

APRIL RADIO LECTURE PROGRAM COMPLETED

Oregon-Stanford Debate to Be Held March 25

Extension division radio lectures have been booked through the month of April, according to an announcement made by Alfred Powers, who is in charge of the radio activities. The bookings include everything from a radio debate to popular lectures. The extension division's radio lecture service will continue until school lets out in June. There are possibilities that some of the members of the summer school faculty will be called on to radio-cast occasional lectures. With the exception of the radio debate all the lectures will be broadcast on Friday evenings at 8 o'clock.

On Friday, March 20, Professor Fergus Reddie, of the department of drama and speech arts will give a reading. His subject has not been announced. "His reading on Huckleberry Finn, given last year to the radio world, proved so popular that the extension division finds it well worth while to repeat another of Professor Reddie's lectures," said Powers.

The radio debate between the University of Oregon and Stanford university will be held on Wednesday, March 25. The northern team will assemble at KGW, while the southern team will assemble at KLX.

"Mathematics at Work and at Play" is the title of Professor E. E. DeCou's lecture to be broadcast March 27. On April 3, Professor Tanner, of the chemistry department, will radio-cast a lecture on the microscope.

The subjects for the following three programs have not been announced: April 10, Professor A. R. Sweetser of the botany department; April 17, Professor Hugh E. Rosson, debate coach; April 24, Dean Eric W. Allen, of the school of journalism.

The lecture for Friday, March 13, is still pending.

TENNIS COURTS FILLED BY CAPACITY CROWDS

One week of spring has been enough to fill the new tennis courts on Emerald street with players practically every day. In the words of the caretaker, the place is "swamped." The courts are open from 6 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. every day except Sunday, when they are open from 2:15 to 6:30. The largest part of the rush comes in the afternoon between the hours of 3 and 6. Yesterday morning, however, four girls made their appearance at 6 o'clock; this is the earliest that the courts have been in use this year.

During the winter the courts were practically in disuse on account of the continued rainy weather. The nets were taken down at night and only a few were put up during the more moderate days. Last Sunday was a record breaker, however, with 124 players registered between the hours of 2 and 6. Monday, for some unknown reason, is the poorest day of the week for good attendance on the courts. In spite of this fact, there was a registration of 36 last Monday, followed by 75 on Tuesday.

Such an increase in attendance necessitates strict adherence to the time regulations. Hereafter, players will be allowed to play until the hour in the forenoon and until a quarter after in the afternoons just as University classes are regulated. Next term will see still further increase, since tennis will be one of the sports in spring athletics. A few varsity players are busy on the courts now getting into shape for the coming season.

FUNERAL OF MRS. G. M. HALE WILL BE HELD SATURDAY
Dean William G. Hale and his family will leave Eugene today for Hillsboro where they will attend the funeral of Mr. Hale's mother, Mrs. G. N. Hale, who died here Thursday morning. The services will be held Saturday forenoon. Dean Hale's parents were pioneer residents of Hillsboro.

CHURCH DESIGNED BY WILLCOX SUGGESTIVE OF OLD CATHEDRAL

Stained Glass Windows, Wooden Beams, and Tarnished Copper Lamps Contribute to Medieval Note

By M. C.
The new First Congregational church on Thirteenth avenue and Ferry street, which will be dedicated next Sunday evening, owes its striking beauty and charm to W. R. B. Willeox, professor of architecture on the campus, who drew the plans, designed the church and personally supervised the entire process of its construction. A number of architecture students have been associated with him in this work.

Toward the end of an afternoon, the glory of the sunset, caught in the cathedral glass of the windows, spreads mellowness and age over gray walls, tiled roof, and copper eaves. The shade of an occasional tree contributes to this elusive atmosphere of ancient grandeur. It achieves that personification of the spirit of worship rarely found except in the cathedrals of the Old World.

In the main chapel and adjoining the Condon memorial to be dedicated to Thomas Condon, at one time head of the University geology department, is found a suggestion of the Italian gothic in the treatment of the stenciled wooden beams overhead. The stenciling is remarkable for its varying scheme of related tones in which no stencil repeats itself in the exquisite coloring of any other stencil in the room.

A carved skirting on the wall behind the choir loft repeats elusively the blended coloring of the stenciled wood. The keynote of simplicity and grace is extended to the simply carved panels on the pulpit and the Greek crosses carved upon the ends of the pews. Carved posts, barring the tall amber windows, and tarnished copper lamps hanging from the beams by slender irons, add a medieval note to the surroundings. Light descends upon the pews in an ever shifting play of colors and moods.

None of this exquisite composition just happened so. The glaring newness of the copper lights was dimmed and mellowed by special process after they arrived. The carved posts in the windows were especially designed to achieve the unusual lighting effect Professor Willeox has brought about. The windows of cathedral glass were imported from London to fulfill their particular part in the general plan. The plaster used in these two rooms received special treatment in its preparation and application in order to produce the rugged appearance desired.

The church exhibits the use of great care and forethought in the planning of even the most trivial detail. Concealed lighting will be found in the walls of the choir loft, individual coils extend into each pew; a cabinet is built in an odd corner of the wall for the music of the choir.

The structure is built around three sides of an open court at the rear. This is wired for the lanterns of garden fetes and outdoor social functions. It will also serve as an outdoor playground for younger members of the church. On the ground floor, special quarters are provided for the activities of the women of the church, the girls, the boys, and kindergarten divisions. A kitchenette is built within convenient reach of all these rooms. The church office opening directly upon the side street is also on this floor. Upstairs in this parish house division of the mother church, is a community room which, when divided into compartments by accordion doors will be used for the Sunday school headquarters. Adjoining this is the most modern of large well-furnished kitchens resembling in its efficiency and detail, the cuisine of a modern hotel. An office in the front is reserved for the Sunday school secretary.

Over the choir loft and pipe organ is a two-room apartment for the caretaker of the church.

The game is the tightest ever seen on the floor, and the first half score is the smallest yet registered for any one period. Both teams are guarding close, neither taking the aggressive, except during breaks.

Summary of first half: Oregon scoring, field goals, Hobson, 1; Okerberg, 1. O. A. C., Ridings, 2; Baker, 1; Stoddard, 1. Free throws, Oregon, Gowans, 2; Okerberg, 1. O. A. C., Steele, 1.

Held ball, O. A. C. gets ball. Recovered by Okerberg.

5:51—Steele takes ball down for goal. Score, O. A. C. 13, Oregon 11. O. A. C. gets ball again, but Brown misses. Held ball. Westergren misses shot for goal, and O. A. C. gets ball. Ridings scores on long shot. Score, Oregon 11, O. A. C. 15. Time out, O. A. C.

5:55—Game resumed. O. A. C. takes ball, but loses it, regains it again, and rushes. Steele misses long shot. Gowans misses long shot. Steele dribbles down, but cannot shoot. O. A. C. rushes down again, but Ridings and Baker both miss. Oregon rushes in, but O. A. C. intercepts. Gowans misses shot. Gowans fouls Brown, who misses first, and second. Stoddard charges Westergren, who converts. Score, Oregon 12, O. A. C. 15. Ball now under Oregon basket, but Oregon unable to score. Game over. Final score, Oregon 12, O. A. C. 15.

The game was the closest ever seen here, and the smallest score of year. Oregon now has two games to win in order to represent the northern division of the Pacific Coast conference in the title games with California. The battle Saturday night will be even more terrific than the one lost to the O. A. C. quintet last night, 15 to 12.

Both the Oregon and Aggie teams fought yesterday afternoon as they never fought before. The game started fast, with both teams working hard. The outstanding feature was the close checking by both sides—so close that seldom did a player get a chance to cast for the basket unhampered by one or more men. Skiller passing rushes, speedy floor-length dribbles, came to naught under the stonewall defense thrown out by both quintets.

Oregon Takes Lead
Oregon took the lead, with two fouls converted by Gowans, and a field goal by Okerberg, but before the half was over, the Aggies had forged ahead. The first half ended nine to seven for the visitors. The second half was Oregon's for a time, Westergren's field goal tying the score at 11 each. O. A. C. ran their total up to 15, while Oregon was able to score but a single additional point, a foul converted by Westergren.

Teamwork Remarkable
Ridings, Aggie forward, was high point man of the game with three field baskets, while Westergren was next with two field goals and a converted foul. No man was outstanding on the Oregon team, for every one played close, hard ball. The teamwork of both fives was remarkable, and by far the best ever seen on a Eugene court.
