jane Hathaway; literary, Margaret Skavlan; medical, Hilton Rose; men's organizations, Jack Burleson; music, Josephine Ulrich; publications, Jeanne Gay; seniors, Margaret Vincent; sports, George H. Godfrey; women's athletics, Norma Wilson; women's organizations, Elizabeth Cady.

Oregana Has New Quarters

The new office of the Oregana is in the old journalism shack, where are the offices of the A. S. U. O. president, the graduate manager, the Emerald editor and manager. This portion of the building was formerly occupied by the Theta Sigma Phi, but during the summer it was converted into two offices, that of the Oregana and the Emerald manager.

CAMPUS SCRIBBLERS WILL FROLIC FRIDAY

An invitation to "Join the Jam at the Jamboree" is being conspicuously flaunted in the journalism shack this week. Members of Sigma Delta Chi, men's national journalism fraternity, who will stage the annual event in the men's gymnasium next Friday night, are extending invitations to every student taking a course in the school of journalism, regardless of whether he or she be a major in journalism or not, to attend the jamboree.

The committee in charge of the event declares the jamboree will be the biggest and best one yet. It is understood that it will be a no-date affair, as it has always been. Cider and doughnuts, the traditional refreshments, will be provided, together with music by a good orchestra. A snappy news sheet will mirror the happenings of the evening.

The jamboree is not a fancy dress ball. If any one doubts this, ask the fellow who wore a white shirt and a stiff collar last year. The thing to do, brother and sister scribe, is to put on your most outrageous duds, slip down the alley and enter the men's gym through a side door. The older clothes you wear, the better your chances of winning the jamboree prize.

PLEDGING ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chi Omega announces the pledging of Mary Clark of Heppner, Oregon. Psi Kappa announces the pledging of Arthur Wade of Toledo and Carl Poetsch of Rainier.

Sightless Student Guides Blind Friend About th Campus

The phrase "blind leaders of the blind" took on a new interpretation yesterday when Ed Robbins, blind student in the school of journalism, acted as guide to his friend, Wm. J. B. Latimer, who stopped here on his way from Youngstown, Ohio, to Los Angeles.

Robbins knows his campus, and he led his sightless friend about the various points of interest just as might one of normal vision.

Mr. Latimer was a schoolmate of Robbins in the school for the blind at Salem. He later attended the Dankirth piano tuning school in New York, and has been tuning pianos in the east for the past two years. With his nephew, who is driving him through, he is on his way to California, where he may possibly go into the piano tuning business in Los Angeles.

REPUBLICAN CLUB LAYS PLANS FOR BUSY YEAR

Membership Drive Will be Held in Near Future

Plans for the activity of the Republican club of the University of Oregon were made yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee. The committee, of which the chairman is Waldemar Seton Jr., is composed of Mr. Seton, Mary Skinner, Margaret Vincent, Randall Jones, Don Woodward, Willard Marshall, Marion Dickey and John Morton Coke. Seton was appointed by John Hamlin of New York City, who is head of the College Republican clubs of the United States. The club was organized on the Oregon campus last spring, in view of the coming election. Arthur Rosebraugh was then chairman of the executive committee.

Plans have not assumed a definite form, but it was decided to hold a membership drive inside of the next two weeks. Membership, with no fee charged, will be open to all students with disregard to their political status. Blanks for membership will be circulated through all the living organizations and can be obtained on the campus for those who are not members of an organization. During the drive four-minute speakers will visit the houses to explain the various voting methods for students. The club will endeavor to have Senator McNary visit the campus as an assembly speaker, followed by a banquet in his honor.

Seton says of the organization, "The club will make no attempt to influence partisan politics, but will merely endeavor to make the students realize that as citizens it is their duty to vote."

Randall Jones, president of the A. S. U. O., says, "The club can be made a means of bridging the gap between life on the campus and the political system of the outside world. It should develop a live interest in the problems that we should now be preparing ourselves to solve. I should like to see the membership of such an organization grow."

Woodward, editor of the Emerald, says in reference to the club, "I think it is a good idea because it will get the students out to vote as American citizens should." "The students owe it to themselves," says Willard Marshall, president of the Y. M. C. A., "and to their country to vote."

ZOOLOGY INSTRUCTOR TELLS OF ENGAGEMENT

The engagement of Bertha Hays to Edward D. McAllister was announced at the Alpha Xi Delta house during the dinner hour Monday evening.

Miss Hays is an instructor in the department of zoology this year, and is a member of Pi Lambda Theta, Phi Beta Kappa, and Sigma Xi honorary societies.

Mr. McAllister, who is the son of Professor E. H. McAllister, is an instructor in the physics department. He is also a member of Sigma Xi, and will receive his M.A. this spring. The date of the wedding has not been definitely decided.

PACIFIC TO TEST OREGON VARSITY

'Dark Horse' Position Held As Advantage for Squad In Conference Standing

TEAM WORK SMOOTHER

First Home Game to Show Power of Line in Action; Backfield is Improving

A nothing to nothing tie with Willamette in Oregon's first game of the season, would not seem to be an auspicious beginning for this year's varsity, especially as the other conference schools have been snowing their opponents under by lopsided scores in their early season contests. From appearances all of the other conference members have even stronger aggregations than they had last year.

However, Joe Maddock is a pretty foxy coach, and he is one of the kind who has a card up his sleeve even when he seems down and out. To be true, he is working against odds in this his first year as head coach at Oregon. Yet the end of the season will not find Oregon tailing all the rest of the conference. Oregon is not doped by the other conference members as being dangerous, and this is a big factor in her favor. The Webfooters are now more or less in the position of a dark horse.

Team Improves

The team had not had time to get organized for the Willamette fracas nor were they in the best of shape at that time. They were really not expected to make an exceptional showing with a green team so early in the year. The varsity will have had two weeks of good hard plugging on the fundamentals by the time it meets Pacific in the first home game of the season next Saturday. Already a big difference is noticeable in the way the linemen are getting down in their charging, and working together. Saturday's game will be a test of the line, to show whether it has any chance of holding back the forward rush of the Stanford eleven.

The backfield is also displaying a great deal of improvement. Right now Maddock has two backfields which he may utilize if he needs them. If Jones is in shape he stands a good chance to start the contest at fullback. Although this is his first year of varsity ball, Jones is showing prospects of rounding into a real first class line plunger. Terjison is back in his old position at half, and although he also has been hampered by injuries, he looks to be in for a great year. Ward Johnson is the best bet for the other halfback berth. Louis

SUSAN CAMPBELL HAS NEW HEAD RESIDENT

Miss Fanny McCamant is the new head resident of Susan Campbell hall. Miss McCamant takes the place of Miss Helen Brooksmit who left school last spring term after an illness. Miss Brooksmit returned to her old home in Massachusetts and is now taking up an agricultural course at a school near her home. She is fully recovered in health and will remain for the next year.

Miss McCamant made her first trip from her home in Harrisburg, Pa., last year and spent a day on the Oregon campus after a visit in Portland. She was so impressed with the Oregon campus and the spirit which prevailed that, after spending the summer in California, she returned to Eugene and accepted the position as head resident of the hall. She will remain here for the coming year.

FORMER EMERALD EDITOR IS ATTENDING COLUMBIA

Arthur S. Rudd, last year editor of the Emerald, is attending Columbia university taking graduate work. During the summer Rudd handled publicity for the Pendleton Round-Up. He sends a plea for letters, saying that it is pretty lonely "way back here where I don't know anybody." His address is 607 Livingston Hall, Columbia university, New York City.
