

BALL TOSSERS START PRACTICE

Varsity Batteries Working Out Indoors

MANY LETTERMEN BACK

Prospects Declared Good For Strong Team

The varsity hurlers and backstops answered their first call of the season and turned out for the early spring practice, which is being held daily in the men's outdoor gym. The ball tossers are limbering up their arms and getting used to the feel of the ball, in preparation for the general spring practice for which a call will soon be issued and to which all aspirants are expected to answer.

Catchers who have answered the call are Bliss, Cook and Mimaugh. Bliss, who was on the receiving end of most of last year's batteries for the varsity, is a heavy hitter, a dependable receiver, and has a good arm, and will probably be behind the bat most of the time this season. Cook, who played utility role last year, can always be called upon to fill in, as well as Jones, frosh catcher and infielder last season. Mimaugh, who played on last year's frosh squad, is a good hitter and a consistent receiver and has a good arm, and will no doubt break into the lineup during the season.

Four Hurlers Out

The hurlers who turned out are Brooks, Williams, Harrison and Adolph. The squad should be fairly well supplied in this department but lack experience. Brooks, veteran south-paw, who will play his last year this season for Oregon, found himself during the last part of last season and should be effective this year. Brooks and Williams are the only hurlers who made letters last year who are out this year. Williams, who broke into the lineup during the middle of last season should be a dependable chucker. He has a good fast ball and good control, but he lacks experience and confidence, but returns to the squad this year with these well overcome.

Harrison, stellar right hander of the frosh squad of '26, is out in a suit. If eligible, he should prove to be very valuable material. Harrison has a puzzling side arm delivery and an effective change of pace. He has had much experience and knows the game well. D. Adolph, a frosh first sacker of last year, pitched good ball for the Salem senators last summer and looks like a comer in the box. He has lots of speed and good control. Dutton of last year's frosh squad is also out in a suit, and with a little experience may prove effective.

Prospects for the infield are very good and excellent material is expected to be out when the call is made. First base will be covered by R. Adolph, who showed up well with the frosh last year. He has had experience and is a good hitter.

Scriptures Turns Out

Scriptures, who was not in school last year, will be out this season. He played in the keystone position for the 1926 frosh team and showed much ability there. Kiminski of the frosh last year was a good short-patcher. He is not in school at present but may return next term. Troutman of last year's squad may develop at short, he is a good fielder but weak with the

ISSUE OF OREGON LAW REVIEW WILL BE OUT MIDDLE OF MONTH

Dean William G. Hale's Contribution on Parol Evidence Expected to Create Much Interest

The second of the four-quarterly issues of the Oregon Law Review will be off the press about the middle of this month. Much of this material will be of popular interest. The article on parole evidence by Dean William G. Hale is a real contribution to legal literature and is likely to get much attention and discussion from the legal profession in general, says editor-in-chief Professor Charles E. Carpenter. (Webster defines parole as 'oral declaration'. Roughly the rule on parole evidence is that it cannot change written evidence.)

Dean Hale is arguing for a very fundamental change in rule of law which is far reaching and which he claims has been vicious in its operation.

Another article is Professor Sam Bass Warner's review of criminal cases of 1924, read before the last meeting of the State District Attorney's association.

Three of the editorial notes are of rather unusual interest. One, written by Carlton E. Spencer, is on a recent Oregon case involving the privilege of the prosecuting attorney to be free from civil suit for bringing criminal prosecutions. Another is by Professor James D. Barnett on a new United States supreme court decision upholding a provision of the Clayton anti-trust act. A novel prohibition case is the subject of the third, the case of State vs. McDaniel. It reiterates the rights of the citizen, as provided for in the Bill of Rights, against high-handed enforcement of the law.

In this case the defendant, while in an intoxicated condition, was about to enter his machine when willow. Hobson, third sacker of the varsity last year, will be out again this year. He turned down an offer from a New York club to return and play ball for Oregon this season. In the lineup for this season, Hobson may be shifted to second base, where he could cover more ground, leaving a hole at third, which could be filled with either Jones or West, both of the frosh last season.

The outfield will be well taken care of this year by Cook and Wright of the varsity and F. Reinhart, Brooks and Jones. Cook may be used in the gardens, he is a good hitter and is fast. Wright should be valuable, as he has a good arm and hits well. F. Reinhart, star frosh fly chaser, is a sure bet for the field. He is a good hitter and a real star. Brooke is also a good fly chaser and a consistent hitter. Jones may also be used in the outfield. He is a good hitter and his real position is in the field, where he should star this season.

FRATERNITIES REFUSED ALL SOCIAL PRIVILEGES

Chicago University.—Because of a recent ruling at Chicago university, providing penalties for the fraternities making a poor showing in scholastic work, Alpha Tau Omega has been refused the right to initiate during the winter quarter, and Sigma Chi fraternity has received the penalty of no social privileges for the winter quarter.

Both fraternities permitted their averages to fall to a "C" level for the autumn term. This policy of fraternity probation aims to bring up the scholastic standing of fraternities on the Chicago campus. The University of Minnesota and several other institutions have made such rulings this fall.—New Student.

stopped by officers. The officers search his car, and finding nothing, searched him. They found a bottle two-third full of liquor. They then notified him that he was under arrest.

In the defense his attorneys carried the case to the supreme court of the state on the grounds that the evidence against him had been secured in an illegal manner because he was searched before he was legally arrested. Four of the justices held that the evidence was inadmissible, three dissenting, and the conviction in the lower court was reversed.

Professor Carpenter, who wrote the note on this case, sides with the minority opinion written by the three dissenting justices.

Several changes have been made in the policy of the Law Review this year. At the time of the first issue in December seven student editors were added. They are John Bryson, Rupert Bullivant, Marion Diekey, David B. Evans, Armond Fuchs, Donald Husband and Paul Patterson. Further change is announced for the second issue in the appointment of seven associate editors, chosen from the active legal profession of the state. The following will give some idea of their qualifications:

Charles H. Carey, former president of the Oregon State Bar association, author of a history of Oregon, and member of the firm of Carey and Kerr, Portland.

George Rossman, B. S. Whitworth college, 1907; J. D. University of Chicago, 1910; judge of the municipal court of Portland 1917-1922; judge of the circuit court of Multnomah county since April, 1922.

William Briggs, LL. B., Valparaiso University, 1917; admitted to the bar in Indiana, 1917; admitted to the bar in Oregon, 1919; and member of the firm of Briggs and Briggs, Ashland.

Alger Fee, B. A. Whitman college, 1911; LL. B. Columbia University law school, 1914; editor Columbia Law Review, 1913-1914; and member of the firm of Fee and Fee, Pendleton.

Nicholas Jaureguy, B. A. University of Oregon, 1917; LL.B. Harvard law school, 1922; editor Harvard Law Review, 1920-1922; in practice in Portland since 1922, and a member of the faculty of Northwestern law school in Portland since 1922.

Arthur D. Platt, B. A. Yale University, 1916; LL. B. Harvard law school, 1919; editor Harvard Law Review and member of the firm of Platt, Fales and Smith in Portland.

Herbert Sweet, B. A. Reed college, 1920; LL. B. Harvard law school, 1923; member of the board of student advisors Harvard law school; editor Harvard Law Review, and member of the faculty of Northwestern law school in Portland since 1923. He is in active practice in Portland.

The Oregon Law Review is entering upon its fourth year of publication and is now the official organ of the state bar. Its circulation includes the members of the Association of American Law Schools. The function of the Review, as outlined by Dean Hale is three fold:

It enables the faculty of the law school to give to the state bar the benefits of its research in problems of Oregon law and thus extend the practical service of the institution beyond the classroom.

The addition of students to the staff was for the purpose of encouraging initiative on their part, in the field of research and publication and of bringing them the benefits that naturally arise from contact with lawyers of the state. It facilitates the work of the State Bar association by giving publicity to its activities, by encouraging members of the bar to assume a broader attitude toward problems, through interchange of their views concerning legal problems with which they are dealing, and by offering suggestions with reference to legal reform.
