Oregon Sybarites

THERE is an old Greek story of the people of the seventh century B. C. that applies with great aptitude, unfortunately, to the student body of the University of Oregon at the present time.

A man, Cleisthenes by name, had a daughter who he desired to marry to the best suitor that could be discovered in all Greece. He issued a proclamation, stating that he would give the hand of his daughter, Agariste, to the one who could prove his superiority in a series of games and contests which would be held at a certain time.

Agariste was desirable as a woman; the family, Cleisthenes was great and rich; so as the date for the games drew near suitors from many parts began to gather and to survey one another with appraising, jealous eyes—eyes filled with fight and spirit.

There came one who aspired to this honor, by name Smindyrides, of a people noted for their love for luxury, the Sybarites. Now Smindyrides was of good figure, young and strong, and seeming, at first thought, an altogether fitting mate for the fair Agariste. But a saying went about among those gathered that Smindyrides, while sleeping on a bed of roses, had complained on arising that his rest had been disturbed by a petal being crumpled under him, and that, while traveling toward the appointed place, he had declared it fatigued him to see the men at work in the fields.

As his people were fabled as of a land where ease and comfort were first essentials, it may easily be imagined that these stories were believed truly, and it was not long before the father of Agariste heard them, and was prejudiced in consequence.

However, Smindyrides was satisfied with the world and with himself; and he continued to lie on his bed of rose petals and to complain of fatigue from watching the others train for the competition. Need the story be told further?

Will Oregon win the approaching battle with O. A. C. while the students lie complacently on their beds of rose petals, fondly imagining they have but to stretch forth a languid hand and Victory will land flutteringly acquiescent?

Victory is not that kind of a bird. Victory is caught only by spirit and fight and the indomitable striving which comes from healthy uncertainty—not by Sybarites.

The Call to Arms

"THE CALL to Arms"—what a world of memory the phrase brings to our ears attuned to the roll of drums, the tread of marching feet, and the thunder of artillery. But—"it" doesn't take a war to make a hero," and the American Red Cross must carry on in peace as well as in war. The suffering of humanity must be alleviated.

Today the Red Cross call to arms is being sounded for the last time on the University campus. Students are being asked to give one dollar out of a year's allowance for the good of the cause. Said a great philanthropist: "I shall pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to any human being—let me do it now. Let me not defer it or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."—M. L. M.

Why a Fine Arts Building?

ADEQUATE facilities for the development of the fine arts are a growing need on the University campus. Realization of this need is the explanation of the canvass for $300,000 among the alumni for the erection of a fine arts building. Aside from a library the University needs a building of this kind more than any other type of structure. The Woman's building was designed for club purposes and up to the present time all space originally designed for such uses is utilized to house the University's priceless art collections. The space is utterly inadequate for museum purposes and must as quickly as possible be restored to the students for its original purpose. The Woman's building is not fire-proof; valuable collections should not be exposed to fire hazards.

The alumni of the state are being called upon to contribute to the fund for the creation of the structure. To Mrs. George T. Gerlinger, member of the University Board of Regents and chairman of the campaign, the fine arts building is not merely a vision, but a reality that will be realized as soon as each loyal son and daughter makes his or her contribution for the making of a greater Oregon!—M. W.

DEAN ALLEN HONORED BY SIGMA DELTA CHI

Eric W. Allen, dean of the University of Oregon school of journalism, was elected honorary president of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, at the annual convention just closed at Bloomington, Indiana, according to word received at the University last night from Theodore C. Jones, delegate from the Oregon chapter. Sigma Delta Chi has chapters in many of the universities and colleges of the country. It was founded at DePauw in 1909. The Oregon chapter was started four years later, with Dean Allen as faculty adviser and associate member.

Dean Allen was last year's president of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism.

HENRY SHELDON HEADS HISTORY ORGANIZATION

"History Club of the University of Oregon" was the name selected last night by the new history organization on the campus. A simple organization was adopted. The club set 21 hours work in history as a basis for membership. Scholarship will be taken into consideration.

The five officers elected are: president, Henry Sheldon; vice-president, Robert Raymer; secretary, Mary Griffin; chairman of the program committee, Elsie Dennis.

BETAS FORFEIT GAME AFTER WINNING 9 TO 4

Phi Kappa Psi Protests Use Of Two Players

Coming from behind in the last few minutes of play in a basketball game yesterday, Beta Theta Pi held a small lead of 9 to 4 over Phi Kappa Psi until the final whistle, but due to the protesting of two of their players by the Phi Psi's the game was forfeited.

The two men protested, Socolofsky and Reynolds, were held ineligible to play owing to a ruling of the doughnut league which says that men having participated in a varsity or freshman contest for this or any other college in intercollegiate competition is not eligible for the doughnut league in the events in which they have participated.

The game as a whole was interesting to watch. The close guarding of both teams held the score to a small figure.

Joy, of the Betas, was high point man of the game, annexing a total of 4 points. Reynolds, rangy center, also played a consistent game throughout but was held from scoring any great number of points by Hallin, center of the Phi Psi. "Skipper" Smith, forward, and "Swede" Nelson, guard, were consistent in their ability to break up the attack of the Betas.

Two games will be played this afternoon, the first between Kappa Delta Phi and Oregon club at 4 o'clock, followed by the Bachelordon and Kappa Sigma contest. These teams have been turning out regular for practice and close contests are expected.

INFIRMARY VISITING HOURS ARE FROM 2 TO 4 P. M.

Visiting hours at the infirmary are from two to four o'clock in the afternoon, announces Dr. Ross, of the health service. No one will be allowed to visit at any other hour except by special permission.
