April Number of Magazine Quotes Oregon Man on Physical Education

Excerpts from an article by Harry A. Scott, director of physical education at the University of Oregon are printed in the section devoted to leading articles of the month in the April Review of Reviews. The article appeared in the Nation's Health for February and described the system of physical education in use at the University.

This system of physical education is based on the expressed wishes and desires of the students themselves and provides adequate facilities for recreational gymnastics in the students' leisure hours. As a result ninety-three per cent of the men in college engage in some physical activity, says the report. The article also outlines the method used in determining the fitness of the student for different types of work and the methods of classification.

"The school of physical education at the University of Oregon is unique in that it organizes under one head all agencies dealing directly with the health of the student. It controls the department of physical education for men and women, the department of intercollegiate athletics, and the university health service," Mr. Scott wrote.

Debate

Coach J. Stanley Gray, head of the public speaking department, left on the Southern Pacific with the Oregon men last night so as to enable the team to arrive in time to practice over the radio this morning. R. V. Haller will then give them detailed instruction on the technique of broadcasting, although they are familiar with it to some extent, having practiced over the recently installed telephone in the public speaking department.

Both the Oregon debaters are capable speakers according to Mr. Gray although this is their first varsity competition. Johnson represented the university last year in the state old line oratory contest. He is now president of the J. W. Jewett extempore speaking prize last year and is a member of the six man oratory team this year.

The U. S. C. men, who are accompanied by Alan Nichols on the northern tour, are experienced, having been veteran members of the debate and oratory squads for two years. One is a member of Pi Kappa Delta and the other is president of Delta Sigma Rho, both national forensic fraternities on the U. S. C. campus.

Sculpture

"One very interesting phase of this situation is that the finest, the most noble service memorials in the state of Oregon have been erected by the students of the state," he continued. "Yet people who are mature and who know the value of fine work better make the mistake of trying to find bargains in bronzes. This is impossible for the erection of cheap material is a waste of money. Eventually it must be torn down and something worth while put in its place."

"War memorials are going to last longer in a community than the fillings in people's teeth, and yet we would not consider having any but specialists fill our teeth. In consideration of the same idea we would not let a lumberjack build our court houses; yet we think that professional work in sculpture is not necessary in regard to memorials which will stay in the community longer than either fillings or courthouses."

"The thing to do is to commemorate in the most fitting way possible. The important thing is not to erect a thing for its showiness but a thing that is known for its use rather than the advertisement of that which is advertising. Charles Moore, chairman of the National Commission of Fine Arts believes that 'display of wealth and ostentation are unbecoming and vulgar; that elegant simplicity and strength with refinement are the ends to be sought and that elegance is a professional rather than an amateur gift.'"

Monitor Comments Book on Philippines By Warren D. Smith

"The Geology and Mineral Resources of the Philippine Islands," written by Dr. W. D. Smith of the geology department, was recently reviewed in the Christian Science Monitor under the heading: "The Work of the Scholars."

"It ranks among the most useful of the splendid contributions to human knowledge made by that long line of American scholars whose published research has been the glory of the Philippine Bureau of Science," says the Monitor of Dr. Smith's book. "The volume contains data of great value, not alone to natural scientists and to those who are interested in the economic development of the Philippines, but to the general public."

Whatever the verdict of history upon the wisdom of America's political and social experiment in the Philippines, the Monitor emphasizes the fact that the fame of the scholars who have published the results of their research work in the islands will remain secure.

There is a copy of "The Geology and Mineral Resources in the Philippine Islands," on file at the University library.

Male Display to Show What the Well Dressed Young Man Will Wear

With the announcement of Obak's spring style show comes the first display of male attire ever to be on exhibit in Eugene.

Many of the best dressed young men of the campus will be used as models and will pose before the admiring throngs in the Obak pavilion, next Monday afternoon. Bob Mautz and Lynn Jones will pose in the new pinch knickers which are taking eastern schools by storm. Sol Abramson and Carl Dahl will demonstrate the new two pants suits as advertised. A special hour will be reserved for the young women as the expected crowds will make it impossible for the pavilion to accommodate men and women at the same time.

Snooker Squad Starts

Spring practice for the snooker team has begun in earnest according to the report of Bob Officer, assistant coach, who is in charge of early practice this year. He has a well rounded squad with several last quarters veterans and is expecting a strong team this year. Several meets have been scheduled for next month, two of them being with local pool teams from other halls. "Obaks will give a good account of itself" is the solitary statement of Coach Officer when interviewed today. Watch these boys develop in the near future.
