FERGUS Reddie, actor-director who has made the dramatic department of the University of Oregon what it is, has produced, in collaboration with Perry Arant, an Oregon graduate, a fantasy, "Yellow Candle Light," by name. It will be staged locally in the near future and will probably appear in Portland soon after.

"Yellow Candle Light" is neither the first production of Mr. Reddie nor of Mr. Arant. Plays written by the former have appeared for long runs in New York, and have won national recognition. Several of Mr. Arant's musical compositions have won similar recognition.

The University is fortunate in having on its staff men such as Fergus Reddie; men with creative talent. From the purely materialistic viewpoint, it means much for the growth as well as the prestige of the institution to have people who are connected with it in an official capacity recognized as authorities or as authentic creators in any of the arts or sciences. To the University itself it means the difference between a trade school and a center of knowledge and inspiration.

Better Dig In!

IN THE Emerald of yesterday was printed the final schedule for the examinations for this term, which will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, December 17, 18, and 19. Wednesday, December 17, is just two weeks from today.

This term has been excessively crowded with activities outside the regular work of the University, many of which have seriously interfered with concentration on, and interest in courses. Such interruptions not only cause a loss of the actual time consumed, but the period of anticipation and the period of once more "getting the shoulder to the wheel" are passed at much less than normal capacity.

The fall term is generally a disastrous one to a very considerable number of the freshman class. In it the members receive their first taste of University work and they must learn to adjust and adapt themselves to new conditions.

They are allowed much more individual volition in the matter of studies and the manner in which they utilize their time is largely left to their discretion. Coming "freshly" from high school and familiar with high school methods of restrictions and direction of study their discretion often becomes badly strained, even negative in quantity.

With the added handicap of a badly disrupted term, the returns for this fall may easily show a much higher percentage of casualties than is usual.

Much can be accomplished in two weeks of intensive and really earnest study. Many of the gaps can be filled in that time. A considerable number of prospective "F" grades can be transformed into Roman numerals. A professor that is a little doubtful can be convinced one way or the other by the work accomplished during the next 14 days. Slangily stated, "Better dig in for the next two weeks and convince that professor."

"Bob" Mautz is the unanimous choice of the football players for next year's captain. Certainly everyone of the Oregon rooters who had the thrill of seeing "Bob" rise up out of the sawdust of Bell field a couple of weeks ago and nail that pass for the winning touchdown will nod their heads in satisfaction over the selection and say, "Good choice."

The Oxford debate is tonight.

ALPHA DELTA SIGMA MEMBERS ARE GUESTS

About 150 advertising men and eleven members of Alpha Delta Sigma attended the luncheon given by the Advertising Club of Portland, November 26. A program was presented by the University chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, national honorary advertising fraternity.

The program was two songs by Si Muller, former University student; "Cartoons" by Eugene Short; "Education in Advertising" by Professor W. F. G. Thacher; "Alpha Delta Sigma," by George H. Godfrey, president of the chapter; "The Advertising Club of Portland Scholarship," by James Leake; "College Training and a Job," by Lyle Janz. Following these talks, the fraternity members led the Advertising Club men in singing "Mighty Oregon."

A special feature of the luncheon was buffalo meat furnished by the government.

Vagaries

APT APHORISMS Melodrama is hysterical sentimentality.

One's greatness is measured by the envious and hatreds of rivals.

Those, especially the inconsistent degenerates, who bowl me out, should bowl themselves out twenty first.

W. E. K.

NO APOLOGY TO G. P.

This wise (?) frosh said I can sit

On the senior bench

Without breaking a tradition.

He mustered the bright-green gall he had

And led

A senior co-ed to the bench

And had her sit

And then sat on her lap.

W. E. K.

"I LOVE YOU," HE CRIED

"TIS YOUR HAND I SEEK,

"WILL YOU BE MY BRIDE?"

CONTINUED NEXT WEEK.

THE MAIDEN WAS READY,

TO HER 'T WAS GREEK,

HER VOICE WAS UNSTEADY,

AS — CONTINUED NEXT WEEK.

"I LOVE YOU—AH—YES—

BUT JUST AS A FRIEND."

THE REST SIMPLY GUESS

FOR THIS IS THE END.

THREE TEAMS VICTORS IN BASKETBALL GAMES

Susan Campbell Hall I, Gamma Phi Beta and Delta Zeta, were victorious in the first games of the doughnut basketball round-robin tournament which began yesterday. The scores stand as follows: Susan Campbell Hall 28, Oregon Club 0; Gamma Phi 7, Tri Delt 3; Delta Zeta 6, Pi Phi 4.

W. S. C. SOPHOMORES TAKE VEST AS CLASS INSIGNIA

Washington State College.—Black and white sweater vests bearing the numerals "27" on the lower left hand corner, have been adopted as the official sophomore distinction. Past sophomore classes have endeavored to find a class distinction that, in addition to being on the same plane with white corduroys and green caps, would properly distinguish the group and which could be worn by the co-ed half of the class as well as by the men.
