

GOLF OUTLOOK BELIEVED GOOD

Oregon Invited to Attend Intercollegiate Meet

SIX MEN IN CONDITION

A. S. U. O. Backing of Sport Not Yet Assured

The second intercollegiate golf tournament will be held this year on February 20, 21, and 22, and will be on the Del Monte course. The invitation for Oregon to participate in it comes from C. Vance Carter, golf manager of Stanford. The tournament will be held under the auspices of the Intercollegiate Golf Tournament association.

Teams from Stanford, California, University of Southern California, and University of Washington will probably complete for honors at this time. This will be strictly an intercollegiate meet and the winning team will be hailed as champion of the Pacific Coast conference.

Tryouts to Be Held

At present there are six good golfers on the campus and while all have competed in tournaments, but one has ever entered under the colors of the University. Two years ago Oregon was represented in an amateur meet held in Portland. George Bronaugh was the University entrant and placed second, losing the final match to the entrant from the University of Washington. Since this time golf on the campus has lacked student support.

Golf has been made a major sport at the University of Washington, Stanford, and University of California, with the possibility of other schools placing this on the competitive sport basis.

Bronaugh says, "If there is any possibility of the student association sending a golf team to represent the school at this tournament, tryouts will be held and the two best men will be sent." Both Lloyd Byerly and Bronaugh have played on the Del Monte course.

Local Tournament Planned

There are four other tried golfers on the campus and the best men will receive the call. The other prospective men are Jack Marshall, Bill McBride, Bob Neighbor, and Tom Mahoney. "These men have all been through a tournament grind but if any other candidates wish to tryout they may see me in the office of the men's gymnasium any afternoon," Bronaugh said.

Bronaugh is planning on staging tournaments for both men and women of the school to be held sometime during the spring quarter.

nature. Dinners by the single organizations took place each night. At one of the zoological meetings, Professor M. F. Guyer presented the results of his experiments upon inherited characteristics. This question dealt with the inheritance of modifications induced in the bodies of animals. Professor Guyer had induced eye-defects by injecting pulped eyecases into the animal upon which he had experimented. His experiments support the theory that defects artificially produced are actually inherited.

Experiments along this same line are in progress in the zoology department here, stated Dr. Torrey, and will be continued with renewed interest in light of these new discoveries.

"Investigation of inheritance of acquired characteristics is a promising field of work," he said. A crystalline compound has been isolated from yeast and minute quantities show a remarkable capacity for accelerating to a marked degree, the growth of yeast. W. H. Eddy, of Teachers College, Columbia, conducted this chemical investigation and told of his results. Professor Roger J. Williams at Oregon has also attained this chemical crystalline compound.

There is a marked similarity in structure of the crystalline compound from the yeast to the crystalline substance obtained from the thyroid glands of animals, thyroxin. Thyroxin also accelerates vital processes.

Among other notable achievements in scientific lines which came to Dr. Torrey's notice was the work of Du Noy, a physicist, who has estimated the length and breadth of molecules of certain material substances.

Dr. Torrey and Dr. Harold R.

Crosland of the psychology department were delegates to the national scientific honorary society of Sigma Xi. On this trip Dr. Torrey attended the meeting of the American Association of University Professors.

On his return trip Dr. Torrey visited several of the colleges of the East, and encountered many former Oregon people and students.

Varsity Wrestlers Defeat Idaho Squad in First Conference Meet of Year

Idaho. Last year the Vandal grappler defeated Ford. Ford showed a world of improvement over his last year's appearance and had his opponent on the defensive during the entire 14 minutes of wrestling. Ford used the figure-four scissors to a great advantage.

In the 135 pound division Wingard of Oregon and Powers of Idaho put up a neat exhibition. The first bout was called a draw but Wingard came back in the next bout and pinned Powers to the mat in 6:52 minutes with a figure-four scissors. In the first bout both men were cautious and did not open up but were contented by wrestling on their feet.

Although defeated, Leavitt of Oregon put up a real fight against Edelblute of Idaho in the 158-pound class. The local grappler lost by two decisions, but the second bout was called a draw. Both men were nearly evenly matched but the victor managed to stay on top a few seconds more than the varsity man.

Bliss of Idaho dropped two straight decisions to Cartwright of Oregon. Bliss was outweighed several pounds but put up a scrappy battle. Cartwright kept his opponent down on the mat which earned him the decisions.

A large crowd witnessed the matches and the team showed considerable improvement over last year.

The other address will be given by Ruth Newton. Her subject will be the "Constitution of Poland." Questions have been given out to some members of the group, and a general discussion will be held.

"Racial Characteristics and the History of Mexico," is the topic of the address to be given by Anna M. Thompson, instructor of the romance language department before the other group. In her talk Miss Thompson will tell of her travels through Mexico. She will also show photographs of the Mexican country. Discussions will follow the address. Oneita Wirtz is leader of the group.

VARSITY WINS GAME FROM O.A.C. QUINTET

Oregon Squad Plays Good Brand of Basketball

Playing against one of the strongest basketball teams on the coast, the Oregon quintet triumphed over the Aggies in a torrid encounter last Saturday night at Corvallis.

With the exception of about seven minutes, the Lemon Yellow led the Beavers throughout the entire contest. The varsity built up an impenetrable defense that the Aggie forwards found difficult to break through.

With the Oregon team playing an excellent brand of basketball, the "percentage style of play" of the O. A. C. team failed to work. The Aggies waited for the breaks, but the breaks were not made by the varsity.

The defeat of the Aggies pulled them out of the lead of both Pacific and Northwest conferences.

Lineup and summary:

R.O.T.C. SUMMER CAMP PLANS ARE BEING MADE

Officers Ask Interviews With Applicants

Military officers of the R. O. T. C. desire that students interested in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps basic camp at Camp Lewis next summer report for a personal interview at the headquarters not later than March 1. The camp will be held from June 12 to July 23 inclusive.

The interviews are necessary in order that the government may obtain needed information regarding each student who is going to attend the camp.

Students are reminded by Captain Frank L. Culin Jr. that attendance at the R. O. T. C. summer camp does not involve any expenses for necessities. Transportation to and from the camp, clothing food and shelter is furnished by the government.

Attendance at the camp will be of particular benefit to the student who intends to enroll in advance military work on completion of the two years of basic training. University authorities recognize this summer work and grant six credits to each student who satisfactorily completes the course.

Camp activities are directed entirely by regular army officers detailed for that purpose by the war department. The information desired at the personal interview with local military instructors includes the following facts: name, age, and legal address of each student; name and address of nearest relative; clothing sizes, including breeches, coat, hat, shirt, shoes and socks.

TIPS

A Weekly Bulletin Published for House Managers by The Table Supply Co.

There are so many things you can do with cheese. Everyone likes some kind of cheese, there are so many ways of serving it. Try some delicious cheese souffle made with Butter Cup Cheese. Imagine serving it for lunch with steaming hot potatoes, flakey hot cheese biscuits, and a crisp lettuce salad. Everyone will enjoy it and it's economical too.

Begin your dinner some cold rainy night with Cream cheese soup and see how much more the entire meal will be enjoyed. Then there is always the Cheese Dream for a special treat. Some Sunday night when no one is very hungry and appetite needs a little coaxing just toast a thick piece of bread for every one who is home. Put a thick slice of cheese on each piece of toast and put them in the oven. While the cheese is melting you'll just have time to make some hot chocolate to serve with them. Rainbow Cheese is especially nice for this.

We have the best brands of cheese. Include some in your next order.
