UNIVERSITY ENJOYS VISITS OF MUSICIANS

Artists Able to Play Here For First Time

The University this year has been exceptionally fortunate thru the visits of artists of the piano, violin and voice, but never before has an organist of international fame been presented before local audiences. It has been only within the last year that such a thing could be possible, inasmuch as there was not an organ in the city upon which an artist could really display his talent, but with the installation of the greater Reuter organ in the school of music auditorium, the possibility of an organ recital became a reality.

It is a fact that after the orchestra the organ has the greatest range of musical expression of any other instrument, and embraces nearly all the choirs of the ordinary symphony orchestra. There are few of the great symphonies which cannot be played on the organ, and the possibilities for artistic interpretation are almost unlimited. The University's own organ ranks among the finest in the northwest in range and tone, and those who will hear the great Courboin on February 11, will hear him at his best, and with all the advantages that only an instrument as great as the artist himself can allow.

Courboin is a famous Belgian-American organist formerly of the Antwerp Cathedral. He has been, for the past few years the guest organist of the famous Wanamaker recitals, which are played upon the greatest organ in America and the largest instrument of its kind in the world.

MANSFIELD COMPANY GUESTS OF MISS STUPP

The Portia Mansfield dancers made their latest appearance in Eugene at the McDonald theater Monday evening. Their first engagement was here in November, and the return was for Monday and Tuesday.

The company consists of 10 women and one man. Their repertoire includes toe dancing, typical ballet dancing, dramatic work, lyrical dancing, acrobatic work, and tragedy. In regard to the dancing Miss Lillian L. Stupp, instructor of physical education says: "Their work is of a very superior type, and is done with a great deal of finish."

The dancers have just come from California and are enroute east. Miss Portia Mansfield and Miss Charlotte Perry, graduates of Smith College, started a dancing camp at Steamboat Springs, Colorado 12 years ago. They specialized in dancing, dramatics, costuming, stage production, and sculpturing. The camp was divided in junior, senior and professional divisions. Three years ago they began to tour the country, choosing the best dancers to make the trips. All the ideas for dances were worked out by Miss Mansfield and Miss Perry.

The hangings used on the stage were of Japanese silk in tied and dyed batik work. All this was made at the camp.

Miss Adeline Rotti of St. Louis, one of the dancers, was the house guest of Miss Stupp while she was in Eugene. Yesterday Miss Stupp took the entire company for a trip up the Mackenzie.

Miss Florence Wilbur, Miss Ernestine Troemel, and Miss Stupp were guests of the company at a birthday party given for the only man of the group at the Anchorage, Sunday.

CONFERENCE PLANS NEARLY COMPLETED

Students to Participate in Entertainment

The Oregon Newspaper Conference program to be held on the campus February 19 and 20 has been nearly completed. New men in Oregon journalism will be featured on the program. Students will participate in the entertainment and in an exhibit of fine old books.

The first speaker Friday morning will be Walter W. R. May, executive news editor of the Oregonian. Mr. May was with the Oregonian earlier in his career. Later he went to New York. He has only recently returned to Portland to take his present position.

John Henry Nash, famous printer of San Francisco, who is noted for his fine editions of classical books, will appear again this year. A committee, acting under the chairmanship of Hal Kirk, is getting up an exhibit of fine printing from the library to go with Mr. Nash's talk. The exhibit will be put in cases in the architecture exhibit room.

Ruth Gregg, senior in the school of journalism, will represent the school in a talk at the banquet for conference members on Friday evening at the Osburn hotel. Ed Miller, editor of the Emerald, will be toastmaster at a luncheon at the Anchorage Saturday.

The Friday night banquet will be shorter than usual so that the editors will be given the opportunity to attend the Oregon-O. A. C. basketball game. Saturday's program has not yet been completed, but a printing banquet will be given that evening to close the conference.

ROJANSKY DESCRIBES INVENTION IN ARTICLE

Vladimir Rojansky, research assistant in the mathematics department, has an article published on his invention "Hydro-oscilloscope," in the December 1925 number of the Optical Society of America and Review of Scientific Instruments.

The article gives brief description of an apparatus, the Hydro-oscilloscope, devised to supply water-flow analogy of alternating electrical currents in inductive circuits. The apparatus is the result of an attempt to unite into a single system the different analogies of the constants of an inductive circuit usually employed in class room instruction, and to combine them with the idea of flow.

Mr. Rojansky started the article when an undergraduate at Whitman college and has spent nearly two years in perfecting it. He entered the University a year ago last fall and expects to take his master's degree in June.

Never has progress seemed so swift

GRANDMOTHER'S girlhood would seem pathetically poor in comforts to us today. She never knew the convenience of electrically done housework; of time saved in cooking; of swift trips through the country by motor; of the world's best music in her home, out of the air. A generation has changed the lives, comforts and habits of the world.

Tomorrow—new conveniences, new comforts will swiftly find their way into our lives.

The advertisements will herald their coming. Today a manufacturer will announce a new and better product. Tomorrow a million men and women will use it as an old friend.

An advertisement breaks down the barrier of distance and tells to all the world—in a day's time—the best and newest things the world has devised.

People who keep abreast with progress read the advertisements.

Advertising is a herald of better things
