

OREGON NETMEN TO MEET HUSKIES

Lemon-yellow Team Works Out on Northern Courts For Hard Contest Today

LINE-UP IS UNCHANGED

Coast Championship Chance Favors Varsity, Even if Defeated This Afternoon

By Dick Syring

In what promises to be the hardest meet of the year, the University of Oregon tennis team, Oregon state intercollegiate champions, meet the University of Washington's Huskies at Seattle this afternoon. The Oregon netmen left for Seattle Tuesday afternoon after tucking away another victory over the Oregon Aggies last Saturday morning. The varsity spent yesterday working out on the northern courts in preparation for today's big meet.

The Webfooters team consists of Harry Meyer, captain; George Hayden, Roy Okerberg, William Adams and George Mead. This is the same aggregation that has gone through the season undefeated, save for the trimming administered by the Multnomah clubmen, 10 to 6. The Huskies racket wielders, one of the strongest teams on the coast, have a number of widely known players. The men facing the Webfooters will be Bob Hesketh, captain, Mel Dranga, Dick Dubois, Joe Livengood and Sam Skidmore.

Meet Second of Two

The meet with the Huskies is the second of the two scheduled, the first having had to be cancelled because of the weather. The University of Washington netmen were on a tour of the Willamette valley on the weekend of May 15 and 16, but when they came to Eugene the meet had to be postponed. On this trip through the valley, the Huskies won a love meet from the Willamette Beareats and the Oregon Aggies.

Tomorrow afternoon and Saturday, a three man team will be entered in the Pacific Coast conference meet also being held in Seattle. In this meet will be representatives from all the schools on the coast. The Oregon team although they may be defeated by the Huskies today, have a good chance of winning the championship.

Varsity State Champions
By defeating the Aggie courtmen last Saturday morning, the varsity won the undisputed state intercollegiate championship. Two Oregon college tennis teams have been met and defeated. The Aggies were humbled in the two meets, 4 to 3 and 5 to 2. The Reed college players also proved to be easy prey for the varsity, 4 to 2.

SPECTACULAR SUCCESS SCORED BY COLORFUL DANCE DRAMA

It would be difficult to attribute the success of the Dance Drama last night to any one thing. Lighting, costumes, dancing made it one of the most spectacular successes of the college year.

"A Night's Mardi Gras" was a triumph of color and action. LaVerne Spitznberger, as light hearted Pierette, scored one of the hits of the evening. Grace Sullivan makes an ardent lover and the merchant was extremely well characterized.

"The Lake of the Swans" has to be described as exquisite. The lighting was an achievement in itself. For sheer beauty and idyllic effect this production has never been surpassed on the campus.

The fountain deserves special mention. The sparkling and flashing of the water in the moonlight was a vivid illusion.

Moot Jury Decides Gooding is Victim In Signature Fraud

The jury decided that an exceedingly dirty trick has been played, so it decided for the defendant, Bert Gooding, in the case of Chrisman vs. Gooding, which was tried in moot court last Tuesday night.

The suit was for the collection of a promissory note, alleged to have been given by Gooding to Robert Chrisman in payment for an automobile, but, as proved by the defense, Gooding's signature to the note was obtained under the pretense of getting his name on an initiative petition for light wines, beer, and free lunches.

The jury, composed of Marion Dickey, Jean DuPaul, and Armand Fuchs, did not deliberate; the decision was spontaneous and unanimous. The sheriff, who had also signed the petition, was the star witness for the defense. Judge E. O. Potter, of Potter, Foster and Immel, presided. James Ross was attorney for the defense, and Harley W. Covatt handled the case for the plaintiff.

JOURNALISTS TO HOLD BIG ANNUAL BANQUET

Many Cash Prizes and 'O's To Be Presented

About one hundred and twenty-five are expected to attend the Emerald banquet which will be held Friday evening, May 29, in the Woman's building. The guests will assemble in Alumni hall and the banquet will be served in the sun room.

At this time two special prizes will be awarded by Dean Eric Allen. A handsomely bound set of Dickens's works, the gift of Fred Lockley of the Portland Journal, will go to the member of the editing class writing the best paper on journalism; a cash prize of $20, which has been donated by Donald Skeene, correspondent for the Chicago Tribune in Paris, will be given to the member of the editing class who has displayed the best knowledge of foreign affairs during the year. The Emerald awards will also be given out during this time for the best day editor, night editor, reporter, feature writer, and for the most news tips. Emerald "O's" will also be given to members of the news and business staffs.

New members of the International Amalgamated Order of Night Editors will be initiated during the banquet. Dean Eric W. Allen of the journalism department, will be toastmaster. Speeches will be given by members of the faculty, student body representatives, and by the old and new editors.

Mary Clerin is in charge of the banquet and Sol Abramson will edit the Banquet Emerald, a tiny newspaper to be used as place-cards and souvenirs.

FEW VOTES CAST BY ALL CLASSES

Gardner, Senior President; Johnson Heads Juniors; McCroskey, Sophomores

TWO RUN LONE RACES

A. DeWitt Elected Class Barber; Small Majorities Lend Balloting Interest

Unusually small majorities featured the elections of class officers, yesterday. The vote was very light in all classes, with little excitement prevailing either before or after the selections were made. Only the closeness of the vote in several cases made the balloting of interest.

The senior class named Robert Gardner, of Portland, president, with a vote of 84 against 42 for Rodney Keating. Lylah McMurphy, of Eugene, won the vice-presidency, with a majority of four votes over her single opponent, Edna Murphey. The count was 64 to 60.

Bateman is Secretary

The secretaryship was decided by two votes, Mildred Bateman of Milton defeating Helen Webber, 64 to 62. Charles Stockwell, of Portland, had a four vote lead over Ben Jordan in the race for class treasurer, the vote standing 63 to 59. Carl Dahl, of Portland, defeated two opponents for sergeant-at-arms, scoring 61 votes, against 25 for Ferdinand Kruse and 39 for Paul Krausse.

Anna DeWitt, of Portland, will wield the razor on the senior men, due to her election as class barber by a six vote majority over Adrienne Hazard. Eleanor Burchaell received 16 votes, Mildred Nichol, 23; Imogene Lewis, 21; and the winner, 36.

James Johnson, of Hood River, will lead the junior class by virtue of a decisive victory over Verne Foltz and Algot Westergren. The winner received 76 votes, while Foltz received 53, and Westergren, 59.

Vice-president Race Close

The closest race in the entire elections was that for the junior vice-presidency, Mary West, of Salem, winning from Katherine Graef by the margin of one vote. Two other candidates served to split the ticket and cut down the vote of the leaders. The tally was 58 for West, 57 for Graef, 43 for Lois LaRoche, and 31 for Helen Pollock.

Anna Runes, of Portland, and Ward Cook, of Astoria, ran lone races for the offices secretary and treasurer respectively. Cliff Powers, of Portland, will serve as sergeant-at-arms, having scored a 108 to 81 victory of Bob Neighbor.

In the sophomore elections, Benoit McCroskey, of Salem, scored a decisive victory in the race for the presidency. He received 175 votes, while Arthur Prael was given 48, and William Prendergast, 36.

Virginia Lee Richardson, of Portland, received 137 votes for the vice-presidency against 101 for Helen Ahern, her only opponent.

The office of secretary will be filled by Alice Douglas, who won over three opponents. The vote stood 119 for the winner, 71 for Thelma Sandstrom, 42 for Mary Benson, and 22 for George Dadds.

Robert Keeney, with vote of 81, won the post of treasurer. Donald McCook received 69 votes, James Winslow, 68, and Leroy Draper, 27.

YEAR BOOKS READY

Copies of the 1925 Oregoniana are now available at the Graduate Manager's office in the old Journalism building. Students must call for their books by June 1 in order to save the $2.00 deposit. Exceptions to this rule will be made if sufficient reason is given. A few extra copies are still obtainable.

Jury Day Visitors And Judges View Work of Students

Wide Variety of Art Exhibits Shown

Jury Day was held yesterday in the department of allied arts and architecture, and work of the students during the last term was placed on exhibition to be viewed by visitors and judges.

In the sculpture department, models of the students formed an interesting display; animals, human figures and decorative designs in book ends and plaques, were featured. The normal arts school showed all types of useful and artistic things; batik, and tied and died silks, hand-woven scarfs and bags, glue work, that included portfolios, book ends and desk sets, tile work and some pottery models, decorative designs and posters.

In the architecture gallery, plans and sketches for all types of buildings were on display, everything from small picturesque cottages to massive buildings and high towers. The paintings of the oil and water classes and also those of the still life pupils were hung in their studio. In connection with the review of the students, the Northwest exhibit in the fine arts gallery was open to visitors, where the pictures of many of the art instructors were shown.

The final event of the day was the Dance Drama given at the Woman's building in the evening. It was included as part of the program because the costumes for the affair were made by members of the art department, as was also the scenery. During the day discussion groups were held by the visiting architects for the students, and tea was served in the Murray Warner oriental collection for members of the Portland art class who came down for the day. A dinner for them was given at six at the Anchorage by the faculty of the art department.

RUTH AKERS, SOPRANO, TO BE HEARD TONIGHT

Ruth Akers, popular soprano, will give her senior recital tonight at 8:15 in the school of music auditorium, assisted by Bernice Yeo, pianist, to which the public is invited. A program of songs from the Italian, German, French and English schools will be sung, including an aria from Liza Lehmann's "Persian Garden." Two charming numbers by Faure will be played by Miss Yeo.

Miss Akers is well known on the campus by her unusual, clear soprano voice. She has been a member of the girls' glee club for the past four years and this year held the rank of assistant director of that organization. She also was one of the soloists for the combined glee clubs this year.

Miss Akers is an active member of Mu Phi Epsilon, national musical fraternity for women, and for several years has been a soloist in the Presbyterian church. She is a pupil of John B. Siefert.

Following is the program to be heard tonight:

- a. Nina Pergolesi
- b. Care Selve. (Atlanta) Handel
- c. Amarilli, mia bella Caccini
- Aria—I sent my soul through the invisible—Lehmann. (Persian Garden)

- c. Si j'etais Jardinier Chaminade
- a. A Picture Curran
- b. Ah Love! but a Day Gilberte
- c. The Hour of Dreams Ward Stephens
- d. The Answer Terry

FACULTY APPROVES SATURDAY CLASSES

BISHOP SUMNER TO TALK TODAY

"The Border Lines" Will Be Assembly Subject for Annual Campus Visitor

BUSY PROGRAM PLANNED

Bishop Walter Taylor Sumner, of the Episcopal diocese of Oregon, will address today's assembly on "The Border Lines."

Bishop Sumner made his first address at the University in 1914, and has returned each year since to speak and spend some time on the campus, getting in touch with student life. He is an enthusiastic supporter of the University and its activities, and often comes down for Homecoming.

Speaker is Popular

Because of his popularity and pleasing personality, Bishop Sumner is hailed with pleasure each year by the assembly-going crowd. Those who heard him speak last year on "The Integrity of Family Life" remember a message of real worth, brightened by his wit and easy style of delivery.

During his stay here this week, Bishop Sumner has had a busy program. Beginning with Monday, his schedule runs: luncheon, Phi Kappa Psi; dinner, Delta Delta Delta. Tuesday: luncheon, Alpha Gamma Delta; dinner, Susan Campbell hall. Wednesday: luncheon, Beta Theta Pi.

Margaret Hyatt to Sing

On Tuesday afternoon, she attended the Y. M. C. A. cabinet meeting, and on Wednesday morning he was assembly speaker for the Eugene high school. Last night he was the guest at a parish dinner in his honor.

At noon today, Bishop Sumner will be the speaker-guest at the Eugene chamber of commerce luncheon.

Margaret Hyatt will sing "The Nocturne" by Paul Curran.

ALUMNI MAGAZINE HAS LATE CAMPUS EVENTS

Only one more issue of "Old Oregon" will appear before the end of school since the appearance yesterday of the May issue. The latest number is alive with interesting campus and alumni news; is a story that will interest alumni is that telling of the recent action of the senior class in joining the alumni association 100 per cent for the first year out of college. The story mentions several outstanding people in the class, as Mary Skinner, Donald Woodward and Clinton Howard. The outstanding accomplishments of the class are recorded and the article is accompanied by pictures of Ted Gillenwaters, president; Pauline Bondurant, secretary; and Marie Myers who was recently unanimously elected permanent secretary of the class.

The first story in the alumni magazine, edited by Jeanette Calkins, tells of the recent controversy with O. A. C. Extracts from the brief presented by the University and the reply from O. A. C. are included in this article. "Resume of What the Regents Did" is the title of another story and it encloses a statement by the president of the alumni association, F. H. Young.

Margaret Skavlan and Web Jones are editors of the poetry and sports sections respectively. Poetry is contributed by both students and alumni. Sport includes varsity baseball, tennis and track. Alumni news, news of the classes, campus news complete the magazine.

Debaters to Vend Ice Cream Bars On Campus Today

Ice-cream bars, with an extra thick coating of chocolate, will be sold on the campus today. These frozen rectangles vie with fans in ability to dispell the effects of Old Sol, declare the girls of Zeta Kappa Psi, honorary forensic society, who are selling these on the campus.

Ten cents will be the tax upon these delicacies. The sale begins at ten o'clock, with a special effort made at assembly hour.

Special receptacles will be placed on the campus at the order of Mr. Fisher, and all students are requested to throw the wrappers from these bars in the cans.

The sale also provides a means whereby visiting debate teams may be entertained.

EIGHT WILL COMPETE IN SPEAKING CONTEST

Mrs. W. F. Jewett Donates Prizes to Be Given

A speaking contest will be tonight at 7:30, between representatives from each section of the extempore speaking classes of Oscar A. Brown and Paul Patterson, in room 105 of the Oregon building. Eight students will compete for the first prize of fifteen dollars and the second prize of ten dollars.

Mrs. W. F. Jewett, of Eugene, is the donor of the prizes, and tonight's contest is an annual event. Last year, Sol Abramson won first prize. He subsequently made the varsity debate team.

The general subject will be "Disarmament." The specific phase of it will be determined at drawings to be held at six o'clock; thus students will be given only one and one-half hours in which to prepare their ten minute talks.

Judges will be: E. W. Merrill and H. E. Rossom, of the public speaking department; and Carlton Spencer, registrar of the University. This contest is limited to members of the extempore speaking classes, varsity debaters and orators are excluded. The students are therefore on a par, and it promises to be one of the best local contests of the year, according to Mr. Brown. Representatives were chosen partly by opinion of the instructor and partly by vote of the members in the respective classes.

Similar prizes have also been donated by Mrs. Jewett for the best forensic argument in the class in argumentation and for the delivery of the best legal subject by students in classes of pre-legal English.

FRANCES PIERCE SHOWS RARE TECHNIQUE AT ORGAN RECITAL

By P. A. L.

Miss Frances Pierce proved herself to be an organist worthy of mention in Tuesday night's program, offered in the school of music auditorium.

Opening her program with the difficult and taxing Guilmont Sonata, she at once revealed a technique that enabled her to dispose easily of all difficulties, and to impart a finish to her clear, fluent playing that gave an uncommon distinction to her work. The "Allegro" she played in a majestic and commanding manner; of the Sonatas, four movements. No doubt her best work was done in the Adagio.

Miss Pierce's second number, the "Andante Cantabile," from Tschai-kowsky's 5th Symphony, was the most familiar number on the program to her audience. This she played with musical acumen.

ELIMINATION OF CONGESTION AIM

New Schedule Will Allow Students to Have One Other Day in Week Free

MEASURE IS OPPOSED

System Will Not Affect Large Number; Morning Classes to Be Reduced

Saturday classes have received official sanction. As a result of faculty action yesterday, classes will be scheduled in all departments for six days a week, beginning next fall.

The move toward Saturday classes began some time ago, and was first brought before the faculty during the early part of the spring term. The matter was referred to a committee for full investigation and was to have been voted upon at a meeting held a month ago. No vote was rendered at that time, however, the matter being returned to the committee for further discussion.

The project was brought up again yesterday, and despite much opposition on the part of the students, it was sanctioned.

Classrooms Congested
The one motive in providing for classes on Saturdays is the relief of congestion, according to members of the faculty. They point out that classroom congestion would further aggravate the situation.

The new system is not designed so that most of the students will have classes on Saturday. Comparatively a small number of students will so be affected, according to faculty statements. Courses will be arranged so that the student will have some option on taking them with or without a Saturday class. For instance, some three hour courses will be scheduled for Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, while others will be held on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. An attempt will be made to enable those who have classes on Saturday to have some other day in the week free.

Waste to Be Avoided
Under the present system most of the three hour classes tie up the use of the classrooms for a whole week, except where an occasional two hour class is inserted. The new system aims at eliminating this waste, and bringing about an increase in usable time.

The new system will also attempt to introduce more afternoon classes, balancing the schedule by reducing morning classes. In the past great

"Tanglewood Tales" of Stoughton, she produced some very telling color effects and proved herself thoroughly "at home" in this particular type of composition.

Although her program contained only six numbers, Miss Pierce may be said to have run the gamut of representative styles of compositions. Her skill in registration, appreciation of musical values, and ability to create beautiful effects by legitimately artistic means were so happily disclosed as to excite admiration, compelled only by thorough training and a fine intelligence.

Frank Jue contributed a group of songs, and sang with his usual finish. He responded with an encore, "At Parting," of Rodgers. Incidentally this is possibly Mr. Jue's last appearance, as he will not be on the campus next year. To Bernice Yeo must be given mention for her accurate and satisfactory accompaniments.
