

MISS WILBUR GIVES YEAR'S PLAY PROGRAM

Attends 50th Anniversary Of College Founding

Optimistic regarding the dramatic talent of the students in the department she has come to Oregon to conduct, Miss Florence E. Wilbur, instructor in drama and play production, announced yesterday a tentative outline of her play program for the year. The new instructor explained that thus far but little of the program has been definitely worked out.

The upperclass division, Miss Wilbur reported, is planning to put on a series of three one-act plays very soon, the first, a comedy, "Monday, a Lame Minuet," by Alfred Kreynborg; then, a fantasy, "Aria Da Capo," by Edna St. Vincent Millay, who is said by some critics to be the best American playwright; and third, a more serious production, "Riders to the Sea," an Irish play by Yeats.

"Monday, a Lame Minuet," she explained, was an entirely new attempt by Alfred Kreynborg, a poet, who believes in free verse as a means to developing a certain musical sense. This gives the play rather to movement than to dramatic action and although it has no musical accompaniment there is a suggestion of a Scherzo-like theme.

"My beginning classes are unusually intelligent, alert, and interested," Miss Wilbur declared. "Their pantomimic work is really very good, and we are planning to put on some plays of this type during the year." An interesting feature, she added, would be the production of a group of one-act plays written by students of the University which, she thinks, will be a stimulus to creative work in such departments as well as great assistance to the students themselves.

Miss Wilbur is a graduate of Cornell University and very recently has been director of the drama extension of the Community Arts Association. She has had unusual experience as a professional director of plays.

The program will include music by the Philippine orchestra as well as selections by representatives of other nationalities. Refreshments will be in cope with the international spirit.

PETRIFIED TREE TRUNKS ARE LURING GEOLOGISTS

Fossil tree trunks near Jasper, together with other evidences of the geologic age of the region, are the attraction which is leading an excursion of about 200 members of Dr. Earl L. Packard's general geology class on a field trip this morning. Since the announcements in class, plans have been changed and the trip will be made by special train on the Southern Pacific, leaving at 8:30 from the siding alongside the University heating plant. The return is to be made by 1:00 o'clock, in time for the football game.

The expense of the trip will be 70 cents for each member of the class who goes.

The highly developed agricultural methods used in the islands were also told of by the speaker. "The plantations specialize in the production of pineapple and sugar cane," he said.

TRAFFIC ON AVENUE DISTURBS CLASSES

Number of Campus Cars Greatly Increased

The number of cars on the campus has taken a decided increase as is shown by the crowded condition of the parking space west of the Administration building and the streets where parking is permitted. As usual, most of the student-owned cars are Fords, although there are not so many of the one-lung type, which became so popular last year. They will probably become more numerous, however, as the year progresses; and many of those now fairly decent looking will be rated as heaps after they have weathered several of the winter's storms.

Traffic on Thirteenth avenue is unusually heavy, it being a main thoroughfare of the city in addition to being the center of the campus. Much of the congestion is caused by cars going to and coming from the Pacific highway, east of the campus. At times there is so much noise that classes are disturbed in the University buildings.

The parking lot west of the Administration building is the only one of its kind on the campus. It was constructed last year. Prior to that time, car owners were obliged to find parking space wherever they could, which was usually on the side streets adjoining the campus.

For the convenience of autoists who are not acquainted with the streets of the campus, a sign has been placed on the corner of University street and Thirteenth avenue indicating that University street ends one block east.

GIRLS' RIFLE PRACTICE TO COMMENCE AT ONCE

Practice for women's riflery will begin immediately according to Thelma Sandstrom, head of women's riflery. Any woman in the University who wishes to try out for the Varsity team this fall may do so by communicating with Miss Sandstrom at Kappa Kappa Gamma house, phone 204, today or Monday.

The best scores made this fall will determine the selection of the Varsity team, to be formed this winter term. Practice will be held on Tuesday and Thursday from 8:00 to 12:00 at the R. O. T. C. barracks.

EIGHT DAY WEEK, PLEA OF BIOLOGY FACULTY

An eight day week is the thing the biology department needs most, according to Mrs. Yocom, who is in charge of the laboratory work. This year's biology class of 205 students, most of them freshmen, is the largest one since 1921-22.

The equipment and laboratory space is adequate for only 160 people. Because of this limitation extra laboratory periods are given Thursday and Saturday mornings. Instead of emphasizing special problems, as has been the policy formerly, the staff plans to deal with basic information this year.

Oregon Meets Idaho Today In The First Big Battle of Year

(Continued from page one) that Oregon has not reached the peak of its season's play. Idaho has gained the reputation of reaching the height of its playing power early in the season. This afternoon the Vandals enter the game probably the strongest they will be during the season. Whereas Oregon will not be playing in top form for a couple of weeks. That is due to the new system now used and the mass of material which had to be worked over.

The Vandals are cocky. The team has been pointed for weeks for this game. They have been generating enthusiasm for days up at the Gem State institution. In the Idaho-College of Idaho game where the Vandals barely missed defeat by a 16 to 14 score the train load of rooters wore caps with the slogan, "Idaho 14, Oregon 0."

Watch Harry Reget, the 132 pound, flash, who passes, punts, runs the ball and is the brains of the outfit. Their offense is built around this shifty little back. If he is knocked off his pins the team is liable to go to pieces. The fast, long passing, chance taking attack that is expected of the visitors will be in Reget's hands. He has a couple of able receivers in Nelson and Erickson, on the wings.

Watch Jones Go
Watch Locomotive Jones, 185 pounds of drive and Louise Anderson, consistent, steady, veteran field general who will pilot the team. Then there is the new man in the backfield; Beryl Hodgens, 170 pound plunger who gets his first dose of conference football. George Minnaugh, punter and passer fills the other halfback berth. Ready to go in will be Vic Wetzel, a consistent kicker, fast as a dash man on his feet and with 189 pounds of weight to give him power. Otto Vitus, veteran of first year will probably get the full-back call. Altho ten pounds heavier than last year he remains the fast man in the backfield. Red Langworthy, tough and wiry, is the other half-back alternate.

Line Is Experienced
The line is tried and experienced from end to end. Bob Mautz, Bert Kerns, Ken Bailey, Carl Johnson, Gene Shields, Al Sinclair and Sherm Smith are the crew from right to left. All are lettermen, averaging just a little under 180 pounds in weight and with from one to two years experience. They have the new system of line play that Baz Williams has been drilling into them for five weeks. That group of forwards should be a stonewall.

Obak's Kollege Krier

OBAK Wallace, Publisher E.E.J. Office Boy and Editor
Volume 4 SATURDAY A. M. Number 2

"PIPE THIS," SAYS OBAK

"Become a man and put away childish things." This was the text of Dean Obak's assembly speech today, when he addressed the Obak student body. "Childish things," in this case proved to be cigarettes and Wallace offers as a necessary substitute a nice long angling pipe.

"What is more collegiate," he asked the student body, than a long, gleaming, slender stemmed pipe protruding from a firm, square cut young lips." The pipe, he claims, marks the college man. Today, when it is no special male attribute to smoke cigarettes, the pipe is becoming more and more the Vogue.

The proposed plan of the Obak student body, namely, that of compulsory pipe use was discussed by several important men of the Obak campus.

"Why did Obak's move upstairs?" That is a question that has puzzled many prominent followers of the happenings of the Avenue.—This is the secret. Obak did it to escape the Co-ed. From the time the institution started it has been a school for men and with the invasion of the Barber Shop and other refuges of the male, the authorities became alarmed and decided to move to a more remote section. The upstairs den for men is seldom molested by the fair co-ed as was the case before. The regents believe that were it not for this move the place would have demoralized into a sort of feminine club.

When a bunch of girls get together I always pity the first one to leave.

CAROL THE CO-ED

ANNE DARLING:
I have just managed to get sort of settled and down to work. But, my dear, I have eight o'clock classes three mornings during the week, and if you remember how terribly hard it is for me to get up, you will probably wonder how I ever manage to arrive on time. Well, the great solution is—I have an alarm clock, the biggest bargain at the Red Cross Drug Store, for only $1.39.

I ran down to the Co-ed Barber Shop yesterday between classes to get my hair trimmed. Shagginess is certainly an unfor-givable sin, especially when this shop is so close to the campus. It is an ideal place in every way—handy, just back of the Co-op, exclusively for women, and has expert barbers, who always give you the right cut. Hardly anyone goes to town for hair-cuts anymore.

While we were uptown yesterday, we stopped at the Cosmetics, as Jane wanted a shampoo and curl. It's in the new Eugene hotel, you know, and we certainly admired the beautiful furnishings. The color scheme is so restful, soft violet, with green and gold, and the merest touch of vermilion red. While we were waiting for Jane, Mrs. B. Piper Bell, in charge of the shop, showed us some lovely powder puffs, with hand-painted faces on them.

You should see the darling imported velour hats they have at the Style Shop—just right for campus wear. I bought a copper-colored one, with a cut brim and the cleverest bow. Frances, who is tall and slim, got one in the new pirate shape, in a lovely wood brown. The vagabond shapes seem very popular this fall, too.

Found an awfully clever motto for my desk. One of Edgar Guest's witty bits, which are so amusing. Discovered this at a new place, the Eugene Art and Gift Shop, on West 10th. And the best part of these mottoes are the little pegs which make them easy to set around on tables and desks.

We're having guests at the house Saturday for the football game, and are going to give 'em a feed Saturday night. We've ordered home-made huckleberry pies from Underwood & Elliott's who, by the way, are going to move into their fine new building within a week or two. They have the dandiest Rainbow sandwich filling, too, made of ripe olives, pickles, mayonnaise and everything else that's good.

We've ordered our ham for the feed at the Palace Market. It's the best place near the campus to get meat, right by Underwood and Elliott's grocery. We know they have the very best quality, because all their meat is government inspected; so you see there. Having had quite damp weather lately, and also a heavy date is no danger of getting any horrid old germs from it. So many of the houses buy all their meat there, because they are always sure of good service and excellent quality.

with such a clever chap this evening, decided to have a new parcel for the occasion. Went to Hasting Sisters, who have a new place of business in the Miner building. You know they used to be in the Register building, farther uptown.

And the best surprise when I got back—an adorable pot of ferns from the chap I mentioned. I suppose he thought I was hinting the other night when I raved about needing something green in my room. From the best florist in town, too—Raup's. I was certainly pleased, and we got along famously that evening. Will write again next week.

Always,
CAROL.
