"School History of Oregon" Adopted for Schools

BOOK HAS ILLUSTRATIONS Oregon Graduates Assist In Compiling Work

The state text book commission in its regular bi-annual session at Salem, Tuesday, adopted Dr. E. C. Clark's "School History of Oregon," a book not yet published. Dr. Clark, who is professor of history on the campus, was assisted by two Oregon graduates in history in compiling the book. This was the only book written and compiled by a University man selected by the commission.

"School History of Oregon" is unique in three ways, according to Dr. Clark. These appear in three chapters, one on the early Indians in the state; one on pioneers, and one on early government. The subject matter included in these three has never been published in book form before.

Subject Matter New In speaking of the chapter on the Indians, Miss Marvin, state librarian at Salem, said: "We are glad to have something definite to turn to on this field. Heretofore, the documents have been all that we have had."

The chapter dealing with the early government of the Oregon territory reveals some facts that have never been given to the public previously. This chapter is the result of the personal research of Dr. Clark.

Robert H. Down, one of the historians who assisted Dr. Clark, is head of the history department at Franklin high school in Portland. He has his master's degree in history from the local history department. George Blue, also an Oregon graduate in history, is the second assistant to Dr. Clark. On the cover page will appear, "School History of Oregon," by Clark, Down, and Blue.

Book Ready Next Fall The book is being published by Row, Peterson & Co., Chicago. The book will be off the press in time for the school year next fall. It will be a 300-page bound volume with 100 illustrations, maps, and cuts. The first nineteen chapters of the manuscript are complete. Chapter twenty will be completed within the next few weeks.

The state text book commission selected the book as a sixth grade text. It is written in a very simple, clear style. "It will be valuable as a reference book for high schools and colleges because of the new material in it," said Dr. Clark. Had the commission not selected Dr. Clark's text, one by Professor Horner of the Oregon Agricultural college stood in line as a second choice.

Reading List Included One feature of the book will be the list included in each chapter as an aid to teachers. It will include questions and reading references.

As a supplementary reading book to the text, Dr. Clark is compiling a separate text that will be published some time next year. This will be the same as any reading along with regular text. Experts say that this text is the most thorough and complete yet turned out.

Sandwich Boards Worn By Neophytes of A. D. S.

Majors in Advertising Begin Careers as Campus Criers

Hark Ye! Hark Ye! A jangling of bells—loud cries! Gaudy pictures, lurid with color—huge signs moving down the street.

This was advertising in its youth. Back in the old days men used to put themselves between two boards, and bell in hand go about proclaiming the merits of the products advertised on themselves, fore and aft.

Yesterday Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity, adopted this primitive method of the craft: for initiation purposes, and four men, pledges of the organization, wore sandwich boards all day with the usual accompanying bells and derby hats.

"Copy" for the boards was furnished by the theatres. The Heilig, the Castle, the Rex and Guild Theatre. The Heilig advertised "Married Flirts," and "Racing Luck," the Castle "Sporting Youth" the Rex "Forbidden Paradise" and Guild Theatre "Princess Bebe."

The men, who were formally initiated last night, are Wayne Leland, Frank Loggan, Arthur Priaulx, and Ed Koen.

Good Varsity Material Developed in Freshmen Squad by Baz Williams

Maddock System Used "Baz" Williams was the freshman head coach and he taught the yearlings a lot of sound football fundamentals which will help out a great deal next year when they turn out for varsity. He used the Maddock system of play and so the frosh will be grounded in that style of play. Pete Barto and Dave Evans were the assistant coaches and they worked with the line and backfield.

The frosh opened the season against the strong and versatile Columbia University team of Portland and they managed to pull out with a 7 to 6 victory over "Clipper" Smith's gridgers. The next team to fall before the frosh was the Mount Angel college team who were beaten 19 to 7 on a slow muddy field at Mount Angel. The big game was with the Rooks played here this year, and the frosh lost a hard fought struggle by only a one point margin, 14 to 13. This game was about an even battle, and the freshmen lost when they failed to tie the score by missing the goal kick after the touchdown made by Wetzel, who intercepted a forward pass and galloped 70 yards for the final Oregon score.

Frosh Lose at Seattle The yearlings played a good game at Seattle last Saturday and they gave the heavier Washington team a hard game before succumbing, 7 to 0. "Baz" Williams carried 18 players on the trip and he expressed himself as well pleased with the showing the Oregon frosh made. They fought hard but they were playing a heavier and more experienced eleven. The Washington Babes finished the season without a defeat and they played some fast

Red Cross Drive Starts Today; Representatives Named in Campus Groups

Rodney Keating will be in charge of the booth in front of the library from 8 until 9 o'clock; Don Johnson from 9 until 10; Earle Chile from 10 until 11; Bill Poulsen, 11 until 12; Ida Belle Tremayne, 1 until 2; Helen Armstrong, 2 until 4; and Virginia Keating, from 4 until 5.

Subscribers to Get Emblems Catherine Henderson, Gertrude Harris and Melvin Battee, will be in charge of the booth at the Co-op. Beulah Clark will handle the drive among the faculty members.

Attention is called to the fact that the local Red Cross has charge of the Life Saving Branch on the campus, and those who subscribe to the Red Cross now will be entitled to their emblems without further charge, if they pass the examination successfully.

Fifty cents of the membership fee goes to local work and fifty cents to the national fund. Everyone is urged to subscribe through the campus committee so the credit will go here. Those houses which have been supplied with the necessary materials will get them as soon as possible, according to the committee.

teams in the northern Washington region.

Wetzel was the most outstanding player on the frosh team and he looks to be one of the most promising candidates for a backfield berth on next year's varsity. This big fullback is a very capable punter and his kicks average well in all the games during the season. He can also pass and carry the ball. Wetzel hits the line like a catapult and with a little more experience should prove to be a valuable man.

Halfbacks Show up Well Langworthy at half played a consistent game and he also may make a try for a varsity position next year. Hodgen, Molsenbacher and Mokolosky also showed up to good advantage in carrying the ball on the offense. Behnke, also a fullback, is a good man and he was kept out of the lineup only by the exceptional showing of Wetzel.

Anderson, Dixon and Mangum at tackles strengthened the line considerably. All three are heavy and rangy. One of them will probably have to fill the place of Captain Reed on the varsity. Kreiss and Hedges were the regular centers. Riggs, Keeney, Harden and Sauter played at guards. Woodcock was probably the most consistent end on the team and very little yardage was made around his end.

Hughes and Prendergast were the other two regular ends.

Turner did the majority of the signal calling, with Clark as an alternate. Langworthy, Hodgen, Molsenbacher and Mokolosky alternated at halves. Wetzel was the regular fullback, with Behnke breaking into the lineup only occasionally. One of the best bets in the frosh backfield was Edwards, a tall, heavy halfback. Edwards is a remarkable kicker and is a triple threat man. He also should make a good bid for the varsity next season.

Rival Grid Systems Will Be Given First Trial This Week End

(Continued from page one) suffering from injuries in the Washington State contest. Provided no injuries occur during the next few days of practice, the Oregon team will have the same line-up as used in the Congar game. The Beaver squad is in excellent shape as the team did not play any game over last week-end and when the Aggies meet Oregon they will have had two full weeks of rest.
