SPIRIT BURNS HIGH STUDENTS RALLY AT PORTLAND GREAT VICTORY LOOMS

HUGE OREGON NOISE PARADE STIRS PORTLAND; COLLEGIATE HORDES FLOOD METROPOLIS

Oregon Fight Will Blow off Steam; Serpentine Lead by Mayor Baker to Multnomah Field; Fighting Spirit Dominant Among Students

A last practice was held last night before Oregon's 27 gridiron warriors left for Portland and what promises to be the greatest football battle in the northwest this season.

For the first time this year the team is "on its toes." There has been a radical change in spirit. There is no thought of losing, or of holding the Golden Bears. A new team with a new spirit will take the field this afternoon at 2:30 against Andy Smith's smart eleven.

Two months of hard work have been spent in drilling the team for this game, and it has reached the height of its efficiency. The only way the team can go is up the ladder. The coaching staff has absolute confidence in the players. Some of the finest material in the northwest has been an untried mass, but today it enters the game in its finished form.

The last two weeks have been spent in developing an offense for today's game. The Pacific game was merely a practice workout and the regulars were reserved for the "big" game of the year.

A veteran lineup from end to end on the line makes the forward defense strong; as strong as that of the Californians. It is not as heavy by about five pounds to the man, as the southern line, but it is speedy. Experience today will count for much and these men have it. The offense, formerly the weak point of the Oregon team, has developed to a remarkable stage of efficiency.

Three things are counted on to put the Lemon-Yellow over the high hurdle of the year. The veteran line with a strong defense is the main thing. The heavy powerful backfield which has a world of speed, and the punting of Vic Wetzel, are the other factors, besides for the first time in years, there is a capable group of reserves on the bench, waiting the call.

There is plenty of excitement bound up in the two teams. It is going to be a thriller from whistle to gun shot. The spectacular California backs will get into action; Oregon's heavy line plungers will do their stuff for the first time this year; long kicks, passes and fine field work will fill the afternoon, for two polished elevens will clash.

The weather promises to be ideal. No fog will obscure the game or wet weather spoil the aerial attack.

PICTURES OF BIG GAME TO BE SHOWN TONIGHT

Oregon students who remain in Eugene will be given the opportunity to see the Oregon-California game after it is played in Portland today.

"The Webfoot Weekly," a film service of the Oregon Journal will take pictures of the game, develop them immediately, and rush them by motorcycle to the McDonald theater, where they will be shown on the screen at about 10 o'clock as a special feature of the second show.

INFIRMARY SPACE POPULAR

Space in the infirmary has been very popular since the opening of school this year. From six to eight have been cared for daily, although none but the case of typhoid announced yesterday, are at all serious. They are largely la grippe, cold cases and such infections, according to Dr. F. M. Miller, infirmary and dispensary doctor.

WEATHER OBSERVER REGISTERED HERE

Gerard deBroekert, weather observer for Eugene, is now registered as a freshman in the school of education at the University.

Mr. deBroekert, was appointed weather observer by Edward L. Wells, head of weather bureaus in Oregon, January 11, 1925. His most important duty in carrying on this work is to make a daily report including the maximum and minimum temperature, amount of rainfall, direction of the wind, and the depth of the Willamette river. Monthly and weekly reports of this information, Mr. deBroekert states, are sent to Portland to Mr. Wells. During the winter months, starting with November first, a report is sent each day by telegram.

If at any time the water in the Willamette rises above the ten foot mark or if there is in one day a rainfall of more than one inch, two telegrams a day are sent to the Portland headquarters.

Record of Oregon California Games Since 1899 Listed

Oregon has played the Golden Bears eight times in the last 26 years, since 1899. A long period of time elapsed between 1905 and 1916 when no games were played because the California teams were playing Rugby.

The record:

1899	Oregon	0	California	12
1900	Oregon	2	California	0
1904	Oregon	0	California	4
1905	Oregon	0	California	0
1916	Oregon	39	California	14
1917	Oregon	21	California	0
1918	Oregon	0	California	6
1921	Oregon	0	California	39

Oregon has won three times, tied once, and lost four times. Dick Smith played on the team in 1899 as fullback and captain. He came back from Columbia in 1904 and coached the team for one year. In 1903 he played against Andy Smith when he was playing for Pennsylvania. The two Smiths are ancient rivals both as players and as coaches.

Oregon Chances Against Bear Good Seen By Records

Both Oregon and California have met defeat this season. California's team is drilled to reach its top season form early in the year in order to show well against the teams that point for it.

Oregon has failed to show up this year, but the team is coming around slowly. Bigger men develop slowly so that after two months of work Oregon is now at top form. California is taking the game lightly but Oregon is hopped up to win.

Record of games this season:

California	52, Nevada	0.
California	0, Olympic Club	6.
California	6, St. Mary's	0.
Total, California	58, Lost	6.
Oregon	0, Multnomah	0.
Oregon	0, Idaho	6.
Oregon	13, Pacific	0.
Total, Oregon	13, Lost	6.

OREGON GRIDSTERS PREPARED TO BATTLE BEARS: WEBFOOTERS POINTED TO DEFEAT CALIFORNIA

Smashing Advances and Flash Plays To Mark Game At Multnomah This Afternoon When Polished Coast Teams Will Clash

Oregon spirit is at fever heat, and all is primed for the Big Fight. The memory of Oregon teams that bagged bigger game than the Golden Bear is crystallizing into a determination to bring home the Bear's hide.

Last night's noise parade and rally, in which hundreds of students joined the alumni shaking the foundations of Portland's business center, destroyed the last vestiges of sedate reserve.

Every student that could leave the campus is making Portland his Mecca today. Hundreds arrived on the big S. P. Special last night and many others are coming via automobile and train today—all with the one idea of eating Bear meat tonight.

Today at 1:30 from the Multnomah hotel, a serpentine, lead by Mayor George Baker, will head for the Multnomah field, and the pent-up Oregon fight will have another chance to blow off steam before the game starts.

And it's going to be a hot fight. The Oregon team is ready, and with the fighting spirit that is fairly sizzling in 3000 students and alumni right at their backs, there's a whopping big chance that if the California team gets its Golden Bear home at all it's going to be in shreds.

The team that will trot out on the field today for Oregon is primed to the ears with a "Fight to Win" spirit. Oregon is tired of losing—and an over-confident opponent is a good one to start reversing the order of this season's scores upon. California is not impregnable, and the Oregon team and students know it. A high feeling of optimism, with a foundation of determination, is growing.

Students and alumni who are flocking into the bleachers at Multnomah this afternoon aren't going with a sneaking feeling that there isn't much use to make a lot of noise, or to put every ounce of their own support behind the team. They are there with the conviction that if hard, clean playing and boundless morale can win a game, it's already won.

Fight 'em, Oregon!
