NEWS ARTISTS AWAIT JOURNALISM JAMBOREE

Tonight at 8:00 o'clock in the men's gym; pretzels, doughnuts and cider; black, green, yellow and red masks and costumes, the latter anything but school clothes; dancing, with prize waltzes n' everything and with imported music; edition after edition of the Jamboree Cryer, newspaper, printed on the spot; do nate; fun galore and admission only 40 cents—such is the what not and the whyfor of the Journalism Jamboree.

That's just about all, except all students taking journalism courses, working on the Emerald or interested in journalism are invited. It will be a big, big bust, says Ed Miller, chief jamboree-or.

FROSH WOMEN URGED TO FILE INFORMATION

All freshmen girls who have not filled out information cards for Dean Esterly's file are requested to do so as soon as possible. These cards contain such information as the girl's address, her college activities, and her health record. In this way the dean is able to keep in touch with every girl on the campus.

Due to the unusually large number of freshmen women this year, the supply of cards ran out before many of the girls had registered and a new supply has just arrived.

Obak's Kollege Krier

OBAK Wallace, Publisher E.E.J. Office Boy and Editor Volume 4 SATURDAY A. M. Number 2

Such Popularity Must Be Deserved

Editorial Obak is writing this editorial for freshmen only. No one else, of course, will read it. Like rare steak, it isn't done. But to those who do scan these lines of advice remember this. Now that you are shut off from the rest of the world (i. e. without money), you will be expected to assume a very reverend attitude toward those of high position. One of the things you will hear ofteneast is, "Now when I was a Freshman." This expression usually precedes a rather lengthy account of the virtues of some swollen individual's past. This expression should bring a very respectful look to your face, but in reality you should feel sorry for him. His account of that shameful stage of existence (i. e. Freshman year) should be hidden and not spoken of—much the same as dirty underwear or holy socks. Having listened to this important bit of advice, son, forget it, and order one of Obak's Choc Malts.

ANN DARLENG: So much doing lately, I've hardly had time to go to classes, let alone write to you. This lovely weather makes me just crazy to get away from work. Tomorrow six of us are going on a hike to Spencer's, and we are preparing the biggest lunch. We bought delicious yeast loaf and some lunch tongue for our sandwiches at The Palace Market. They have, also, boiled ham, head cheese, wienies, and just about every other lunch meat one wants—all the houses buy their meat there.

Tippie asked me to stay with her last night when her family was away. I just hated to take that oversized night bag of mine, and did have the good luck to get a large vanity case at The Red Cross Drug Store. This case is well equipped and large enough for necessities.

I bought a gorgeous turban of brocaded gold metal cloth at The Style Shop a few days ago. Mable got one of black panned velvet, with a metal cloth crown of silver trim with bright ribbon. It's a knock-out, and everyone says she looks like a million in it. And now she has hopes of making a hit with that marvelous man she met at open house when he sees the hat.

We have the dearest house mother, and she is just crazy about flowers; so when I got my allowance Wednesday, I proceeded to go down to Raup's Floral Shop and order her a dozen beautiful white hyacinthums. They had some lovely violets, too.

The Co-Ed Barber Shop, right by the Co-op, you know, where all the girls get hair-cuts, is giving real honest-to-goodness shampoos now. It's so close to the campus that you can run down between classes and save the street car fare to town. Like most girls, I'll admit I do like to get my hair shampooed by a man.

Mable's hair is so fine and silky it simply will not hold a marcel, so she dropped in at The Cosmetician, in the Eugene hotel, to get one of the slyish French paper curls. Her hair looks as though it were naturally curly, and it has stayed in twice as long as a marcel would in her fine hair.

Oh, Ann, did you know that the modern Egyptian influence has gone from pattern to portrait, and that these lovely pictures may be found in soft pastels in many Egyptian scenes? Another wonderful feature about these hand, made pastels is the reasonable price. They may be found at "The Little Shop Around the Corner" from the McDonald theatre.

Dropped into Hastings Sisters with Tippie, who had to have another marcel. Absolutely that girl spends more money for mar-

I almost forgot to tell you that Underwood & Elliott are in their new building, and it surely looks spick and span—everything is so well arranged, too. They have a lot more room than in the old store, and they always give the same quick, pleasant service we girls like so well. Oh, dear, it's time for class. Answer soon, Ann. Yours in a hurry, CAROL.
