

EAST UNCERTAIN OVER FOOTBALL

Marquette Causes Surprise By Naval Defeat

NOTRE DAME IS STRONG

Harvard, Yale and Georgia All About Even

With the first round of football games between the cards seemed stacked to give the Atlantic seaboard the best season on the gridiron that it has had in several years. The teams are more evenly matched than they were last year, and yet most of them are considerably stronger. To date no eleven has shown enough stuff to class it as head and shoulders above the rest of the field. No team can be classed as a soft spot in the schedule.

In fact several of the supposedly easy teams have turned the tables on their opponents with vengeance. An example of this is the surprising defeat of Gil Dobie's much touted Cornell aggregation by Williams. The Cornell eleven showed promise of a future strength and displayed dashes of real power on the attack. By the middle of the season Dobie's team should be bowing over its opponents in regular style, especially as the Cornell schedule is not a particularly strenuous one.

Marquette Strong Factor
The victory of Marquette over the navy heralded the rise of another gridiron satellite on the eastern football horizon. In 1919 the little school of Marquette in the middle west was composed of only one main school building and had an enrollment of about five hundred students. The growth of this school is phenomenal. Today the campus is one of the most beautiful in the middle west. There are a number of fine buildings and large athletic fields. The enrollment reaches five thousand, a tenfold increase in five years. The rise of the football teams has been steady until the victory of Marquette over the navy is an announcement that Marquette has arrived among the leading football elevens of the country, and has come to stay. The school draws a large number of its players from the Catholic preparatory schools of this country much as does Notre Dame.

Notre Dame Judged Best
Notre Dame seems to be the only team that can possibly be classed as the best of the field. Knute Rockne has turned out another of the fine elevens for which he has grown famous. Judging by past performances Notre Dame will have a better organized offense than the one of last year. The same backfield is back and there isn't another one in the east, and probably in the country, that can compare with it for precision and versatility. In Layden, at fullback, Rockne has a spectacular open-field runner and a wonderful punter. Notre Dame should sweep the field this year as their decisive victory over the strong army eleven would seem to indicate.

Big Three Even
None of the "Big Three" elevens have shown their usual strength in their preliminary games. The days when the football championship of the country used to be decided by the winner of the Big Three championship is over. All three have found it hard sledding in their early games. Yale is winning from Georgia, 7 to 6, and playing a 7 to 7 tie with Dartmouth, has met the stronger opposition. Tad Jones bids fair to win from Harvard and Princeton for the second successive year. Harvard has developed slowly but has shown considerable progress, and gives every indication of having a powerful, versatile team in the making. Princeton was humbled by Lehigh, but the Orange and Black came back to win from the navy. This is Bob Roper's last year at Princeton and so he will undoubtedly try to make it a good one.

The army seems to have a wide edge on the navy this year, and the scene of the big army-navy game in New York will likely find the "army mule" lording it over the "navy goat." In Wilson the Cadets have found a man to take the place of the versatile French in leading the army attack. Hewitt, the former Pittsburg battering ram is also a big cog in the West Pointers' offense. The navy has no backfield men to compare with these two in their brilliancy.

At the University of North Dakota, plans for the fourth general convention and publications contest of the Northern Intercollegiate Press association are being made.

CAMPUS SPEAKER PLAYED IN FIRST GAME OF BASKETBALL

Dr. Frank N. Seerley, Hygiene Professor, Also Former Football Star in College

In Dr. Frank N. Seerley, professor of social hygiene and psychology at the Y. M. C. A. college in Springfield, Mass., the University has been entertaining a man who is not only a lecturer of distinction but one who has made athletic history. For Dr. Seerley participated in the first game of basketball ever played.

This fact, known only to those who follow sports history minutely, was brought out yesterday during a conversation with Dr. Seerley in which the reporter and Dr. E. S. Conklin, professor of psychology in the University of Oregon, participated.

"The game of basketball was invented in Springfield in about 1891 by James Naismith, now of the University of Kansas," said the Springfield educator. "Naismith, Dr. Gulick and I all worked on it, and I was in the first game ever played on the floor. The first baskets were peach baskets with no holes in them, and the janitor had to climb up a ladder and take the ball out of the basket," he laughed.

"Later we cut a hole in the basket just large enough for the ball to fall through. The first baskets made by Spalding had a string on the side to pull and tip the basket over so the ball would fall out."

Dr. Seerley was renewing old acquaintances yesterday with Dr. Conklin and Rudolph Fahl of the physical education faculty, both of whom are Springfield graduates.

Dr. Seerley was lecturing in Palo Alto when Oregon played Stanford, and he saw the game. "It was a clean game," he said, "and the surprise was that Oregon played so well. Stanford was worried for a while."

"That reminds me of another football game," said Dr. Conklin, with a twinkle in his eye. "No telling tales," smiled Dr. Seerley.

"You made the only touchdown against Harvard that year," Dr. Conklin recalled.

"Yes, I was associated with Alonzo Stagg (now coach at the University of Chicago) on the team for two years. He played right half and I played fullback. I played for three years and coached for five more," said the doctor, who, with his broad shoulders and keen, youthful eyes, looks as if he could still hit the line for a yard or two.

WOMEN'S RIFLE TEAMS WILL PRACTICE SOON

Eighteen Houses Enter Race For Shoot Trophy

The women's rifle team is starting out with enthusiasm this year as most of the old members are back. The rifle team is to be under the auspices of the Women's Athletic association, and all competition and rules are to be supervised by them. There will be no credit given this year, but if the rifle team proves successful there is no doubt that credits will be given later.

All except three of the women's houses have given their consent to enter teams. Each house is limited to ten girls for tryouts. These ten girls will report in a body to the R. O. T. C. headquarters where they will have a preliminary tryout and the five girls having the highest scores will be picked as the house team. Last year there were only eleven teams entered in the league. This year there are eighteen teams entered, which promises much competition between the houses.

The R. O. T. C. officers are rendering their services and have made arrangements for ammunition and rifles. Arrangements have been made for each team to practice one hour a week, but more time can be arranged if the girls desire it.

The Women's Athletic association, through Captain J. T. Murray, has appointed E. J. Spenser of the Alpha Xi Delta house, to take charge of the teams and the girls individually. "It has been tried for years to place the rifle team as a class activity," said Miss Spenser, "and we hope that after this year it will be classed as an activity."

The holder of the cup must win it three times to keep it. Last year Susan Campbell hall was the winner and they will try to defend it this year. The contest will probably start early next week.

NEVA SERVICE NAMED SECRETARY OF W. A. A.

Neva Service has been appointed secretary of the W. A. A., to take the place of Mary Clerin, who resigned because her activities totaled more than 10 points.

Miss Service is a senior in the department of physical education, and last year received the scholarship offered by Orcheus. She is a member of Kappa Gamma.

FRESHMAN GIRLS WORKING ON HOMECOMING PENNANTS

Work on the pennants which are to be sold at Homecoming was begun yesterday with a considerable amount of success. There was a generous response among the freshman girls who worked under the general supervision of Mary Donaldson. All freshman girls in the University are expected to help and Miss Donaldson asks that those who are able come to the Y. W. C. A. Bungalow anytime today. She promises plenty of work for everyone.

VESPER COMMITTEE INCLUDES ROY BRYSON

Roy Bryson, president of the men's glee club, has been named by Randall Jones, president of the student body, to serve on the vesper committee with Jean Harper and Augusta Hamilton, whose names were announced in yesterday's Emerald.

The first vespers of the year will be held at Homecoming on November 2, in the Methodist church. The speaker for this service will be Rev. Fred J. Clark, of Waterloo, Iowa, who is lecturing in the Northwest on Bible conference work.

The choir has been increased by six or seven members, and the dates for the services announced for the rest of the year, although the programs have not been fully worked out.

HIKING ENTHUSIASTS TO TAKE JAUNT SUNDAY

Under the leadership of Miss Mozelle Hair, the hiking enthusiasts of the University and of the town will take a four-hour jaunt Sunday afternoon. All those who wish to go on the trip will gather at the administration building at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. The party will go out Alder street and hike beyond Inspiration point.

This is in the nature of a test hike. If enough interest is displayed by the number who have turned out, the local Mazamas will continue them. The group that hikes this Sunday will decide how often excursions will be taken in the future.

Floyd McKalson, chairman of the Mazamas, issues this warning. "Mazamas hike rain or shine and start when they say they will."

FIVE YEAR INDEX MADE OF OREGON JOURNAL

All Data Concerning State Listed Separately

A classified index of the Oregon Journal, covering the years from 1902 through 1907, has been completed by a faculty committee composed of Dr. R. C. Clark, professor of history, James H. Gilbert, head of the economics department, and Dean H. D. Sheldon of the school of education.

"Everything bearing on Oregon is listed in this index. It is very complete in its scope," said Dr. Clark. Copies of the index will be sent to the Portland public library and to the state library at Salem and to other places having files of the Oregon Journal for that period.

"This classified index of the Journal," he continued, "is similar to the one completed recently on the Oregonian, in which every editorial, communication, news story, and item in the Oregonian that had a bearing on Oregon from the first issue, Vol. I; No. 1 of the Oregonian weekly in 1850 down to 1909, was indexed. (It was not necessary to tabulate from that date forward because an index for the period had already been made.) So far the committee, assisted by the graduate assistants in some of the routine work, has spent three years on the job."

"When the indexing of the Oregon Journal down to the present time is completed there will be a most valuable tabulation of all the events pertaining to Oregon ever printed in the papers," he said. "The Journal, being a democratic paper, will present one side of the situation; while the Oregonian, being a republican, will present another." The files of the Journal will date back to 1902, the year the paper was started.

The indexing includes such subjects as: "History of Oregon", "Transportation in Oregon", "Roads in the State", "Roads and
