By Lylah Lou McMurphy

Tomorrow practically everyone will be leaving Eugene to spend the holidays at home, and the football men leave to battle the Huskies in Seattle. Our campus will be deserted except for a few who remain to study. The past week-end was the last open to house affairs, so that from now until Christmas very little will be done on the campus in a social way.

Many informal house dances were given Friday evening, but of highest importance in social affairs of the week-end was the Sophomore Informal, given Saturday evening at the Armory.

Phases of college life which are perhaps most firmly impressed on the mind of a freshman were used as the incentive for decorations at the informal dance with which freshmen of Kappa Sigma entertained the sophomores of that organization Friday evening.

In the hall were miniature steps to represent those at the library and a duplicate of the Oregon seal was printed on the floor. Other bits of college life represented were the senior bench, the freshman bonfire and the "O" on Skinner's butte.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Earl, Capt. and Mrs. F. L. Culin Jr., Capt. and Mrs. F. M. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Benefiel were patrons and patronesses.

Chinese lanterns, Japanese pictures, scrolls and incense gave the Phi Kappa Psi underclass dance, Friday, an Oriental atmosphere. The couples were met at the door by a boy attired in Chinese clothes who later assisted in serving refreshments. Perhaps the most effective bit of artistry was the altar, arranged with many beautiful silks, on which sat a large Buddha.

During the evening pleasing musical numbers were given, in which Fred West, Paul Peek, Alan Smith and Ted Larson participated.

Patron and patronesses were Mrs. W. F. G. Thacher and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Snyder.

Thursday afternoon from four until six, members of Alpha Phi honored Mrs. Henry Augustine with a formal tea at the chapter house. Receiving with Mrs. Augustine were Mrs. Virginia Judy Esterly, Mrs. W. F. G. Thacher and Miss Elizabeth Rauch.

Autumn tones were bright in the reception room, with baskets of flowers attractively arranged. The tea table was lovely with a huge cluster of flowers in the center and long candles in silver candle holders at each end. Presiding at the tea urns were Mrs. Frank Chambers, Mrs. Joseph Williams, Mrs.

Bruce Giffen and Mrs. William Willmot. Members of the chapter gave a musical program of variation during the tea hours when about eighty guests called.

About fifty couples enjoyed the informal dance of Beta Theta Pi on Friday evening at their house. Palms, ferns and streamers in pink and blue, colors of Beta, used in the living room and hall gave them a formal appearance, while the dining room was quite the opposite, transformed into a barn. Baled hay, burlap sacks, stuffed birds, horseshoes and saddles were much in evidence there.

Feature numbers, composed by William Grantham, were given by Frank Roher, vocalist, and William Grantham, who played banjo.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Rosson, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Snyder were patrons and patronesses for the affair.

Overalls and aprons were the costumes worn by those who participated in the "Hard Times" dance at which the underclassmen of Alpha Delta Pi were hostess Friday evening at their house.

Lanterns were used for lights, and pitchforks, alfalfa and hay were in evidence around the house. Miss Susan Elliott entertained those present with a solo dance during the evening.

Mrs. Jennie Burrows and Mrs. W. J. McKnight were patronesses. Bacon buns, coffee and doughnuts were served late in the evening.

Upperclassmen of Phi Delta Theta were hosts for a formal dinner dance Friday from 6:30 until 10:30 at their house. A number of floor lamps cast a dim glow over the rooms and lovely shades of chrysanthemums in baskets gave a gay touch.

Chaperons were Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Church and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Banks.

Sigma Nu colors were effectively used at an informal dance given Friday evening by the pledges of that fraternity for members of the house.

Miss Madge Normile sang some pleasing musical numbers and Al Serpa's band from O. A. C. furnished the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Coffey were patron and patroness.

The Anchorage tea house was the scene of the Thacher Cottage informal Friday evening. Palms and rosebuds of lavender and blue were the simple but effective decorations.

Miss Beatrice Fish, in an old-fashioned hoop skirt, did a charming dance and distributed tiny buttonieres to the men.

Patrons and patronesses were Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Fish, Miss May Borquist and Mr. Kenneth Rowe.

Sigma Beta Phi entertained at dinner Sunday honoring Miss Bertha Willock, district councillor of Sigma Kappa, and several members of the Sigma Kappa chapter at O. A. C., who were the Misses Thelma Gannaway, Gladys Hartley, Ann Murry, Ermina Lutz, and Alberta Langdon. The other guests included Mrs. A. E. Roberts, Mrs. L. E. Bean, Mrs. Lewis Simpson, and Mrs. Alfred L. Lomax. After dinner music was furnished by the Misses Mary and Irene Burton, who played the violin and the cello, accompanied by Miss Laura Prescott. Miss Vivian Woodside sang several solos.
