HOOP CONTEST SET FOR FRIDAY

Leadership of Conference On Coast to Be Decided By 'Elimination' Game

TILT IS LAST FOR O.A.C.

Auto Show Held At Armory Necessitates Practicing On Floor of Gymnasium

Not only from the standpoint of Oregon basketball fans but also on the part of the O. A. C. students, the Oregon-Aggie hoop contest Friday night will be the big tilt of the year. With a conference championship within the grasp of these two quintets, this contest will assume the added importance of an "elimination" game for the leadership of the coast conference, with the victor partially assured the pennant for the northern section of the coast conference.

This game is the final contest on the schedule for the O. A. C. hoopers, and it is a certainty that the Aggie five will be all-set for this big tilt. The Beavers have lost two conference games, one to Washington, the other to Oregon. The Lemon Yellow on the other hand has suffered but one defeat, losing to the Huskies.

Reserves Needed

Although the varsity regulars are in good shape, the lack of capable reserves may play an important role in the Friday night game. Another factor, that is seriously handicapping the Oregon quintet, is the fact that the armory is now being used for an Auto Show, making it necessary for the varsity to leave the regular floor and practice in the University men's gym. Therefore when the Oregon quintet plays O. A. C., it will be much like meeting a team on a fairly strange court.

This will be the final game played by the Lemon Yellow at home, for next week, the varsity starts on the road trip.

Floor is Handicap

Playing on a smaller floor than the Aggie hoopers are used to playing on, the Oregonians should have a slight advantage. But the Beavers will no doubt be prepared to play their style of game on a smaller court.

At present Billy Reinhart has not selected his starting combination for the Aggie game, but the quintet will probably be made up from the following: Hobson and Gowans at forward with Okerberg at center. The guard positions will be filled by two of the following four men: Westergren, Jost, Gunther, or Gillenwaters.

NOMINATIONS TO BE MADE FOR Y. W. C. A. OFFICERS
Names of the candidates for office in the Y. W. C. A. will be presented a week from Tuesday on March 3. The candidates will be nominated at that time and the election will take place on the following Tuesday, March 13.

REDEMPTION OF HUMANITY IS PLEA OF SYUD HOSSAIN

A slender, meticulously clad young man leaned across the pedestal of the Villard hall rostrum and plead eloquently for the redemption of humanity. Syud Hossain, lecturer, gently probed the defects of Western civilization and sharply defined the differences of culture of the two hemispheres.

"The governing principle of the West is a quest for things material," stated the speaker from India. "The governing principle of the East is a quest for things spiritual."

The Oriental visualized humanity as a unit, "one and indivisible," in contract with the Occidental who has continued to think of humanity as exclusive groups was Mr. Hossain fine distinction of the vital differences of the two cultures.

Mr. Hossain stated in the beginning of the lecture that he was a nationalist by conviction; "one

SERVICE IS EMPHASIZED IN MERCHANDISING TALK

Associations 200 Years Old Says Seattle Man

The service and history of merchandising was discussed by W. J. Hindley, of Seattle, educational director of the Washington State Retail Merchants' association, at the 2 o'clock session of the Oregon Retail Merchants' association in Villard hall, yesterday.

"Merchandising has undergone transition and evolution from primitive ages down to this day," said Mr. Hindley. "In the art of exchange, the history of merchandising is older than the history of moral responsibility. When we talk of associations, try to get our people into great groups, increase the service and reduce the cost, we hardly ever realize that more than 200 years ago in England, the guilds were trying to do the same thing. No man ranks higher than the man who has to barter and sell."

Service is one of the elements Mr. Hindley emphasized as necessary in the modern organization. Too many modern merchants fail to recognize how important service is, he asserted.

Very seldom do people realize that the retail cost of an article is the aggregate of the prices leading up from the producer, and that the retailer has to include the absorption and stand before the public to collect it, said Mr. Hindley. The efficient merchant fails to realize today his value in the world of distribution, for only when points of distribution are scientifically organized, can there be distribution. There are two elements of appeal: the element of scientific skill and the element of chance, said the speaker. Too many merchants try on chance basis. The elements of chance is too great, but the element of chance is growing smaller and smaller.

CALL SENT FOR GRID ASPIRANTS

Dick Smith Wants More Men Out for Football Practice Every Night

HARD WORK IS PROGRAM

Baz Williams, Freshman Coach, Suggested as Possible Line Mentor

Every man who aspires to a place on the varsity team is wanted immediately by Coach Dick Smith. The call was sent out last night, with the instructions to those interested to see Virgil Earl, record of athletics, for suits and equipment. If any player cannot come out for practice between the regular hours of four to five in the afternoon, the coach and his assistants will arrange some other time.

"We want every man who can handle a football or run to come out, even if he thinks he has no chance to make the team," said Coach Smith. "What we want more than anything else is interest in the game. The men out this spring are going to learn a lot of football and have a lot of fun. Football is a real game, and we want a lot of men to play it."

Work is in Order

Last night was devoted to fundamental line drill, with some backfield work and punting. The order of the day now is work, and lots of it for the entire hour. Both Coach Smith and Virgil Earl are on the field for the entire period.

Tomorrow the new line coach, to be appointed today, is expected to be out with the linemen. This will no doubt be Baz Williams, freshman coach. Williams is a lineman of note himself, an ex-varsity man who was one of Oregon's greatest smashers, and he is fully qualified to take charge of this department.

The football team is now using the old baseball field for practice. This is high and dry, and with the present cool snappy weather, conditions for gridiron work are ideal.

More Men Wanted

"More men!" is the cry of the coaches at present, and with a turnout of the entire squad the work will go ahead rapidly, says Smith. The program will include passing, punting and fundamental drill with signal practice and team formations to come just as soon as the men are ready for them.

MILITARY DRILL PERIODS INCREASED THIS YEAR

Military drill in the R. O. T. C. department is largely manual of arms and close order movements at present. The instructors in charge plan to continue with this program during the remainder of the term in order that the underclassmen will be well trained in the school of the soldier.

Instead of the one period of drill a week that they had last year, the freshmen take three periods of drill this year and an increase in efficiency is the result. Last year all the men drilled together in one afternoon and two periods a week were used for class work. This year the freshmen take three periods of drill a week and there are several companies drilling at different periods.

More actual instruction is being given to both freshmen and sophomores this year than last year, according to Captain Frank L. Culin Jr., who says every phase of drill will be improved this year in the R. O. T. C. department.

DR. ELSE WILL SPEAK AT ALUMNI HALL THURSDAY

Dr. J. Earl Else, member of the faculty of the Portland medical school, will speak to the students and faculty of the departments of zoology and medicine tomorrow evening, in the Alumni hall of the Woman's building. The occasion is another evening meeting given under the auspices of these departments for the students and faculty, and their friends. All who are interested are invited to attend the meeting.

Student Musicians Return from Trip Around the World

DELEGATES HEAR BUSINESS TOPIC

George Hinkle, Walter Carrington, and Paul Sletton returned last night to the campus after sailing around the world on the President Garfield. The trip took 128 days, or a little over four months to complete.

These three Oregon students played in the orchestra of the ship. Hinkle playing the saxophone, Carrington, the banjo and Paul Sletton the drums. The success of their journey is evidenced in the numerous colorful "hotels" on their baggage. The posters represent practically all the leading cities in the world.

"One of the greatest experiences in my life," stated George Hinkle, "and if I get another chance to take similar trip, I shall certainly make it." The other members of the trio commented in like fashion on their journey.

JAPANESE QUESTION IS SUBJECT OF DEBATE

Women's Triangular Contest Is Tomorrow Night

When the women's debate team meets O. A. C. and Willamette in the triangular debate tomorrow, they will discuss a subject that has achieved popularity among college debating teams this year.

The question is, Resolved: "That the present immigration law should be amended to admit Japanese on the quota basis."

If the immigration law drawn up by Congress in the past session which was to take effect July 1, 1924, was allowed to function, 164 Japanese would be admitted a year. But because of pressure brought by adverse opposition on Congress, another act was passed excluding all Japanese the right of immigration.

This new situation gave life and importance to the debate topic, stated the coach.

The football team is now using the old baseball field for practice. This is high and dry, and with the present cool snappy weather, conditions for gridiron work are ideal.

It was upon the latter phase of the act that President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes sharply disagreed with Congress.

Mildred Bateman and Beatrice Mason, the affirmative, will meet the Willamette negative team in Villard hall tomorrow evening, while Dorothy Newman and Aline Buster, negative, will go to Corvallis to contest the topic with the O. A. C. affirmative.
