

GROUPS FORMED FOR DISCUSSION

Important Aspects of Ten Nations to be Studied

LEADERS ARE APPOINTED

Work Sponsored by World Fellowship Committee

Ten discussion groups, each of which will consider the most outstanding aspects of one nation, are being organized by the World Fellowship committee of the local Y. W. C. A. At a meeting at the Anchorage last Thursday evening, the committee under the chairmanship of Ellen McClellan discussed and formulated the preliminary plans.

Group Leaders Chosen

Katherine Reade, Maxine Koon, Frances Dodds, Genevieve Chase, Josephine Evans, Oneta Wirtz, Deloris Pearson, Gladys Calef, Edna Spenser and Beulah Smith are the girls chosen by the committee to act as leaders of the groups. The countries which are to be considered are not the great powers but others which are worth considering.

"We feel that people are bound to learn of the larger countries through the classroom, but they are not likely to learn of these," Miss McClellan explained. The countries which are to be studied by the groups are Switzerland, Poland, Korea, India, Mexico, Turkey, Italy, Norway, Argentina and Australia. Each leader during the Christmas vacation will study the nation which her group will consider.

The discussion groups will begin next term and they will be open to all campus women who may sign up for any group at that time. They are to meet at the Bungalow every two weeks at which time one phase will be presented by a girl appointed by the leader. Six papers will be presented on each nation under the general headings of: geographical conditions and natural resources; history and racial characteristics; social and industrial aspects; politics, religion; and culture, including the art, music and literature.

Leadership is Studied

The discussion-group committee, whose chairman is Mildred Bateman, consists of Dorothy Straughn, Mildred Whitecomb, Hazel Robinson and Maxine Koon. Under the guidance of the World Fellowship committee the leaders are studying the technique of leadership in order to be prepared for the work next term.

In sponsoring these discussion groups, the World Fellowship committee is attempting to arouse an interest in the youth of Europe. "We have in view the idea of sending a girl with the National World Fellowship committee to Europe to study the young people," Miss McClellan stated in regard to the purpose of the committee.

Meeting Set For Tonight

At the last meeting Maxine Koon presented a paper on "World Fellowship." At an early meeting of the committee next term Marian Barnes will read a paper on "The Youth Movement in Germany" all of which is preparatory work for the discussion groups. There will be another meeting of the committee tonight. Further plans of the committee will be announced.

Janni Myrra Tells of Customs of Athletic Training in Scandinavia except that they have more cheese, and milk in their menus instead of meat. He trains consistently all the year around with the exception of two or three months in the winter when it is too cold for outside work. He has a very simple system of training at home for the development of his arm and body muscles.

The Finns show great enthusiasm over track—much more comparatively than Americans—they concentrate their interest in track—particularly javelin throwing and distance running where we divide our interest among a half dozen different sports. In Finland the big thing is track. There is a nationwide interest in it. Being very small, the athletes all compete in one big meet and the winners are selected to compete against teams from Germany or Sweden and by that way they gradually work out to the Olympics. Sprinting and the other track events are only recently gaining favor in Finland and they are showing promise along these lines, according to Myrra, veteran of three Olympic games. However, the weight events, javelin and distance running, will continue to be the big things there for a long time.

Myrra is a big blond giant—6 feet, 1 inch tall and weighs 185 pounds. He is built lithe with no bulging muscles but with lithe whipcord-like muscles. A deep chest and slender, sinewy legs help him to put all possible snap into his throws.

"He is a director in a small bank in Finland. He, with Jackson Scholz, Ralph Spearow and J. K. Norton was invited to Japan to give exhibitions. These four athletes, three of whom are Americans were chosen because of their mastery of form in track events. Myrra will give exhibitions in America while he is here. Janni is visiting with his brother in Astoria at present.

Bill Hayward received word that he was in Portland and through Vernon Moteschenbacher, president of the Oregon Alumni association, arranged for Myrra to come down for the track meet. He was entertained while on the campus by several Finnish students. Fred Harrison and Arnie Kiminki acted as interpreters.

Football Stars to Vie In Christmas Day Game Teams to Sell Tickets

Enthusiasm and rivalry was expressed by different members of the squads. As a climax of the meeting, the several team captains challenged each other as to which squad would sell the most tickets.

The tickets will go on sale this afternoon, and the campaign carried on by the teams will last until Saturday. The pastebards will sell for one dollar each and will admit the purchaser to any seat in Multnomah field. Inasmuch as the proceeds of the game go for a very worthy cause, it is expected that the students will purchase at least one ticket each regardless of whether they intend to see the contest.

Rallying to the aid of the "Tiny" Shields' benefit drive, the Bachelordon fraternity stepped into the lead by pledging one-hundred per cent support, at a meeting last night. It is expected that many of the other fraternities will pledge 100 per cent before tomorrow morning.

An added attraction to the usual interesting football game, will be the return of many of Oregon's former grid heroes who will fight on the field in order that "Tiny" Shields, who was injured on the gridiron, may have funds to continue his battle against his lingering illness. It will be worth much more than a mere dollar, in the opinion of many sport critics, to see these in action again, these former stellar gridsters who used to thrill the stands with their brilliant and spectacular dash of play.

tional. They furnish charts, and health statistics to schools, and in some cases, where circumstances require immediate aid, they have furnished milk for babies, said Miss Thompson. They maintain baby clinics, and the services of doctors in needy districts.

Oregon has no county health nurse. Two years ago, the appropriation for a nurse's salary was abolished, but the local organization plans to put a nurse back into office as soon as possible, said Miss Thompson.

DOUGHNUT SEMI-FINAL GAME THIS AFTERNOON

Kappa Sigma and Phi Psi Each Touted to Win

Upsets and setups have been featuring the doughnut league basketball games at regular intervals so far this season. If the team picked to win happens to lose it is an upset in the dope; but if the team wins by a larger score than expected it is classed as a setup.

The semi-final game this afternoon between Kappa Sigma and Phi Psi will be classed as an upset. Both teams are touted to win and both are confident, according to their respective coaches. The winner of this contest will gain the right to enter the final game against Psi Kappa on December 11. If the unexpected happens, a prize will be awarded the winner of the final contest.

So far the Phi Psi is showing two wins to none lost. In their last game they swamped the S. A. E.'s by their score of 20 to 4 and are all hopped up to give the boys from down the street a real fight. Kappa Sigma won both of their games by large scores, trouncing the Bachelordon by a 31 to 6 score and Oregon club 14 to 8.

Both teams are now showing mid-season form, and promise to put up a thrilling exhibition of charging, dribbling, and shooting. Comparative scores show that both teams are composed of experienced basketballers.

DR RAINEY TO HAVE BOOKS PUBLISHED SOON

"Study of the Public School Debt" and "History of the Common School Fund" are the titles of two books of research which Dr. Homer P. Rainey, of the education department, is writing. He expects to have them completed for the publisher not later than next spring.

The former is a study parallel to that which is being made in a number of states throughout the country. Dr. Rainey said that he hoped to determine the exact condition of bonded indebtedness; how it is related to road and other enterprises for which the states are bonded; and how the indebtedness has increased.

The latter will include the development of the common school fund from the time that land grants for educational purposes were made to states entering the union up until the present time.

SMALL COLLEGES MAY QUIT N. W. CONFERENCE

"There are two angles to the question of the small colleges dropping out of the Northwest conference," said Jack Benefiel, graduate manager, when questioned upon this subject.

The large colleges and universities of the Northwest were members of the conference when the smaller ones petitioned to get in, he said. The conference did not ask them to join; they joined on their own initiative. Now, if they want to drop out it is up to them. "If they do drop out we shall continue to play them because they are near to us and we want to play schools that have eligibility rules and not ringer schools," remarked Benefiel.

The Northwest and Pacific Coast conference meetings will be held at the Multnomah hotel in Portland on Thursday and Friday of this week.

LAURENCE VAIL COLEMAN VISITS UNIVERSITY MUSEUM

Laurence Vail Coleman, secretary of the American Association of Museums spent Friday on the campus, visiting the Condon museum, and the Arts building collections.

Mr. Coleman, in his field duties has spent many months visiting the cities of the country, for the purpose of investigating, assisting in organization, and gathering useful ideas from the various museums. His work also includes stimulating an interest in the public for the value and the appreciation of art.

MANY ARTICLES INCREASE DEPOT "LOST" COLLECTION

An unusual number of lost articles have been turned in to the lost and found department at the University depot, within the last few days, says H. M. Fisher, superintendent of the campus buildings and grounds. Umbrellas and wearing apparel make up most of the collection, which includes caps, hats, scarfs, belts, and coats. Twenty-three umbrellas, many of them quite new, are unclaimed for, while the usual number of fountain pens, eye glasses, and keys complete the collection.

WE WATCH THE MARKET

Is it best to buy a quantity of eggs now or will they be cheaper later? Shall I buy my winter potatoes now or tide myself over for a few weeks in hopes that the price will go down?

Do you ever ask yourself questions like these? We are more than glad to help you answer them. Being in the grocery business it is easy for us to watch the market and we want you to profit from the information we gather. If eggs are going to be more expensive later we will tell you so that you can buy a quantity now. If apples are going down we will advise you to buy just a few at a time for a while and wait to buy your boxes until later.

The Table Supply watches the market for its customers.
