

This Week: British Labor Party not defeated. Constitutions are obsolete.

American conservatives are congratulating themselves a good deal and deceiving themselves a little on the results in Britain.

Both Britain and the United States are struggling along with political machinery that is as out of date as a 1900 model car.

Bernard Shaw says that the alarming thing about the British election is that England has at last got the government she deserves.

Soviet Russia claims to be in desperate need of a loan. She had planned to get it in London but her chance is nil as a result of the return of the Conservatives to power.

A General Fascist Congress held recently in Rome, condemned the Masenio lodge, forbade its members to join the Masons and insisted that those of its members who already belonged should withdraw.

The Czar of All The Russias, Theodore Roosevelt, Kaiser Wilhelm and Premier MacDonald all taught peace by precept. Comes now the Kingdom of Denmark, by its Socialist cabinet, and particularly by Herr Rasmussen, Minister for National Defense, and proposes to abolish its own,—not its neighbor's, army and navy.

Japanese Exclusion Act is To Be Question

Tryouts for the girl's varsity debate team will be started next Saturday and will continue over the following week. Each girl will be permitted to try-out at a time which is convenient if it is impossible for her to appear on Saturday.

The question for the tryouts is the same that is being used in the doughnut debate, which is the Japanese exclusion act.

The varsity team will enter a triangular debate with O. A. C. and Willamette, and also one with Washington and California. Under tentative plans both debates will take place in February.

At the last elimination of men for the men's varsity team, seven of the squad were dropped leaving eight who are still working toward a place on the team.

Relics are From Interior Of South America A collection of Peruvian handicraft and textiles loaned to the University by Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. Smythe, University graduates who recently spent some time in that country, is on exhibition in the gallery in the Arts building and open to the public today for the first time.

Perhaps the oldest piece in the collection is a bag which dates back over a hundred years. An interesting contrast is afforded between the fabrics on which the native vegetable dyes have been used, and the German dyes which the inhabitants are beginning to use.

A doll dressed in typical native attire shows the wearing apparel of the present. A carved horn may also be seen with its legend on cup and horn, at one time used for carrying liquor.

Alpaca hide, llama hide, skin of a water cat from the eastern slope of the Andes, give an idea of the South American fauna.

DEFEAT OF HUSKIES THRILLS STUDENTS CONFINED IN INFIRMARY

Nearly all of Oregon's rooters braved the rain to watch the downfall of the Huskies at the Homecoming game, but there were three who were just as loyal that were not there.

The phone brought no message of further scores, so they again watched the rain, wondering how wet the field was and how muddy were the players.

Finally word came of the close of the game, and there was no objection from nurse to the yells they gave.

Just as the convalescents began to rest easy, in burst the father of patient number two. "It was the greatest game I've ever seen," he exclaimed, and they all agreed, but wished that they could have watched the fall of the powerful Huskies before Mighty Oregon.

Rumor Is False Regarding An Election Holiday

CONTRARY to several general rumors circulating yesterday to the effect that a full holiday for University students, all classes will be continued without a break, according to Karl Onthank, secretary to the president.

VARSITY LEADS IN NORTHWEST

Oregon in Race for Coast Title After Defeating Strong Husky Gridsters

FIGHTING SPIRIT SHOWN

Locals Go Through Entire Contest Without Making Substitution in Lineup

By reason of the victory over the mighty Huskies, Oregon is now resting in top place in the northwest conference and stands a possible chance even to win the coast conference title.

Only one man knew that Oregon was going to defeat the powerful Washington squad; Joe Maddock predicted a victory for his men several days before the game. However, after watching the varsity fight the northern team in the first five minutes of Saturday's contest, several thousand Oregon rooters were aroused to delirious enthusiasm by the thought that Maddock's men had a real chance to beat one of the strongest squads on the coast.

Fighting Spirit Strong The varsity team, with the same old fighting Oregon spirit, played the game, using every ounce of scrap and grit that they possessed. It was really impossible for the cool and confident Huskies to beat such a combination.

In the first half, when the Oregon team had their offense going at top speed, the varsity plainly outplayed the Washington team. In fact, Lynn Jones made more yardage through the Huskie line than any other man has been able to do in the past two years.

Not only in offense, but in defense, Oregon displayed marvelous ability. Five times, the northern team lost the ball on downs to the Lemon-Yellow gridsters. Once, when only a step from the Oregon goal line, the varsity held four smashing attempts of the Huskies' backfield to put the ball across. Thirteen times, Maddock's fighting eleven wrecked an attempted pass made by the opposition. Also twice, the Oregon line ripped past the Washington defense and blocked a punt, one of these blocked kicks accounting for the Oregon score.

Anderson Deserves Credit An outstanding feature of the tilt was the cool and excellent manner in which Louie Anderson ran the team. Anderson also deserves considerable credit for the speed with which he sent his punts off.
