

YEARLING BASKETEERS TROUNCE AGGIES 33-21

Freshman Rally After Slow Start Piles up Baskets

The Oregon freshmen basketeers convincingly trounced the Aggie Rooks yesterday in the men's gym by a decisive count of 33 to 21. After a slow start, the babes came with a wild barrage of goals that completely inundated the Beaver youngsters.

Baskets by Gibbons and Owen gave the rooks an early lead. Two more field goals by Ellis gave them a 8 to 3 lead a few moments later. At that point the Oregon yearlings rallied and doggedly cut down the O. A. C. lead. After 15 minutes of riotous play, the frosh took the lead when Ridings counted from under the basket, and cinched it on a tally by Emmons immediately after.

From that point on, the freshmen had the game well in hand. The Aggies resorted to all kinds of long shots in the second canto with indifferent success. The score at the end of the first half was 21 to 10 Oregon.

Gordon Ridings grabbed high point honors with 11 points, but had to share the glory with his team mates, as they worked together in fine shape. Milligan and Bally, the guard duo, functioned exceptionally well. Ellis lead the rooks with 9 points from 4 baskets and 1 foul throw.

Lineups:
Freshmen (33) vs. (21) Rooks
Seallon (5) vs. (2) Gibbons
Emmons (9) vs. (9) Ellis
Ridings (11) vs. (3) Parker
Milligan (6) vs. (3) Owen
Bally (3) vs. (3) Duncan
Subs: Oregon, Pope, Johnson, Muir; O. A. C., Benton (4), Bellville, Schreeve.
Referee: Ray Brooks, Portland.

being sent to Stanford, the University of Oklahoma, and the University of Idaho. The Americanization department is helping the project by sending the questionnaire to Americanization classes throughout this state. Mr. Loukas is receiving answers through the Cosmopolitan clubs of several institutions, from the Fins at Astoria and from the Greek people in all parts of Oregon. The questionnaire has been published in the Greek papers of New York. When a sufficient amount of information has been received in this manner, Mr. Loukas will compile the data and derive from it the conclusions for his thesis.

UNIFORM ATHLETIC COLORS CONSIDERED

To select uniform colors for all of the University of Oregon athletic teams is the purpose of an executive council committee which will report at the council meeting one week from tomorrow.

As far as possible Oregon's colors, of Green and Lemon Yellow will be used. The committee has been considering green as a foundation color.

The committee consists of Paul Ager, chairman, Sherman Smith, Howard Hobson, Bill Reinhart, Capt. J. J. McEwan, Virgil Earl, Jack Benefiel, and Bob Gardner.

Infant Prodigies True Stories of Faculty Kids

"Mary Catherine hasn't shown a bit of intelligence yet, she can't talk, play the piano or put on her shoes," J. Stanley Gray, assistant professor of public speaking, was giving a description of his little daughter.

"Ten months old? I should say not." He appeared almost taken aback at the question. "She is one year and about a week and a half old. She celebrated her first birthday the twenty-third of January. She can walk. That is the first intelligence she has shown, but she is a very nice looking little girl." Mr. Gray smiled. "She looks like her mother. She was named for her two grandmothers; consequently, her grandmother Berglund calls her Mary, and her grandmother Gray calls her Catherine.

"Mary Catherine's favorite toys are Mah-Jong blocks, which she scatters all over the floor. She has three dolls, but she likes the blocks best. I suppose this is because it takes longer to pick them up."

Mr. Gray said he thoroughly expected his daughter to become a college orator since she already has diaphragm control of her vocal apparatus. He added that several of the neighbors could verify this.

"She has blue eyes and brown hair, rather dark, her only feature that's like her dad. She says 'daddy' and 'hello,' but I don't think she knows what she is saying," Professor Gray continued, smiling.

"Mary Catherine likes other little girls, and she isn't a bit bashful," Professor Gray hesitated, then said, "I think she is a very fine little girl, but of course," he smiled broadly, "I may be a bit prejudiced."

Margaret DeCou, daughter of Professor and Mrs. E. E. DeCou, is two years and seven months old, yet she greets students on the campus with the Oregon "hello." And students gladly say hello to Miss Margaret.

"She is happy, democratic, cordial and likes to regard everybody as a friend," Professor DeCou said. Dean Straub and "The Pioneer" she considers personal friends and playfellows. Dean Straub has been so since she "first made his acquaintance." She says hello to "The Pioneer."

"Margaret speaks distinctly, chewing baby talk, and there are just a few words in her vocabulary which she finds difficult to pronounce. For mother and father she always says 'mudder' and 'fadder,'" Professor DeCou said.

Miss Margaret has much imagination. Often, she is a character in some story read to her, while her mother is another character. Then she carries on a conversation with this assumption.

She has large blue eyes, and is already a careful observer.

Her parents are not pressing her mathematical talent. She considers objects above two collectively, although she can readily count to six.

It is possible she will be a student of mathematics, Professor and Mrs. DeCou believe. She pores over an old Oregon handbook "studying her French lesson."

Again, Margaret may turn out to be a musician. She plays her toy piano with depth of feeling while her baby voice soars higher and higher in "Jack and Jill" or "Bobby Chappo" and the other familiar nursery rhymes.

A bit of her philosophy of life is revealed in the following conversation, Mrs. DeCou says:

"Shall we say the Lord's prayer, 'mudder'?"

"Our Father who art in Heaven—"

"What means art 'mudder'?" I know. It is the boat Noah took his animals in."

"Hallowed be thy name—"

"What means be, 'mudder'?" I know. The bee got honey from the flowers at the ranch."

"Whether philosopher or singer later, she is at present a very human little girl with sunshine and showery, mostly sunshine—both a part of her life," Mrs. DeCou says.

MERCHANTS TO MEET ON CAMPUS SUNDAY

Banquet Will Be Given At Osburn Hotel

The delegates to the Retail Merchants convention, to be held on the campus under the auspices of the department of business administration, will arrive Sunday. After a get together banquet at the Osburn hotel Sunday evening, Irving E. Vining, president of the State Chamber of Commerce, will deliver an address.

Monday the day starts with registering of all delegates in Villard hall at 9:45. Following this, the meeting will be opened by Dr. H. D. Sheldon, of the school of education. Mayor E. U. Lee, of Eugene, will give an address of welcome, to which L. N. Crout, of Portland will respond.

After a luncheon at the Anchorage, the delegates will reassemble in Villard. An address, "Merchandising Campaign for the year 1926" will be given by Robert C. Line, a nationally known speaker on subjects relating to the retail business, and owner of the Line chain stores in Montana. Next a paper on "Installment Selling" will be read by Professor David Faville, of the department of business administration.

This subject should be well worth while as Dean Robbins reports that there has been a greater response accorded this investigation than any previously undertaken by the department of business administration.

PROGRAM COMPLETED FOR PRESS CONVENTION

The last part of the program for the Oregon Newspaper Conference to be held on the campus, February 19-20, has just been completed. It will be given by the Ben Franklin club of which Arthur Lawrence is president, on Saturday afternoon.

The program, which will be held on the second floor of the journalism building is as follows:

2:00 "Saving Steps Saves Your Dimes," Elbert Bede, Cottage Grove.

2:30 "Setting Type from the Quad Box," in which there will be a criticism of printing samples.

4:00 Announcement of awards for best printing specimens. Judges: Dr. John Henry Nash, Arthur Brock, and Robert C. Hall.

6:30 Banquet at Osburn hotel for Ben Franklin club members. Auspices of Lane County Typothetae.

George Turnbull, professor in the school of journalism, is working with Leland S. Johnson, chairman of the social committee of the Eugene Chamber of Commerce, in connection with the ticket sale for the banquet Friday night. It is hoped that as many faculty members and students as possible will attend. Tickets for students are one dollar, for others one dollar and a half.

OBERTUEFFER NAMED ADVISOR FOR KNIGHTS

Del Obertueffer, instructor in the school of physical education, has been elected faculty advisor for the local chapter of the Intercollegiate Knights.

Until now the Oregon Knights have not had a faculty advisor and it was felt advisable to have a permanent official to check up on plans and to assist in activities.

Some time ago the organization assumed a debt by the purchase of a number of Oregon Knight sweaters. All sweaters will be called in and as soon as they are in the A. S. U. O., will pay the bill.

SUSAN CAMPBELL HALL INSTALLS RADIO SET

The residents of Susan Campbell Hall are the proud possessors of a five-tube Stewart Warner radio set, and they owe it all to their industrious and ingenious freshman class.

The freshmen conceived the idea last term and ever since have been busy getting up food sales, and concocting various schemes for extracting money from the upper class girls. The radio will be installed some time next week.

APPOINTMENT BUREAU OCCUPIES NEW OFFICE

The appointment bureau now occupies a room of its own in the Education building. It was formerly in with the education office, and Miss Katherine Slade, secretary, had charge of the general office work and appointment bureau. By this new arrangement the duties of Miss Slade are made easier to handle.

The bureau is the means of placing graduate students in teaching positions.

FRESHMEN CONTINUE TO FLUNK ENGLISH A

Material sent out by the University to high schools in the state has failed, so far, to change the percentage of English flunks.

Thirty-nine passed and 17 failed the examination given to those who entered this term.

Most of the papers were mediocre although a few showed originality. One student wrote a critical essay on Eugene that was good; another described a thrilling fire in the operating room of a theatre in which he was the operator. Several gave vent to their homesick feelings.

BIOLOGY CLASSES SEE SLIDES OF SUNSET BAY

Slides of marine animals and scenery at Sunset Bay were shown to Dr. John Bovard's classes in animal biology recently by Dr. Harry Yocom, of the department, who explained the pictures and told some interesting things about the summer school session which is held annually in the region near the bay.

Marine ecology, the study of the habitat of animals, was discussed by Dr. Yocom. He described plant and animal life of the strand region, the area between high and low tide. This is the region of most food, light, chemical and biological activity.

Sea urchins, sea cucumbers, worms of various varieties and anemone, were among the pictures shown.

SUMMER SCHOOL ADDS THREE INSTRUCTORS

Three instructors have been added to the faculty of the Portland summer session school, which will begin June 30 and continue throughout July, says Alfred Powers, dean of the extension division.

Dr. E. L. Schaub, professor of philosophy in Northwestern university, will conduct courses in philosophy, Professor E. J. Saunders, of the geology department at the University of Washington, is scheduled for two geology courses. Professor Howard R. Taylor, of the University of Oregon psychology department, will handle the psychology courses.
