

TYPHOID CASE AT INFIRMARY

Water From River Probable Cause of Infection

Miss Anona Hildenbrand, a member of the freshman class, has been in the infirmary since October 12th with typhoid fever. A warning has been issued from the health department against the drinking of water from the Willamette River and the mill-race. This water is not fit for drinking and is known to have typhoid germs in it.

Greatest Precautions Taken
"Almost from the first day the possibility of typhoid was considered, so that Miss Hildenbrand was isolated and precautions were taken as with a known case of typhoid. Since last Sunday she has had a special nurse in attendance. While she has been very sick and has had a high fever there have been no complications and she is doing nicely," announcement from the health department stated.

Infection Due To Bacillus
After a report from the State Board of Health concerning a specimen of the blood, the University service announced that the blood indicated infection to be due to the paratyphoid bacillus. This bacillus is closely allied to the bacillus typhosus and clinically the disease is indistinguishable from true typhoid. Usually, however, paratyphoid fever runs a somewhat milder, shorter course.

Mill Race Water Unsafe

The announcement suggested that, although no definite source of the infection was definitely known, two possibilities are evident. Miss Hildenbrand's father is reported to have had numerous infections with typhoid and possibly is a carrier. The other and more likely possibility, according to the University physicians, is that the infection came from drinking water directly from the Willamette river. This water is safe for drinking only after it has undergone treatment. When it is realized that Springfield, only a few miles away, empties its sewerage into this stream and that there have been a few cases of typhoid in Springfield during the summer, the danger is apparent. That the water looks clear or runs swiftly does not guarantee its safety. Because of the low stage of the river, the danger is probably greater now than at any other time, though it is decidedly unwise ever to drink directly from the mill-race or Willamette river.

No Cause for Alarm

The statement went on to say that inasmuch as both the men and women have access to a clean swimming pool, there is no excuse for swimming in the mill-race or river. Though there is no direct evidence, it is possible that some cases of intestinal disorders have been caused in this way.

The health service emphasized the fact that there is no cause for alarm, and that the regular drinking water is not under suspicion. But any other water both from wells and from running streams in this or neighboring localities should be used with caution.

WHY YOU NEED THIS GUIDE

"It is safe to say that failure to guide and direct study is the weak point in the whole education system." Prof. G. M. Whipple, U. of Michigan.

"The successful men in college do not seem to be very happy. Most of them, especially the athletes, are overworked." Prof. H. S. Canby, Yale.

"Misdirected labor, though honest and well intentioned, may lead to naught. Among the most important things for the student to learn is how to study. Without knowledge of this, his labor may be largely in vain." Prof. G. F. Swain, M.I.T.

"To students who have never learnt 'How to Study,' work is very often a chastisement, a flagellation, and an insuperable obstacle to contentment." Prof. A. Inglis, Harvard.

"How to Study" will show you how to avoid all mis-directed effort. Get a good start and make this year a highly successful one by sending for this hand-book and guide NOW.
