

BONFIRE, PARADE, RALLY TONIGHT

Sidelights From All Phases of Homecoming

By Lillian Baker

To Jack Seabrook, of the yell staff, goes the credit for the original verses to the song, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More," which were sung at the Homecoming assembly. They typified the indomitable spirit of loyal Oregon men and women who, undaunted by generous bursts of rain and strong gusts of chilling wind, from the forces of nature, defied the very elements to dampen their fight. Those three verses served, better than anything else, to show the characteristic will to win or lose with a smile, that Oregon possesses. Jack was asked to write the verses at 10 o'clock and one hour later when the assembly began, they were composed and two thousand mimeographed copies distributed. This is a record for fast work.

Professor Howe, who keeps up on the weather as well as everything else says that this is the wettest weather we've had since 1915.

The rain means that more people will come by train instead of by automobiles, from which may be deducted the fact that the welcoming committee can still use more cars to meet the trains.

Mr. Aaron Frank, vice-president of the Meier and Frank company in Portland, is the donor of 3000 cardboard megaphones to Oregon rooters. The megaphones, which will be distributed at the game by the Oregon Knights are green with a yellow "O" on each side, and will add very greatly to the lung power of the 3000 users. And indirectly, of course, add to the chances of Oregon triumphing over Washington.

The University Co-Op also generously donated forty special rosters caps to the R. O. T. C. band in appreciation of its untiring efforts to make rallies and other University functions the success which they usually are. These convertible caps are tokens to the willingness and real organization of the band.

Just to remind the alumni of two important things, which might slip out of mind in the general rush of things—registration in the Administration building on arrival and the alumni meeting at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

"Chuck" Norton and his Oregon Knights have arranged to have the traffic handled during the noise parade and for the game on Saturday.

Don't forget to say "hello" to everybody. As Randall Jones says, start saying it just for the week and maybe we'll get the habit again.

Homecoming is no time to let any former son or daughter of Oregon wander around alone. Every effort should be made to see that all have something to do every minute.

That silver cup is waiting to be awarded to the house that puts out the best sign. Tonight is the night they are to blaze their welcome to every returning alumnus.

The rain is wet, but not wet enough to quench the good old Oregon spirit, which is to make this the best Homecoming yet.

The campus luncheon is tomorrow from 11:30 until 1:30. The charge for this was paid in with your registration fees, so come and get your money's worth.

In spite of the damp weather, people are urged to see that their houses and grounds take on an air of festivity.

Oregon Primed For Bagshaw's Huskies

Varsity Is Keen For Tough Game

Outcome of Big Battle in Doubt; Oregon Conceded Good Chance by Critics

Gridiron Is Sea of Mud

Slow and Unspectacular Game Expected Due to Bad Condition of Field

With the Oregon varsity in good condition and keen for the fray, all indications on the eve of the big battle with the Huskies point toward one of the toughest games ever played on Hayward field, with the victor in doubt until the final play.

A continual soaking rain has changed the gridiron from a field of sawdust into a sea of mud and with a forecast of more dampness, the contest tomorrow will no doubt be a slow and sloppy exhibition of the usual fast and snappy grid game. Line-bucks and exchanging of punts will be the two features which will be decidedly in evidence during the afternoon.

Anderson to be Handicapped
Because of the probable condition of the field, it will be extremely difficult for Louie Anderson to make his usual brilliant twisting, dodging end runs. This will be a serious handicap to the Oregon offense, for Anderson is one of the main factors in running up yardage for the varsity.

The Washington squad will arrive in Eugene at 12:10 this afternoon. This will enable Coach Bagshaw to send his players through a light signal practice on Hayward field.

Full Crew Coming
Bagshaw is bringing a full crew with him for tomorrow's battle. Although, the Huskies played a pretty stiff game last Saturday when they met the Aggies, the coach is fortunate in the fact that the squad was not weakened by any loss through injuries. Both Elmer Tesreau and George Wilson were badly battered up by the Beavers; however, these backs are in excellent shape to meet Oregon.

Coach Maddock has been working hard all season, instructing his green material in the basic points of the grid game. Now, Maddock is reaping the benefits from the long hours he has spent teaching his proteges the fundamentals of the game. Maddock has finally developed an eleven that has aroused much optimistic comment. Many sport critics have expressed their opinion that Oregon stands a very (Continued on Page Four)

Phi Beta Kappa Elects Seven

High Averages Win Honors For Students Before Customary Spring Vote

Initiation This Term

Fraternity Founded at Williamsburg, Virginia; Now Has 99 Chapters

Seven students were elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholdrship fraternity, at a special election held yesterday. The honor students each had an average of between 1.39 and 1.66 for the entire four years spent in college.

The students selected are: Florence Buck, English, Eugene; Martha Shull, English, Portland; Harry Hulac, business administration, McMinnville; Pat Morrisette, English, Yakima, Wash.; Rupert Bullivant, law, Portland; John Rogers, business administration, Baker; Mrs. Bessie Christensen, education, Eugene.

The first six students on the list are regular seniors in the University. Mrs. Christensen, a senior last year, had an average above the 2.00 requirement, but since she did not have enough residence hours at the University she could not be elected at the regular election last spring. All were chosen at this time because of their especially high averages, since the regular election does not take place until (Continued on Page Four)

Students Appointed to Interview Alumni

The November issue of "Old Oregon" will not lack "dope" on alumni. A member of each living organization has been appointed by Jeanette Calkins, alumni secretary, to write notes during Homecoming week-end of the doings of their alumni. These notes are to be given to Miss Calkins, Monday, in any form, to be used in the next issue of the alumni publication which will come out about November 15. Names and classes must be correct. The following are the names of those appointed to do the work: Alpha Phi, Elizabeth Rauch, Margaret Vincent; Delta Gamma, Pauline Bondurant; Gamma Phi Beta, Alladen Scroggin; Kappa Kappa Gamma, Mary Skinner; Alpha Delta Pi, Beulah Clark; Alpha (Continued on Page Three)

Leader Gives Talk

High Lights In Colonel's Address

"Intelligentsia" is a pet name for a bolshevik with a shave.

"The only panacea for the red peril is the little red schoolhouse."

"There are two dangers in education—the production of highbrows, who are persons educated beyond their intelligence, and the danger of educating so many people to white-collar jobs that there won't be anyone to make the white collars."

"The whole trend of today is against tradition, against authority, and against culture."

"I am loyal to my native country, loyal to the regiments I have fought with, and loyal to my alma mater, but when I come to the Great Divide, before St. Peter, then I'll make my final registration from the University of Oregon."

Campus Clowns To Stage Stunt

Feature Cast Numbers Thirty

Travesty satirical! Burlesque ironical! Talent supreme! All these fail to give more than a hint of the feature which will be presented between the halves of the football game tomorrow. The best clowns on the campus, whose names remain a deep mystery—although there might be some suspicion—will pool their humor and originality towards making this stunt the best take off on student life, alumni and the Washington students, that has ever been witnessed.

The cast is made of thirty guaranteed all stars, who have been working hard to make this show something clever and entirely out of the ordinary. Ed Bohlman, is chief clown of the committee, which fact promises much; while the names of Willard Marshall, Jimmy Forestel, Eleanor Burtchell, and Florence Jones provide a drawing card that promises to please even the most jaded and sophisticated appetites in the college audience.

Students Will Not Be Allowed to See the Game on Saturday Unless their Student-Body Tickets Have Been Purchased at Co-Op, and they have been given a ticket with which to enter. This is the custom at each Homecoming, announces Jack Benefiel, graduate manager. Students have responded slowly in the ticket-punching and unless it is done immediately, there is danger of a last minute rush, which may keep some from entering the field.

Washington Rooters Have Special Train

That there is much enthusiasm over the football game at the Washington end, is evidenced by the fact that the trip down here, which is being sponsored by the A. S. U. W., is the largest of its kind ever attempted by the university.

Tickets for the special train which leaves Seattle at 11 p. m. on Friday, are being bought up rapidly, the cut rate of $13.95 for the round trip being an added inducement. The special will arrive in Portland at 6:00 a. m. Saturday, where two hours will be allowed for breakfast, and will arrive in Eugene at 11:30 a. m.

The special will leave Eugene at 11:59 p. m. Saturday and will arrive in Seattle at 9:15 a. m. on Sunday. There will be a baggage car for dancing on the way down and the university band is expected to supply the music. Besides those coming on the train, there will be many Washington rooters travelling by automobile.

Washington students will get the returns of the game play by play at the armory in Seattle on Saturday afternoon. Returns will start to (Continued on Page Three)

Two Groups Wanted to Work at Dances

Final plans have been made by the Homecoming committee for the entertainment of University visitors, and all that remains is to do the work of decorating and preparation, according to Tom Robertson, who has charge of lining up the workers. It is up to the students to make the plans a success, said Robertson, and all are asked to turn out and help.

Sixty men are needed to help with the decorations for the Homecoming dances today and as the freshmen are busy with the bonfire, sophomores have been designated to do the work. Upperclassmen are also asked to do all they can to put the work over.

The following 20 men are asked by the committee to report to Bob McCabe, Friday morning at 8 o'clock at the Sigma Chi house:

Final Program Is Decided Upon

Order of Events Will be Same as That of Last Year, is Announcement

Dance Follows Rally

Alumni, Coaches, Players and Others Will Talk at Big Rally in Armory

By Cliff Zehring
After a complete change of Homecoming plans for this evening, owing to the prolonged downfall of rain, which is giving every indication of continuing over the entire week-end, the final rally, noise parade, and bonfire plans were announced, late last night. The order of events will be the same as that of last year.

At 6:30 p. m. the bonfire will be touched off and the noise parade will start at 7:15, just as the huge pyre passes the high point of its burning. The parade will pass through the main business district of Eugene and serpentine its way to the Armory, where the football rally will be held. All women will be seated in the balcony and all men on the main floor.

Alumni to Speak
Jack Latourette, former Oregon football star, will be master of ceremonies at the rally and will present to the large crowd several old time football men and yell kings who have fought for Oregon just as the men will fight Saturday on Hayward field. Ed Bailey, Slim Crandall, Colonel Leader, Del Obertueffer are among the list of speakers as is also Maurice Crumpacker, who played on the same famous Michigan team with Coach Joe Maddock, and who is representing the group of Michigan alumni who are backing Maddock in the game with the University of Washington.

All Oregon coaches together with the entire varsity will be on the stage and in the light of publicity. The coaches and Captain Dick Reed are scheduled to tell what they expect to happen during the game with Washington.

Dance Will be Held
Following the program, a rally dance will be held on the floor of the Armory at which campus clothes and "no dates" will be in order. The Campus Tramps from College Side Inn have volunteered their services to supply the music and the rally committee promises a big time for all who stay.

The routing for the noise parade will be from Thirteenth and Alder, where it will start, down Alder to Eleventh, out Eleventh to Willamette, north on Willamette to Seventh, and thence to the Armory.

The parade committee asks that all noise machines have the name of the organization prominently displayed on both sides. Places in the parade will be given in the order of the arrival of the floats, and all (Continued on Page Four)

High Makes Statement

I wish to correct an Emerald statement, made through a misunderstanding by the Homecoming committee that it was necessary for a student to wear an identification tag in order to gain admission to the campus luncheon. This is not necessary, but only a convenient method to distinguish the three classes of people: the students, alumni and visitors. These tags may be obtained at the Library today.

The rain has dampened a few things for us but neither the spirit of the committee nor the cooperation of the students has been affected and the prospects for a very successful Homecoming are even brighter than ever. JACK HIGH.

Colonel Leader Glad to Be Back

Advantages of Education in University Outlined by Assembly Speaker

'Hello' Revival Asked

Colonel John Leader was the main speaker of the large Homecoming assembly yesterday morning. He expressed his great appreciation of Homecoming, and his joy on returning to the campus where he has so many friends.

In his speech on "Education," he outlined advantages of a university education and its benefits towards saving the country from bolshevism, as well as several disadvantages, which he believed to have been greatly overcome on this campus.

Event Best in Years

In presenting a message from the alumni, Colonel Leader said that they were returning to the greatest event of everything that the soul could desire in the way of graciousness and hospitality.

Randall Jones, president of the student body, who introduced the Colonel, told his connection with the University, explaining that he came to the campus from England, in 1917, to take charge of military instruction during the war. He has returned for every Oregon Homecoming since 1919.

Hello's Asked For

Jones reminded the students that, having undertaken the Homecoming preparations, they had to be put across, which meant that the whole student body must be on their toes all the time. He asked that each student make a special effort to revive the "hello" tradition for the week-end so that the old grads would not be disappointed at the disuse into which this custom has fallen.

Jack High, chairman of the Homecoming plans, also emphasized the need of student cooperation. "Homecoming after all, is only a big party," he said. "We are the hosts and the alums are the guests."

Dance Tickets Placed on Sale This Morning

Undergraduate tickets for the Homecoming dance will be placed on sale today at the Co-Op, and a few will be handled in each house. The price of the tickets is $1.00.

There will be complimentary tickets for all alums and Washington students which will be handled through Jack Benefiel's office.

Junior Seton's "Ye Pi-d Pi-pers" will play at the Armory, Al Clark's "Campus Tramps" will play at the Woman's building and Abbie Green's "Players" will play at the Campa Shoppe.

All underclassmen are expected to go to the Armory, while the alumni and upperclassmen will go to the Woman's building.

Emerald Work is Halted When Power Goes Off

"Where was the Emerald when the lights went out?" The answer is "Nowhere." Activity on the paper was forced to halt between 5:45 and 7:30 Wednesday night, when light power went out in the journalism shack, in Friendly hall, the power house and the Art and Home Economics buildings.
