For the "Greater University"

DEMANDS for money naturally raise the questions, "Why is it needed," and "What will it buy?" The gift campaign which has received such tremendous local support in the shape of the Student Union drive, should make us ask ourselves, "What are these new buildings to house?" and "What qualities of the University of Oregon are our proudest boast?"

Surely the stoutest supporters of the new building program would be the last to ask for an increase in quantity without an improvement in quality. And the quality which becomes part of the texture of the University's living has certain sources and fountain-heads. And while the faculty is probably not too much addicted to considering itself a "fount of learning," Oregon boasts many men and women who are the stimuli to higher endeavor.

Next year there will be returning those who have been out into wider fields, making broader contacts. The University of Oregon student body will be happy to welcome back such a scholar as Dr. Ernest S. Bates, who has so fine a gift for stimulating thought in his classes, especially along creative lines. Familiar as he is with the best in many languages, he has given freely of his time to young writers, being at once their kindest and severest critic. Though his sojourn in Europe continuing his researches has deprived the study body of work under him this year, he will be the more welcome when he returns.

Professor Alfred H. Schroff returned this year from a summer spent abroad, gathering color to bring home to his students from visiting the quaint and beautiful hill towns of Italy with their treasured Italian Primitives' painting. He went sketching in Venice, and did all the graceful things which fire the imagination. And he did some remarkable fresco work at Fontainebleau.

The sculpture department will welcome back Avard Fairbanks, who is on a leave of absence attending the Yale school of sculpture and renewing his eastern contacts. His dream of establishing a great school of American sculpture in the west is one which he is ever keeping before his students during their instruction and by letters during his absence.

Dean Eric W. Allen last year spent several months abroad making a survey of foreign journalism, of which his students are now reaping the benefit. And Dr. George Rebec recently returned with added inspiration from extended travel in Europe.

These are only a few of those who might be named as the personalities who make the University of Oregon a University in all the sense of the word. And always it is pleasant to think of these productive scholars "coming home."

Just one week from today there will be an A. S. U. O. assembly. It will be crowded, because there will be amusement there for all to see, for all to hear. Student body nominations are always a rare spectacle. "Political bosses" had better get out the curry-comb and brush and begin grooming their favorites for the coming races. Entries may be booked in the first three issues of the Emerald next week, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, names to be given to the editor the preceding day before 6 o'clock, p. m.

Day after tomorrow will be Saturday. Shall the students go to school on that day? The faculty will decide at their meeting next Wednesday. You as students, have the privilege of expressing your opinion on such a measure. The Emerald has a Communication column. Use it.

Members of the Tradition committee have finally ceased wrangling, smoked the "peace pipe" and submitted a comprehensive and explicit report on our traditions.

Wonderful weather! Planning a hike for Saturday?

Miniature Ballet Will Be Feature For Junior Prom

A miniature ballet, depicting the spirit of the times characteristic of the period upon which the decorations are based, will be the feature for the Junior Prom in the Armory, May 23.

Delbert Faust, local ballet instructor, will arrange and instruct the dancers who will take part in the feature. Edna Dipple will act as assistant to Mr. Faust in the instruction of the dancers, who will be campus talent.

Another novel plan for the Prom will be the arrangement of a definite time for the awarding of the Koyl and Gerlinger cups, by placing the time on the dance programs. This, it is expected, will eliminate some of the confusion which might otherwise arise during the presentation of the cups.

Where food ferments

FOOD collects in those tiny V-shaped crevices formed by the joining of the teeth and gums—The Danger Line. This food ferments. Acids form. Acid Decay of the teeth results. The gums, too, become irritated and sore.

Squibb's Dental Cream, made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, safely neutralizes these acids. It protects the teeth from Acid Decay at The Danger Line and elsewhere. It keeps the teeth clean, attractive and sound. It soothes the gums. Use it—morning, noon and night. Keep a tube or two on hand. At drug-gists everywhere.
