Editorial Observations; Presidents and What Not

We met Dr. Chase yesterday afternoon and liked him immensely. In the company of Dr. Conklin and Dean Allen, Dr. Chase came to the journalism building, where he had promised to meet the Emerald reporters and newspaper correspondents.

Oregon's romping basketball team is again open to congratulations. By tossing the Washington State College basketballers neatly into the ditch, Reinhart's men have a single obstacle to remove in the path leading to the Northwest championship.

Verily, however, defeat at the hands of O. A. C. next Saturday would be most sodden. Not so?

Student interests the nation over are pretty much the same. Their thoughts, actions, hobbies and enthusiasms run in the same channels. Occasionally, however, some enterprising group of collegians will break loose from the mob and launch a new idea, as indicated by a nation wide student interest in their own education.

A musician of the highest order will appear on the campus tomorrow night in the person of Charles M. Courboin, celebrated Belgian organist. Courboin's recital will give music lovers a splendid opportunity to hear the organ in the music auditorium at its best, since the guest artist is considered one of the greatest organists of the present time.

Singular interest will be attached to three Guild Hall plays being produced Thursday and Friday of this week, since the dramatics department has selected plays written by Oregon students instead of selecting recognized authors.

Dr. Chase and his party, says the news, were compelled to abandon automobile travel and board the train leading to Eugene. The rains did it. Yesterday the mist fell heavy. Proving, we suppose, that time and tide and Oregon rain wait for no man—not even prospective University presidents.

Because of insufficient seats at basketball games, both Oregon and O. A. C. will be able to provide very few seats for the visiting team's rooters. A few seats for visitors will be made available in both the Eugene and Corvallis games, and a handful from each visiting college will be able to see the games.

Under the leadership of Dean Henry D. Sheldon and M. H. Douglass, University librarian, a religious conference that should attract campus wide attention will be held Thursday and Friday of this week. The guest of honor at the conference will be C. E. Rugh of the University of California, a man well versed in religious work in colleges and universities.

Announcement of the probability of construction of the new $150,000 basketball pavilion the early part of this spring will be met with approval by all Oregonians. The crowded armory, which has served nobly in years past, now fails to accommodate the huge crowds that are demanding admission to the basketball games.

The Emerald is strong for having a fraternity of fraternities. Only those tongs showing great intelligence, perseverance and sincerity of purpose shall be members. The name of this fraternity—glorious brotherhood—shall be, "The Simple Six."

ANNOUNCEMENT The Oregon Aggie basketball team beat the Washington State quintet last night in Corvallis, 31 to 24.

SIRUS PINCHPENNY'S DIARY

Lay long abed this day with a high sniffing head cold and mightily puzzled as to how I did fetch it upon me, as I have worn asiffity and eaten onions this twelvemonth. Amon to printery where did engage in nonsensical conversation with Geneva Drum and she tell me that if balmy zephyrs keep zephering, spring will soon come and Christmas jewelry will turn green, the pussy willows will be ripe, and the aluminum trees will be heavy with fruit.

There is a town in Montana so far behind the times that the milliners don't begin showing spring hats until January.

A headline in one of the San Francisco papers reads:

He probably couldn't find anything about "Red" Grange or Helen Wills that day.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

February 10—People born on this day are apt to have a fondness for fried chicken and angles food cake. They also get their feet stepped on frequently at Campus Shoppe dances. The co-ed born on February 10 very seldom buttons her galoshes.

WELL, AFTER ALL IT LOOKS LIKE COLONEL MITCHELL GOT WHAT HE WAS FIGHTING FOR—THE AIR.

WHAZIS!

With flour at 21 cents per pound, how much will it cost to shingle my dog house 20 feet square with hot cakes? Janet Pearce.

The Alpha Phi and Gamma Phi frosh entertained (we hope so!) a crowd of early risers at their Fried Ham and Egg Dansant Saturday morning. Everything was pretty slick excepting the egg spilled on the neckties. The playful grapefruit was up to its old tricks.

Another Heart Made Happy!

If Okie never does another thing for his alma mater or humanity, he satisfied the suppressed desires of one maiden at the game the other night when he sat on her lap quite accidentally, however. At the late stage of the game in which he did it, we thought the trick was a kind of wet one. Judging from the way the girl wiped herself off, she did too.

BUGHOUSE FABLE

There were many teas and luncheons on the campus the past week-end but not one of the hostesses used daffodils or pussy willows in her decorations.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Did you enjoy your trip to Washington, Mr. McCammatt?

The Chameleon BY JIM

To Dr. Miller, U. of O. Medical department:

Dear Sir, Dr. Miller, and old bean: With nothing but a blossoming cold and jangled nerves I've passed through a miserable state of fright, Doc. Thinking things over seriously, did it ever occur to you that the Ferocious and Fabulous Woolf Woof is unusually active in this land of ours right now?

The Woolf-Woof is, as of course you know, a seven-toed, fire-breathing animal with a single long and exceedingly sharp horn between his eyes and who, because of his enormous size and horrible appearance scares folks stiff wherever he is seen.

The Woolf-Woof terrorized the campus and this roster in particular not long ago when it was thought that no well regulated breakfast could be complete without someone not present that had developed spinal meningitis the eve before.

Now, that was the Woolf-Woof in its mildest form, Doc. Millions flee terror-stricken from his path. But they really don't have to. Any person can walk up to a Ferocious and Fabulous Woolf-Woof, snap his fingers right in front of his nose, giggle at the thing and he'll give a falsetto moan and roll over unconscious.

But if you treat the Woolf-Woof seriously he'll swallow you sure. Not long ago the Woolf-Woof was in action when some fingering critics declared the structure of our Alma Mater was crumbling, due to a commercialization of basketball and football games.

Things come up like modernism and fundamentalism and threaten to disrupt the entire country, and the Woolf-Woof springs into action and roars his way from the Atlantic to the Pacific, leaving terror in his wake. He runs rampant on the subject of prohibition, Sunday blue laws, the question of whether or not Jonah swallowed the whale and all such important problems, until somebody laughs heartily and back goes the Woolf-Woof to his cave.

I really believe, Doc, this thing was responsible for my weakened condition—due to nights of worry over this spinal meningitis business—and indirectly for this offensive cold in the think tank and raw bronchial tubes.

I only bring in the association, Doc, because the other day the Woolf-Woof got after Luther Bur-

NEW ENGLISH COURSE PLANNED FOR MAJORS

Proficient Students Exempt From Written Subjects

Students showing marked ability in written English may be exempt from completing their requirement in that subject, and a new course, written English for intending teachers, has been formulated, according to decisions made by the faculty of the English department in a long session which terminated Friday.

Students showing marked ability in written English may be exempted from completing the written English requirement on the joint recommendation of the written English instructor in whose course they are enrolled and the head of the English department, these exemptions not to be granted until the student has completed at least one term's work," say the minutes of the meeting.

Freshmen majors in the department are to be allowed the option of either English or European history. Sophomores must take either psychology or animal biology to fulfill their science requirements, economic history was substituted for the principles of economics.

English literature majors, offering French or German to satisfy the University foreign language requirement, must demonstrate to the English department a reading knowledge of the language by the beginning of the senior year. Formerly, the phrase, "offering French or German, to satisfy the University foreign language requirement" was not included, and "French, German, or Latin" took the place of "the language."

RAINEY GIVES ADVICE TO FUTURE TEACHERS

Students expecting to teach next year were given valuable advice yesterday at the meeting in the education building at 4:30 by Prof. Homer P. Rainey, who has charge of the appointment bureau.

Professor Rainey urged that communications and notices from the office be answered promptly, and the bureau be informed of any change of address, to avoid complications in notifying a student of an appointment.

It is important that all prospective teachers register during the next two weeks, because in March and April there is always the greatest demand for teachers. The next demand comes in July and August because the state law requires a resignation notice of 60 days before school begins.

If students prefer teaching positions outside the state of Oregon, they are advised to register with commercial agencies.

Y. W. SECRETARY DUE FOR WEEK'S VISIT

Miss Elsie Heller, of Spokane, Wash., national student Y. W. C. A. secretary for the northwest, arrived Tuesday, and will remain all this week. She will be a guest at Susan Campbell hall.

Miss Heller has been a frequent visitor here. She will hold personal conferences. Anyone desiring to discuss the student pilgrimage to Europe, Girl Reserve club work or the Seabeck conference may make an appointment for a conference.
