Essay on the Conflict of Certain Emotions

Your editor confesses utter intellectual demoralization. Having suddenly been thrust into a maelstrom of intoxicating sunshine and gloriously bedecked ginghamy co-eds, he finds himself going 'round and 'round' in a grand delirium of spring fever.

Yet a strange fit of depression has seized your editor. With every indication for the biggest and best and better three months of his life stretching ahead, he suddenly finds himself drenched in melancholy with apparently no earthly reason for an attitude of the drab.

Early yesterday afternoon on the library steps a session was in progress—one of these delightful three o'clock affairs. There was a senior, a junior, and a freshman, the latter a girl.

Then later, several senior men in another session. They were discussing the educational process to which they had been subjected the past four years. Four splendid years, they agreed, but a good bit of it lost. In fact entirely too much of it lost.

Perhaps in these two sessions we have the cause of the aforementioned melancholy—a melancholy, or a depression, certainly existent in the minds of many seniors. A conflict of emotions, we are told, wrecks havoc with the peace of mind, and in these seniors, most surely, is a conflict.

It's not a new phenomenon—this seniorial lament. Year after year the outgoing seniors realize too late that they have drifted through the University scholastically asleep and snoring; and awakening for a few moments they jump through commencement with good intentions, but with small chance to resist the onslaughts of intellectual lethargy, the child of four years habit.

To many this outburst will sound like polyglot jargon; but to others, particularly to seniors and many faculty members, it will be reasonably intelligible. And to these people that are aware of the situation, the Emerald announces that a group of upperclassmen are going to seek, in their humble way, the answer to the question, "Why does the average senior wait until the end of his fourth year to 'wake-up'?"

Student Union Collection Drive committee members please make your final reports at Student Body offices, north end of Friendly Hall, Wednesday afternoon, March 31st.

"HI THERE, EVERYBODY! LIKE ALL THE REST OF YOU, THE SEERS MADE AS GOOD AN AVERAGE AS COULD BE EXPECTED."

The Seers wish to announce that they are fuller than ever—with scandal, and that they didn't have to resort to the Scandal Sheet to get it, either.

However, we will not let it leak out this issue, as it hasn't smoldered to the proper (?) thickness as yet, and we promise you that when it comes out it won't leak, it'll ooze!

Here are little Madge Normie and Roy Bryson getting in training for Campus Song Week, from the tenth till the seventeenth of April. Some hot harmony is promised by this lyrical lady and melodious man, but as Carl Williams says, all of us songsters will be given a chance to show our ability.

SPRING SONG

Clifton Emmel in musical accompaniment on the organ.

COMING—Harold Lloyd in "For Heaven's Sake"; Jack Hoxie in "Two-Pisted Jones."

Portland Conference Attended by Officers Of Campus Y.M.C.A.

Four students from the University of Oregon and H. W. Davis, director of the United Christian Work on the local campus, attended the annual training conference for new officers of the Y. M. C. A.'s of the colleges and universities of the northwest which was held in Portland last Saturday and Sunday.

There were about 45 men present, representing virtually all of the universities and colleges of the three states, Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Besides Mr. Davis those who attended from Oregon were: Roland Davis, Francis Rieder, Romayne Brand, and Omofri Hipe.

The object of this conference is to give the new officers training for the special work of the coming year. All phases of the work were emphasized and discussed, such as financial problems, deputation work, Bible study, and discussion groups. The special leaders of the conference were Gale Seaman, intercollegiate secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for the Pacific coast, and George Cole, of Seattle.

Physical Education Expert Coming April 2

Jay Nash, nationally known among physical education experts for the work he has done as director of the department of recreation and physical education at Oakland, California, will be on the campus April 2. He will speak Friday evening in Alumni hall. In the afternoon, he will address the physical education majors only.

The department which Mr. Nash organized is considered one of the best in the United States. It has been adopted by the city as an integral part of the municipal organization.

Mr. Nash is characterized by Dean Bovard, of the school of physical education of the University as a man of unusual personality and ability.

Rose Cohen, sophomore in Latin, has registered for the spring term at the University.

Alpha Delta Sigma Guest of Portland Advertising Body

The local chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity, presented a program before the Portland Advertising club last Wednesday in Portland. About 20 members attended.

W. F. G. Thatcher acted as chairman during the meeting. Jimmie Leake, president of the club and winner of the Portland Advertising Club scholarship last year, was the first speaker. Wayne Leland and Frank Loggan, joint winners of the scholarship this year, also spoke. Eric W. Allen, dean of the School of Journalism, expressed appreciation for the cooperation given the department by the Portland group since advertising has been taught in the University.

Instrumental selections by the University orchestra were given before the club and its guests. Vivian Woodside and Eugene Carr sang.

Oregon Y. W. Delegation Will go to Conference

Cabinet members of the campus Y. W. C. A. and Miss Florence Magowan, secretary, will attend an annual state cabinet conference at Corvallis April 2 and 3.

All college and University Y. W. organizations in Oregon will be represented. Last spring the conference was held here.

Harold Lloyd in 'For Heaven's Sake'

Miss Henrietta Thompson, of Berkeley, California, will be chairman of all meetings and lectures. Technical matters, plans for programs for the coming year, and pan-Pacific problems will be discussed.

A luncheon Saturday noon will be one of the main events of the week-end as plans for the summer conference at Seabeck will be made at that time.

Dr. Warren D. Smith of the geology department, spent the vacation in Grants Pass, looking into a mining proposition there. The trip was made in both geological and commercial interests.
