Each year, half of the women's houses put on the program for the rest of the University women. House stunts will be judged on three points—originality, artistry and presentation. The cost and length of each stunt will be limited, according to Miss Brophy.

MATHEMATICS CLUB STUDIES WAYS OF EAST

The topics of discussion for the monthly meeting of the Mathematics club, held Thursday night, in Johnson hall, were "Japanese Mathematics," and "Noted Women in Mathematics."

"Soroban, and sangi are the two chief mechanical devices used by the Japanese," said Lula Benson, who gave the first address. At one time the Japanese mathematics were far above that of western countries, but it has given away to the established systems. The Japanese now use the western form.

Carolina Tilton was the other speaker. Haytasia, the Greek woman, was considered one of the great woman mathematicians. Marie Atensia was named for Italy. Other famous women were named for France, Russia and England. The only American woman mentioned was Christine Ladd-Franklin. The next meeting will be held in March.

Pictures in Demand to Fill Humorous Section of Oregona

"Alas! Is there no humor on this campus?" is the query of the 1925 Oregona feature editor. Humorous pictures of any sort are greatly in demand, says Larry Riddle, who is in charge of the section.

Representatives have been appointed who are going around to the campus fraternities in search of snapshots taken on or off the campus, particularly of general student interest, and indicative of college life.

The best of these pictures will be put in the feature section, so there should be no lack of snapshots.

Section editors are asked to turn in their copy and pictures as soon as possible since the material is steadily going to the printers and engravers.

ROOKS TAKE GAME FROM FROSH FIVE

Contest Featured by Slow Playing on Both Sides

The Freshmen basketballers suffered a defeat at the hands of the O. A. C. rooks by the score of 34 to 25. By winning this tilt the rooks have divided the two game series which the freshmen and the O. A. C. babes yearly contest. The frosh won the first game of the series which was played on the Corvallis court.

The game was slowly played, both teams playing poor basketball. The rooks showed good form at times and checked the yearlings closely whenever they advanced the ball within shooting distance. The Rooks squad had decidedly improved over the playing displayed in the first encounter between the two quintets. They were also able to find the basket better and showed smoother team work.

The freshmen played poor in the first half and were not able to find themselves until the second half was well under way, and at half time period, were led by the Aggie players. Although playing with injured leg, Powers of the frosh, was able to find himself at times and played the best game for the Oregon team. The rest of the players had a decidedly off day.

The frosh will not be seen in action here next week, but will journey to Portland where they will take on one of the leading high school teams of that city.

BRANDON OPERA STAR PREFERS AUDIENCE OF COLLEGE PEOPLE

By Philippa Sherman

Theo Pennington, leading lady for the Brandon Opera company playing here this week-end, leaned back in the deep davenport of the hotel lobby and surveyed me.

"I'm so sorry to interrupt you," I said, noticing the large purple special delivery stamped envelope she had just opened. "But I'll promise not to keep you more than fifteen minutes."

"Quite all right" she smiled and laid aside the unread mail. "You're from a college paper? Well, you just tell them that when we are headed for a college town the whole company is happy. We've found that college folk appreciate operas as much and even more than the older people. They are more enthusiastic, they clap harder and show a more genuine delight in the music than do the audiences in the other towns and cities."

I noticed Miss Pennington was wearing a chic black afternoon dress trimmed with a single red ostrich ornament at the side, a red-bordered scarf wrapped around her neck, a plain black Gloria Swan-

ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT RECEIVED BY R.O.T.C.

Value of New Paraphernalia Estimated at $1000

Equipment valued at approximately $1000 has been received by the local R. O. T. C. department. A 37 millimeter gun and a Stokes mortar gun have been added to the four machine guns already at headquarters. Telescope sights, range tables and range finders, which are used in locating ranges, are also parts of the new material received. This will facilitate the practice firing of these guns which are used in the required work of the military course.

In the past, the R. O. T. C. department has not had complete equipment for its guns. The Browning machine guns are 30-30 calibre. The 37 millimeter gun fires shells weighing one pound. The Stokes mortar is a light trench mortar. The department expects to use these guns for practice firing both with and without blank shells during the spring term. This firing will be done on the R. O. T. C. outdoor range.

The accessory equipment was sent from the Benicia Arsenal near Presidio, California, upon orders of the Ninth Corps area headquarters. The new equipment will aid very materially in training the advanced course men in this part of their regular work.

Mr. Spalding, though an American, has studied under the best artists abroad as well as in America and has made some successful tours where he has always been enthusiastically received. Last year he was selected to judge at the examinations of the Paris Conservatory, being the first American to receive that distinction.

NEW NICOTINE BENCH APPEARS ON CAMPUS

Another nicotine bench has made its appearance. Peaceful relaxation, joy and comfort are offered to the hangers-on about the Oregon building. This new repose for the indolent invokers of the burly tobacco lacks the dignity of its famous predecessors, nor can it support the number on its weak frame that the pretentious green bench near the Administration building takes care of—but it does its work well enough.

Whence it came no one knows, or cares to say. Silently, unobtrusively it was planted. No press agent heralded its public presentation. No strident band blared the announcement of its arrival. But about the Oregon building is a crowd who plays it servile homage.

O.A.C. FINISHES SEASON IN LEAD

Oregon Has Chance to Tie In Conference Race By Taking Remaining Games

SCORE AT HALF 20 TO 6

Team Makes Fight In Last Half; Westergren Is Star Of Game for Local Squad

By Ward Cook

The Aggie "stalling offensive" worked just long enough in the first half of the torrid basketball game last night for O. A. C. to beat the scrapping Oregon five, 34 to 30. This finished the conference schedule for the Aggies and placed them in the lead with six wins and two defeats, to Washington and Oregon. Oregon still remains in a tie for second place with Washington, and by winning the three remaining conference contests the Webfooters can still finish in a tie for first honors.

O. A. C. opened the game by playing their peculiar style of basketball, stalling around until an opening occurred and then breaking for the basket. This slow style of basketball disrupted the Oregon team play long enough to allow the Aggies to pile up the score and finish the half with a 20 to 6 lead. Ridings and Brown slipped away with a number of baskets in this period.

Second Half Oregon's

The Webfooters dropped the spell caused by the Aggie "stalling" and started the rush the game at the start of the second period. As a result Oregon decisively outplayed the Aggies and scored 24 points to the opponents 14 in the second half. Gowans dropped in a couple of baskets, bringing the Oregon score up to 10. Then Oregon rallied and led by the phenomenal playing of "Swede" Westergren brought the score up to 28 and 29. Westergren carried the brunt of the Oregon offensive for a time and he scored four baskets from the field in rapid succession.

Oregon fought an uphill fight in the last few minutes of the game, being only a basket behind most of the time. Each time when it looked as if the Webfooters would forge into the lead, Ridings or Baker would call upon the goddess of luck, and ring another one. Ridings and Baker scored two baskets putting the Aggies in the lead with just a minute to go. Oregon rallied and was fighting back in an attempt to take the lead, with Hobson scoring a basket, when the game ended.

Aggies Last Game

This was the last conference game for the Aggies and they were pointed to defeat Oregon at all costs. The Aggie combination which Coach Hager has been developing for so long to take the coast title, with Ridings, Stoddard, Baker and Brown, was playing its last conference game together. They passed well, and outplayed Oregon for a sufficient length of time in the first half to amass enough counters to win. When the Oregon combination did get to working in the second period they not only played better basketball but came within an
