

OREGON TO MEET VANDALS TODAY

Maddock's Men Will Battle Idaho's Team at Moscow With Odds Against Them

Leadership of Northwest Will Hang in Balance on The Gem State Gridiron

By Wilbur Wester Today may mark the beginning of a new era in Oregon football history. For if the varsity whips the Vandals, it will plainly indicate that Maddock has developed an unusual conference team. And should Oregon emerge victorious, it may prove that the varsity will probably finish their schedule in a winning fashion.

Unlike in the Washington game, Oregon is now going up against a team that is outstanding, due to the deceptive and baffling style of play of the Idaho aggregation. It will not be a contest where one team has the advantage of weight over the other. However the Vandals will have an edge over the varsity inasmuch as Oregon does not possess a "Sippy" Stivers.

Oregon Lead at Stake

Many factors will be settled in Saturday's contest. First, whether Oregon or Idaho will remain in the lead of the northwest conference will depend directly on the outcome of this battle. Second, if Oregon really has developed a team that will play consistently as it did in the Husky-Oregon tilt will plainly be brought out. Third, the superior power of a steady aerial attack used by the Vandals or the diversified offense used by Oregon will be demonstrated to coast college elevens.

Both teams are stacking up against each other with an equally successful record. The only defeat suffered by these two aggregations was at the hands of the Cardinals. But due to the better showing that Idaho made against Stanford, the Vandals will probably enter the arena as slight favorites.

Vandals are Powerful

There is no doubt as to the fact that Idaho has a more powerful and dangerous offense than Oregon, with the varsity however, rests the advantage of a really impregnable line defense. But a strong line defense will not be very effective against the Vandals who depend on passing and sweeping end runs to gain yardage.

Maddock and Mathews differ radically on their systems of coaching. Coach Mathews brings his team into perfect shape at the very opening of the season. This means that his team is in mid-season form in their initial appearance. This makes scrimmage unnecessary for the rest of the season.

Maddock on the other hand, spends the early part of the season in drilling his men on fundamentals and with the advance of the schedule his team develops until after the first two games they appear as one of the strongest combinations in the conference. The vir-

FINAL PERFORMANCE OF GUILD HALL PRODUCTION IS TONIGHT

The Spanish comedy, "One August Night" will be played for the third and last time of its present appearance at Guild hall tonight. Romance and love, and the urge of a modern young lady to express herself and her desire for freedom by seeking that freedom regardless of conventions, are the themes of Sierra's play.

The young lady who so impetuously seeks her freedom, Rosario, is played by Helga McGrew—Miss McGrew of the Continental air and the accent which causes her audience to gurgles with joy at her every piquant utterance. Paul Krausse plays opposite Miss McGrew, in the part of Luis Philippe De Cordova, the novelist who leaps through a window in search of his hat and finds a wife.

Young Violinist To Appear Here Wednesday Night

Music lovers are looking forward to the appearance of Miss Frederickson, the young Seattle violinist who is to appear in concert at Villard hall on Wednesday night.

Miss Frederickson is 20 years old and has been presented in the largest American cities and in a number of European cities where she has been most enthusiastically received. Not only does she have perfect command of her instrument and a truly artistic technique but she is charming in appearance and gracious in manner.

Miss Frederickson appears under the auspices of Mu Phi Epsilon, musical fraternity. Upon the result of this concert depends the plans of the group for bringing a number of other artists to the campus.

Tickets are on sale at the Eugene Music shop and by members of Mu Phi Epsilon and Phi Mu Alpha, music fraternities.

PRELIMINARY WORK IN WRESTLING STARTS

Oregon-Idaho Match Set For February 7

Work in varsity wrestling has begun with much enthusiasm. A number of good men are out for the wrestling team, and a successful year is looked for. Four lettermen, Whitcomb, 135; Wells, 175; Robertson, 145; and Ford, 125, are on hand to do their stuff for old Oregon this year.

A number of good men from last year's winning frosh team that are out are: Wingard, 135; Woods, 135; Fakuda, 125; Laurs, 145; and Christensen, 145. Perry Davis, a member of the frosh wrestling team year before last, is turning out for varsity and will give some of the older men a hard tussle.

"All men should be coming out at least three times a week to get the proper limbering up," said Coach Widmer. The practice of the rest of the month will serve to get the men in a hardened condition so that when the more strenuous practices are held they will be ready.

The real work will begin about the first of December, but all men should be coming out for the preliminary work now. According to the coach, more men are wanted out for the squad. Oregon's first match is on the campus with the University of Idaho, on February 7.

Wrestling is becoming an important college sport, and much interest is taken by other schools in this event. At Oregon Agricultural College more than a hundred men have been turning out for wrestling. Robin Reed, O. A. C. veteran wrestler and world's Olympic champion, is coaching the squad over there this year. For the last ten years O. A. C. has won the wrestling championship of the Northwest.

According to Coach Reed, this will be one of the Aggies' weak years and he looks for the University of Washington team to cop the honors this year. The Aggies, however,

WORK ON ANNUAL WELL UNDER WAY

Picture Schedule Plan for Campus Organizations Bringing Good Results

First Section Dummies in And Being Corrected by Upper Staff Members

Schedule of organizations to have pictures taken next week: Monday—Chi Omega. Wednesday—Friendly hall. Thursday—Delta Delta Delta. Friday—Kappa Delta Phi and Lambda Psi. Saturday—Delta Gamma.

Campus organizations are adhering to their picture schedules as well as can be expected, according to Augusta DeWitt, editor of the 1924 year book. Every available day until the week preceeding term examinations, a sorority or fraternity is listed, so it is imperative that every house be at the studio on the day appointed.

Last week, through some oversight, one organization was not notified in time to complete arrangements to have their photographs taken. There will be some extra period open today, and all those who were unable to meet the schedule during the past week can arrange for pictures by special appointment with Kennel-Ellis.

The photographs are to be much clearer than those taken last year, according to Kennel-Ellis, photographers, and Hicks-Chatte, engravers. A new dark blue background is being used, with a special lighting device, so that the individual figures will stand out with much more clarity of detail. Previously, a white background was employed with only moderate results.

Letters have been dispatched to the University of Oregon medical school in Portland, and photographing of the graduating class, faculty and members of the medical fraternities will commence in the near future. The studio in Portland which is to have the contract for this work has not yet been selected, but this will be decided in the near future.

Section dummies—a compilation of all material to be contained in the annual—are almost all in the Oregon office and are being revised and corrected by members of the upper staff. When this is completed, work on the final dummy will be started.

Y.M. FINANCIAL DRIVE RAISES SUM OF $450

Over $450 was raised in the financial campaign carried on by the campus Y. M. C. A. this year, according to Willard Marshall, president of the organization. The drive is completed now and requires only the final reports of team captains to get everything in readiness for collection of pledges.

The campaign was considerably more successful this year than last, according to the president, about $100 more being raised this fall. The living organizations were especially active this year in raising their quotas, all taking part in the campaign except two or three.

The money raised in the student drive will be used in the upkeep of the hut, part of the salary of the employment secretary and in bringing to the campus prominent lecturers. The remainder of the expenditures of the University "Y" are taken care of by the donations of Eugene business men and members of the faculty.

The drive among downtown business men, which has been on for about a week, has also met with success, according to Rev. H. W. Davis, campus "Y" secretary. Over $1100 was raised in this campaign.

Ancient Hammer Found, Humorous Society is Elated

The old and ancient, the half-forgotten and revered hammer of Hammer and Coffin has at last returned!

For two years the emblem of the national humorous society has been missing, and every incoming class of members has been vainly charged with the task of finding it. After hours and days and months spent in search of it, it remained for the oldest member—in point of service—to dig up the historic weapon.

Here's its history: One day last summer "Ole" Larson, former Oregon track captain, was passing the then under-construction Sigma Nu house, and noticed a burly workman swinging a huge sledge hammer, the handle of which was adorned with a half dozen silver rings. Upon inspection it was found to be the sacred sledge. Larson learned that the implement had been procured from the Kappa Sig house, and he succeeded in taking it when the workman wasn't looking. He stored it in the Delta Tau Delta house, where it was found by Kelly Branstetter, one of the first members of the Oregon chapter of the society.

Branstetter took it home, and there his guardians found it and relegated it to the barn, along with the rake and shovel. Discovering its loss, the faithful H & C man sought high and low until he found it, then carefully hid it away between the mattress and springs of his bed. There it is now, and it is to be restored, with fitting ceremonies, at the next meeting of the society.

DR. SHUTTE SPEAKER AT EDUCATION SEMINAR

Oregon Normal Professor Lectures on Religion

"We are facing a condition which many people do not sense, that is, moral and religious education," Dr. T. H. Shutte, head of the department of education at the Oregon Normal school, said at the education seminar Thursday evening.

"There is some attempt to force moral and religious education into the schools," he continued, "but there is more danger involved than there is benefit to be derived. I am not adverse in this belief, but the teachers are not ready to present it, and are not apt to be for a long time."

"Morals and religion are so related that it is almost impossible to separate them. The teachers have talked a great deal about moral and religious education, but they have not asked themselves what it is or how to accomplish it."

Following Mr. Shutte's address, Harold Benjamin, principal of the University high school, spoke on "Unrest in South American Universities." The subject was a problem which he did in research work at the University of Michigan in the graduate school.

Charles E. Fransen, who received his master's degree from the University of Oregon last year, and who is now teaching educational psychology at the Oregon Normal school, accompanied Dr. Shutte.

ALBANY STORY WRITER IS TABARD INN VISITOR

Charles Alexander, short story writer of Albany, Oregon, and editor of the Albany Sunday Democrat, will attend the Wednesday meeting of Ye Tabard Inn of which he is an associate member.

PROF. F. C. KENT, O. A. C., VISITS ON OREGON CAMPUS Professor Frederick Charles Kent, associate professor in mathematics, at the Oregon Agricultural College, was a campus visitor Thursday. Professor Kent was visiting his son, who attends the University.

Y.W. FINANCE CAMPAIGN TO BE STARTED MONDAY

The Y. W. C. A. finance committee will hold a luncheon at the College Side Inn, Monday noon, to start the finance drive off with a bang. About 35 members are expected, which includes all the workers in the campaign.

Eloise Buck, chairman of the finance department will start the program with an explanation of the drive. Following this will be short pep speeches by Mary Clerin, Mrs. Bruce Giffen, Mrs. Elizabeth Fox DeCou, and Dean Virginia Judy Esterly, members of the advisory board.

The meeting will be concluded with final instructions as to the workers, and pledge cards for use in the drive will be passed around. Florence Buck, president of the Y. W. C. A. will have charge of the luncheon.

Solicitations for the desired quota will start Monday, and, after the Armistice day holiday, continue for the rest of the week. The committee members hope to complete the work by Saturday, but if the holiday break causes too much of a set-back, the campaign may be continued through next week.

Game To Be Over Before Grid-Graph Opens At Villard

THE Frosh-Rook game is scheduled to start promptly at one o'clock and it will be over in time to allow everyone ample time to attend the Grid-Graph picturization of the Idaho-Varsity game at Villard hall.

Because the Grid-Graph will start a little later than the actual starting of the game in Moscow, the showing will be continuous, with no time out for intermissions. "Wear your rooters hats and give Baz and the frosh the support they deserve," says Yell King Martin. "They are working hard and we are all apt to forget them."

CHINESE COLLECTION WILL BE SOLD TODAY

Theta Bazaar Will Include Variety of Articles

A feature of the Theta bazaar, which is being held today, is the sale of Mrs. Franklin Barker's Chinese goods, which she has been collecting for some years, while living in the Orient. The bazaar is being held in the new Laraway building on Wilamette street.

Mrs. Barker was the wife of Franklin Barker, who was at one time a professor of mining in the old engineering department at the University of Oregon. Mr. and Mrs. Barker went to Canton University, where the former died. Mrs. Barker, who is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, has recently returned from the Orient with a large Chinese collection.

Other features of the bazaar will be the white elephant sale, cooked foods, home made candies, and miscellaneous bazaar articles. Articles for the white elephant sale are to be donated for the bazaar by mothers and alumnae, and are to include various wedding gifts, and other articles, which have been white elephants to the owners. "It is surprising," says Mrs. George Fitch, who is a member of the sorority, "how well other people like the things which have proved white elephants for some."

There will be a jitney dance from 3:00 to 5:00 o'clock this afternoon, and tea will be served between 4:00 and 6:00 o'clock. "It is to be hoped," says Mrs. Fitch, "that all the tea will have disappeared, all the dances will have been danced, and all of the articles sold before 6:00 o'clock. However, if such is not the case, the bazaar will last on into the evening."

ADVERTISING NEOPHYTES TO DON PRE-INITIATION SANDWICH BOARDS

Sometime during the coming week a quartet of sandwich boards will make their appearance on the campus in the interests of some worthy cause, and will be worn to, from and between all classes by four journalism majors; signifying that they are starting at the bottom of their chosen profession, advertising. The appearance of these boards will also signify that they have been elected to W. F. G. Thacher chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, men's professional advertising fraternity, and are undergoing pre-initiation discipline.

Those elected to regular membership in the organization are Frank Loggan, associate manager of the Emerald, of Burns, Oregon, Edward P. Koen, son of A. E. Koen, owner of the Oregon City Banner-Courier, Wayne R. Leland of Long Beach, California, member of the Emerald

YEARLING SQUADS MIX ON GRIDIRON

Dope Does not Favor O.A.C. First-year Men, Although They Have Heavy Lineup

Baz Williams, Who Coaches Youngsters, Says Eleven Is Ready for Hard Fight

Today the Oregon freshmen meet their ancient enemies, the O. A. C. Rooks in the annual first-year football classic. The game will start on Hayward field promptly at one o'clock.

"The frosh are confident, but not cocky," says Baz Williams, coach. "The boys are not certain of winning, but they are sure that they can go in there and play football every minute. Oregon has never been outfought, and never will be."

Doops About Even

The teams might seem to favor the Rooks, but it really doesn't. Oregon beat the fast and snappy Columbia eleven 7 to 0, while the Rooks lost 6 to 6. The fact is, however, that the Rooks made more yardage, on a wetter and sloppier field, than the frosh did against the same aggregation. Where the Oregon men have been showing up so far is in a headier style of play—and in the fact that they make less "dumb" plays.

"The Rooks have a heavy line, and they've got a charging backfield that we'll have to work hard to stop," said Baz. "Oregon's victory will have to come as a result of speedier work, and pure fight."

Plenty of Material

The frosh will not lack material for the tussle, for there's a man or two ready for every position. Hedges, a light man but a fighter, will start at center, with Kreiss ready in case he is needed. For guards Baz has Harden and Riggs, his starters, and Sautter and Keeney as reserves. Harden is not a large man, but aggressive, and for this reason he is to be captain tomorrow. Riggs, another light man, is a product of Jefferson high school, and hits, as the coach says, "like a 250 pounder."

Anderson, a big hard hitting Swede, and Mangum, a former Commerce high star, will get the call at tackles. Dixon and Del Monte are in reserve for this position, and both are well drilled. The ends will be taken care of by Woodcock and Pendergras, two teammates from Jefferson high. Not a yard of gain has been made through Woodcock this year, says Baz, and he expects the husky lad to keep his record clean. Pat Hughes may also start the game, and his future will depend on the showing he makes.
