SPORTS by the Emerald Sport Staff

No more basketball for another year. This sport—one of the speediest and most scientific in the category—has arrived on the campus to stay. Gone are the days when the hoop game was a joke, providing pastime for football players during the off season. Not so many years ago, Oregon floundered through a season, losing something like 16 games and awarding 13 letters. With Reinhart signed to a five year contract, and a wealth of veteran and freshman material to draw from, a repetition of that lamentable campaign is not expected.

Oregon loses but two men by graduation from the 1926 hoop team, or from the entire squad, for that matter. Captain Howard Hobson and Charles Jost have cavorted on an Oregon floor for the last time, and will receive sheepskin in June. The presence of Hobson in the lineup is almost invaluable, as his long years of playing experience have given him an inside knowledge of the intricacies of the game which enables him to guide the team from the floor as well as Reinhart, himself, could do.

Jost, too, has had a big year and will go down in Oregon hoop annals as one of the greatest guards of all time. A guard, because of the nature of his activity, receives all too little credit, so this post-humous boost is quite in order. Jost's defensive play and knack in taking the spheroid off the backboard has been a treat to watch.

Coach Reinhart will have three 1926 regulars arrived which to form his 1927 aggregation, Okerberg, Gunther, and Westergren, the high scoring trio. In addition, two more athletes will be on hand who only missed their award by functioning of an obsolete rule framed when Northwest Conference affairs counted toward sweaters. Kiminki and Edwards, the two lads referred to, received their test by fire in Oakland, and put up a good brand of ball. They are capable of stepping into the shoes of Hobson and Jost, and carrying on.

This year's freshman team produced some men who will be heard

Buy Properly Aged Meats

It is a popular idea that the fresher the beef you buy—the more tender. If it were killed and dressed today, then tomorrow it should be cut up and sold. That is a fallacy. Beef must be aged—hung up in a proper temperature for the proper length of time—to be at its best—its most tender and delicious state.

The best beef must not be strictly fresh. It must have time to relax and become tender. This is the kind of meat you get at our shop.

Tang O' the Sea Clam Chowder

Tang O' the Sea Clam Chowder is a home made product from Rockaway Beach—an Oregon product. It contains all the ingredients of clam chowder except salt and pepper which are added to suit the taste. After it is heated, it is ready to serve. We sampled this chowder before we would buy it. We found it to be delicious and on a par with the rest of our foods of which we carry none but the best. We are sole agents for Tang O' the Sea Clam Chowder in Eugene. If you like clam chowder or clam soup, you should try this by all means. It comes in 16-oz. tins only.

Carlton Spencer, registrar of the University, is spending several days in the eastern part of the state on business for the University. While on this trip he will visit the high schools at LaGrande, Baker, Ontario, Vale, Union, Wallowa, and Enterprise.

Mr. Spencer left on this swing through eastern Oregon last Saturday and is not expected to return until Friday, March 12. While he is away Miss Gertrude Stephenson will have charge of the registrar's office.
