

Last Mu Phi Recital To Be Given Tonight

Jane Thacher Will Appear Again After Several Years Interval

Eugene Carr, Popular Baritone, in Concert
Wide Range of Classical Numbers on Program

THE last musical event on the school of music calendar will take place this evening when Jane Thacher, pianist, and Eugene Carr, baritone, will be presented in recital in the music auditorium at 8:00, by Mu Phi Epsilon, honorary musical fraternity for women. This will be the first local recital to be given by Eugene Carr, who is a new member of the faculty this year, and the first appearance of Mrs. Thacher in several years. Mrs. Thacher will play a rather heavy and brilliant group of numbers which will show her wonderful technical skill and power of interpretation to the best advantage. She always plays with a towering strength very seldom found in women pianists, and unusual even among men artists. Her work has been greatly advanced in the past few years from study and work abroad, and music lovers are looking forward to her playing this evening.

Carr Popular Soloist

Eugene Carr is a young man with a very pleasing baritone voice with a mellowness and clearness which is very satisfying to his hearers. Motion for Changing English Requirement Proposed to Faculty

A motion was made by the English department, at the faculty meeting yesterday, providing for a modification of the requirement which compels all students to take one year of written English. The motion advises that students showing satisfactory ability in the subject be permitted to drop it after one term. A recommendation from the instructor or head of the department would be necessary, however, before the course could be dropped. Dr. E. T. Hodge, of the geology department, proposed that all students who drop classes without notifying the instructor pay a penalty. Such a requirement would apply to the laboratory courses especially, because a considerable loss is involved when expensive equipment is set up and the students fail to make use of it. The proposal will be referred to the academic requirements committee.

Executive Council Takes Definite Stand Against Proposed Magazine

Difficulties of Obtaining Subscriptions, Soliciting Advertising Influence Adverse Action

FINAL action on the proposed literary magazine, and the awarding of the contract for the printing and binding of the Oregona constituted the main business of the executive council meeting last night. The council deemed it inadvisable at this time to start such a publication as the proposed literary magazine. Paul Ager, chairman of the publications committee, submitted a plan drawn up by the magazine committee headed by Rolf Klep which provided for the publication of two editions this year. The expenses were to be met by subscriptions from students on the campus estimated at 1500, and advertising from Eugene, Portland, and national firms. The council objected to the plan, because it did not think that 1500 subscriptions could be obtained without undertaking an intensive drive. The consensus of opinion was that Eugene and Portland advertisers would be decidedly unfavorable towards the proposed magazine and would not advertise in its pages. It was pointed out that the best literary productions of campus students were published in commercial magazines. In view of the fact that these students would hardly wish to contribute to a campus publication where the reward would be slight, the council decided that should such a magazine be published, it would be necessarily be inferior in its literary content. The council, in reaching its decision also considered the amount of work necessary for the publication of such a magazine. The editorial and routine work, such as collecting subscriptions, soliciting advertising, an undertaking a drive, would be an additional burden on a rather heavily-laden student body. Should the magazine contain the best of campus productions, this expenditure of labor might be warranted. The council agreed that the quality of the magazine printed here would not justify the expenditure of so much time and work. The general opinion of the council was that the student-body as a whole has not showed enough interest in the magazine to give it sustained support. Koke Chapman printing company, Eugene, was awarded the contract for the printing of the 1926 Oregona. Kilhams printing company, Portland, will do the eight pages of four-process color work. The machine binding will also be done in Portland.

Huskies Defeat Oregon Matmen By Large Score

Davis Stars for Varsity in Hard Match; All Bouts Are Close

By DICK SYRING
The University of Oregon matmen entertained the University of Washington Huskies last night in the men's gym in what was not a pink tea party but rather a grueling, bone-crushing affair which the Washington wrestlers won 55 to 29. All the matches were close and hard fought, but Oregon had a hard time with her more experienced opponents. The match between Perry Davis, Oregon, and Ernie Martin, Washington, in the 135-pound class was the evening's thriller. Davis started in on his man from the go and had a variety of holds on Martin in the first round taking the decision. The second round Davis immediately taking the aggressive and secured a fall in 4:34 minutes with a head and arm lock hold. The 145-pound match which Le Roy Oxford lost to Jim Dodson, Washington, with two decisions was a heart breaker. Dodson secured the first decision in the first round on more aggressiveness. Oxford came back in the second round and secured two head holds and a scissors on his man, taking the decision. In the third round Oxford started to finish things in a hurry with a scissors but weakened and lost a decision to Dodson. The first match 125-pound class, Leake, Washington, secured a decision over Kirkham of Oregon, but Kirkham injured his head in the first round and was unable to compete further, the Washington man winning by a default. The 175-pound match was a fight from the start to finish. Olson, Washington, took a decision from Ed Grant, Oregon, in the first round but in the two succeeding rounds was only unable to secure a draw. A number of times Grant had his heavy adversary in a bad way. Summary: 125-pound class—L. Leak, Washington, took a decision and default from L. Kirkham, Oregon, 14 points. 135-pound class—P. Davis, Oregon, took a decision and fall from E. Martin, Washington, 14 points. 145-pound class—J. Dodson, Washington took two decisions from Oxford, Oregon, and lost one, 12-6 points. 158-pound class—T. Lange, capt. Washington, took a fall, draw and decision from W. Owsley, Oregon, 14-3 points. 175-pound class—H. Olson, Washington, took one decision and two draws from E. Grant, Oregon, 12-6 points.

Referee—Guy Rathbun of Willamette University. Time of bouts: 7 minutes. Scoring—Fall 8 points, decision, 6 points.

Frosh Will Not Debate O. A. C. First Year Men

Linfield College Dual Meet Of April 15 to Replace Corvallis Affair

The freshmen men will debate the Linfield college freshmen on April 15, instead of the Oregon Agricultural college on March 4, as a result of arrangements made this week between Jack Hempstead, Oregon men's forensic manager, and Emerson Bolz, forensic manager of Linfield college. The O. A. C. debate was cancelled by Oregon due to the forensic council's ruling not to hold decision debates of any kind with O. A. C., since they deemed it harmful for the good of debating in both schools since such keen rivalry in forensics exists. Willamette freshmen, according to a wire received Tuesday from Robert Witt, debate manager, cancelled the freshmen men's dual debate set for the afternoon of March 2. Witt explained that the Willamette men found it impossible to work on the question and the coach was also preoccupied with other work. Oregon freshmen debaters are John Gale, Avery Thompson, Melvin Johnson, Joe McKeown, Roy Herndon, and George Belloni. They are working on the question for the Linfield dual: "Resolved: That federal subsidies to state, accompanied by federal supervision, should be discontinued." Mr. Robert D. Horn of the public speaking department is coach.

At this time, it is undecided whether six or four men from each school will be used in the debate, or whether there will be a decision by judges.

Tickets will be sold at the Co-op, Laraway's, and by all members of the physical education department, as well as the Orchesus group. Students Have Until Friday Night to Bring In Rummage Material Material for the student body rummage sale to be held Saturday March 6, in the public market will be accepted until Friday evening, says Frances Morgan, general chairman of the movement. It is expected that the pricing committee, under the supervision of Dale Tokes, will have put a price on each article which has been collected so far, by tonight. Four freshmen girls reported each hour, while the work was being done, to assist the committee in this.

Two saleswomen and two salesmen will report each hour, from eight to six, on Saturday, to conduct the sale of the material. A schedule has been made for this purpose, and anyone who does not understand at which hour he or she is to report should call Mary Cogswell, chairman of saleswomen, or Ed Crowley, chairman of salesmen, as it will be necessary that each one report according to schedule.

Keep Sake Missing From Schroff Studio

PEOPLE have been known to indulge in many kinds of hobbies and indeed it is considered everyone's right provided the hobby is harmless, but the person who willfully helped himself to the copper lantern which hung in the studio of Prof. A. H. Schroff, instructor in art, is asked to throw a little of the secretive light on the subject. The lost lantern was designed by Ward Longfellow, nephew of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Ward Longfellow is a Boston architect whose design was used as a pattern for six lamps for the Boston Yacht club. Eight lanterns were made. One of the two extras was presented to the architect's brother and the remaining one was presented to Professor and Mrs. Schroff as a wedding gift. The lamp is medieval in style. Professor Schroff announces that if the lamp was removed from its place in a spirit of fun he will gladly receive it in the spirit it was taken and will ask no questions.

Season's First Baseball Work Is Done Indoors

Reinhart to Give Pitchers Careful Attention in Early Practice

Baseballs were whirling here, there, and everywhere yesterday afternoon in the men's gym when the Oregon varsity held their initial baseball practice. Practice for the rest of this week will be held indoors while a batting cage is being constructed on the freshman football field. The varsity diamond, used last year for the first time, is still too wet to use without tearing up the turf.

Workouts this week will consist mainly of limbering up. Coach Billy Reinhart will give his battery special attention during this preliminary training period. The coach is taking no chances with his fingers, as a wrong start will ruin a pitcher for the rest of the season. Infielders and outfielders will get the kinks out of their arms by tossing the ball around indoors.

Quite an array of baseball material greeted Coach Reinhart yesterday afternoon as 17 men signed up on the first day. He expects a large turnout this spring. Eight infielders have signed for practice, six pitchers, one catcher and two outfielders. Final negotiations have been made for the Oregon Varsity-Portland Beaver game to be played on the local diamond April 1. The Beavers, who are now training in California, will stop in Eugene on their way to Portland where they open the season on April 6. This game will give the varsity some stiff competition for an early season practice game.

The 17 men who have signed up, not including the nine lettermen, are: York Herron, Clifford Kuhn, Bill Dallas, Hugh Wallace, Jim Hanley, Maurice Spatz, Mark McAllister, and Hoyt Barnett, infielders; Melvin Ray and Elmer Peterson, outfielders; Charles Orr, catcher; and Harry Dutton, Alfred Fries, Bill Bamber, Edwin Ross, Walter Fenwick, and Ray Murray, pitchers.

Date for Election of W. A. A. Officers Set for March 12

Nominations for officers in the Women's athletic association for next year will be made at a mass meeting of W. A. A., Monday at 5 o'clock, March 8. Elections will be held the following Friday. It was decided at the W. A. A., council meeting last night. The date for the annual women's athletic banquet has been set for Tuesday, March 9. Members of first teams in basketball, volleyball and swimming, the athletic council, and physical education faculty will attend. Tickets will be sold by the heads of sports. All star teams will be announced at the banquet. Arrangements for a play day with O. A. C., will be made immediately. Students from O. A. C., will be invited here for field day.

Winners in this contest will be awarded the last of the week.

Artists' Personalities Told in Library Book

Cortissoz deals with what is, by general consent, the most interesting of art subjects in his new book, "Personalities in Art," which deals with the personality of the artist, according to the publisher's note. The personalities of various artists, all of prime importance and established fame, are portrayed in this book which is one of the four new ones added to the seven-day shelf at the library. The other three books are: "The Book of American Negro Spirituals," edited with an introduction by Johnson; "The True Stevenson," by Hellman; and "One Man's Life," by Quick.
