Concerning the Student Loan Fund

Many know in a vague way that a student loan fund exists, but few, even though they have had occasion to fall back upon it for financial succor, realize the part it is playing in the education of hundreds of students.

This fund does not often break into the news, as its activities have not been of the kind that are given scare heads or column stories. A number of Oregon citizens and organizations have given quite sizeable sums toward it from time to time, quietly and without thought of gain or recognition.

However, the growing enrollment has increased the demands upon this fund, and it is now very low. There have been benefit teas, jitney dances, rummage sales and lost article sales, all for very worthy causes, and it would seem that some such means might be found to add something each year by student effort to the foundation already established.

The Charge of the Amazons; You Chase Me and Maybe I'll Chase You

Sweet essence of feminine tactics! Glorious occasion! Senior Leap Week!

All right, ladies, Faint Heart never won a fair man. She who hesitates is without a date. Have you a little he fairy on the books for this week?

Senior Leap Week is a splendid occasion when all feminine inhibitions are cast aside. Utmost freedom of the chase is accorded them, and my, my, what a fine time they have. Instead of the style being modest and retiring, the girl with the bold assuming air is the grand dame.

Even so a few of the ladies are hesitant. Truly, oh senior women, it is most embarrassing for a senior man to ask for a date on this week. Therefore, plague him not.

Tonight the big fracas starts with open house. She who fails to fill her date book on this night of nights is a first class piker.

The Chameleon

Altruism is not the only trait of high development that has permeated the canine family. Dogs have reached the age of chivalry. That's why they're going to accept the invitation to the Bow Wow Brawl, to be held Thursday night at the Chi Omega and Tri Delta kennels.

It's whispered in aristocratic circles of dogdom that the invitations sent to various mascots of the fraternity houses might be taken as a gross insult—that the invitations were only sent to emphasize the shortcomings of the senior class and that milady just wants to demonstrate her contempt.

But Eef, the groomed blue-blood of Sigma Nu, yesterday conferred with Ted, canine mascot and intellectual influence of the Chi Psi lodge, and decided otherwise. Both Eef and Ted sincerely feel that the human females of Chi Omega and Delta Delta Delta crave their company.

"And we're here to bark to the world," said Ted yesterday. "That we'll toddle up there, and we don't mean perhaps."

When interviewed yesterday, Eef hadn't much to say. "Perhaps the girls are using us as the butt of a wag, but I'm here to bet my tail," said Eef, loosening up a bit. "That we'll see the thing through. By the sanctity of bone orchards, no woman has ever yet made me run for the basement by satire."

Ex-Graduate Student Receives Recognition

Mary Davis, ex-graduate student and instructor in household arts at the University of Oregon, recently received an attractive assignment with the bureau of household arts under the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C. Her particular task was the investigation of window treatment. Now comes tangible evidence that she has been making progress. The bureau recently issued a bulletin on curtains for "Better Homes Week" which bears the mark of the Oregon girl's handiwork.

Rodney Keating, ex-student from Portland, is a visitor at the Phi Gamma Delta house.

Caesar, descendant of the Imperial Purple and guiding light of the

SONG OF THE BOB-TAILED COW "I MISS MY SWISH."

Early up and to the green garden and long past noontide manuring the thrifty bed of dandelions. Anon come Bob Hart the Sigma Nu'er and he tell me how to make a fine drink from the blossoms which give right pleasant sensation to the inner chambers. To the campus and there see Louise Mason in her chic green riding habit, bright red hat with hawk feather, and Djer kiss rouge pleasantly. Mightie bumpsy, too, methinks. Then to library and fell to the reading of H. L. M.'s bilious green print which has been the cause of so much hobble gobble of late and Lord! such drivell never did I read before in Breezy Tales. The cover was not the only bilious thing when I did finish.

How about the following slogan for the fellow who has Halitosis. "Mask the Man Who Owns One."

THE PEST-I-MIST

A tricky girl, I'll tell the world Is little Lizzie Larters; She wears a smile upon her lips, And mousetraps on her garters.

"OVER IN CHINA I SAW A WOMAN HANGING IN A TREE." "SHANGHAI!" "YEAH, ABOUT SIX FEET."

A situation Ring Lardner would revel in—Paul Sletton receiving a pair of military hair brushes as a gift.

"For crying out loud," said the nurse maid as she chuckled another tablespoonful of Castoria down baby's neck.

Packed away in a nice cool vault Is silly Willy McDun One hundred to ten Was the score that they sent And Willy piped up with "Who Won."

Bob Hunt and Barney McPhillips of the song contest judging staff have at last let out for publication the bases upon which they judge the sororities. Here they are:

VOLUME: 25 points. When it comes to volume the Alpha Phi's have everybody else backed off the map.

VELOCITY: 25 points. For speed the girls in the big white house on twelfth street are far in the lead.

VICTUALS: 25 points. The boys claim that the Delta Gammas have the best apple sauce.

VIVACITY: 25 points. The Alpha Xi Deltas excel in pep. This is no doubt due to the atmosphere created by their hot orchestra which has been the talk of the Springfield mill workers for days.

THE KUTTY'S ENTRALS

I had to sell my dog He was such a cute little fello, But I just couldn't have him 'round Cause he et at all the strings off my cello.

SOOT: "I call you. What you got?" COAL: "A Royal Flush. What you got?" SOOT: "A pair o' nines and a razor." COAL: "Beats all what obnoxious luck you've havin'."

SEVEN SEERS

April 22 is Date Set for Women's Varsity Debate

Negatives Meet Reed At Oregon; Affirmative to Go to Seattle

With all of the varsity men's debates completed, there now remains only one debate on the Oregon forensics schedule, the varsity woman's triangle with Reed and Washington on April 22. The affirmative teams of these northwest institutions travel, the Oregon negative entertaining Reed college affirmative in Eugene while the Oregon affirmative will go to Seattle where it will meet the University of Washington affirmative. At Portland, the debate is between Reed negative and Washington affirmative.

Under coach Robert D. Horn, the Oregon feminine orators have been carefully preparing their cases upon the question which is: "Resolved: That the trend of modern youth is indicative of higher morals and life."

The Oregon team, all veteran debaters, is as follows: affirmative, Margaret Blackaby, Cecile McKecher; negative, Frances Cherry, Helen Helliwell.

Miss Mildred Whitcomb, women's debate manager, had previously arranged a dual contest with California, and a dual with Washington. After some difficulty due to objection to the affair by the president of University of California, these events fell through. It has taken a good deal of negotiating to arrange the present event, but according to Oregon's representatives, they are going to make it worth waiting for from a public speaking standpoint.

Due to the fact that the question is of less serious nature than the usual debate subject, no formal decision by judges will be made.

Roy Sawyer, '25, who is principal of Grande Ronde high school, visited on the campus over the week-end. he has been rehired for next year.

Library

would be large enough to house all the books in one building.

"By the end of this year all the vacant space will be filled in the stack rooms," Dean Sheldon continued. "We will then have to start putting the books in the hall or some other place where they do not belong. We will be right up against the problem of more stack room to say nothing of the inadequate seating capacity. There is now on the campus no appropriate meeting place for seminars and other groups which bring books into their discussions. If we got a new library, such a room would be provided. The present library could be used for a general class room and the pressure would be relieved there."

The fact that the University of Oregon stands among all the universities of the United States in per capita reading, Mrs. Clara L. Fitch, secretary of the administrative offices, held up as a strong point in favor of a new library. "The tremendous circulation of the library compared to the size of the student body shows that the students are eager to read," said Mr. Fitch, "and since they are so eager to read, they should be provided with adequate library facilities."

When Mrs. Fitch came to the University in 1920, there were only 1700 students enrolled and there are now 3000. Added to the increased number of students, there is the constantly increasing number of books which are purchased from the funds paid in fees. Mrs. Fitch emphasized the fact that, as this number increases, so does the congestion at the library. The books have to be held and given out at the library. There is not sufficient space there for the number which the students have a right to demand.

While in Eugene, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be entertained at "Horizons," the home of H. W. Davis, director of the United Christian Work on the campus. The speaker and his wife will be guests of honor at a luncheon Thursday noon at Hendricks hall. Mr. Wilson will also speak at a luncheon to be given Friday noon in the "Y" hut, which will be open to a limited number of students and faculty members who care to attend.

Tickets for the luncheon Friday noon will cost 35 cents, and will be placed on sale at all of the houses and the Co-Op Wednesday and Thursday. Only a limited number will be sold, and none will be obtainable after Thursday night. Pauline Stewart is in general charge of the luncheon, and will be assisted by the following: Lenore Durkee, decorations; Nellie Johns, serving; Julia Wilson, ticket sale; and Dorothy Taylor, food.

Enthusiastic testimonials of Mr. Wilson's worth as a lecturer have been received from colleges all over the United States. "The accident that brought Mr. J. Stitt Wilson, of Berkeley, California, to the campus of the College of William and Mary was truly a fortunate one for the institution," says the Flat-Hat, college daily of William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Virginia. "Mr. Wilson has given us a most instructive series of lectures in a style not usual among the speakers in this type of work. He attracted more attention on the campus, had larger and more appreciative audiences, and left a more lasting impression on the students than any man who has appeared at the college for some time. His success was due largely to the freshness of his material and the attractive personality of the speaker."

Doctors Will Speak At Sigma Xi Meeting

Two papers by members of the medical faculty will be read at the public meeting in charge of Sigma Xi, to be held in 105 Deady, Friday night. Dr. H. J. Sears will read an article on "Some Aspects of Bacteria as Chemical Reagents," and Dr. H. B. Myers will talk on "Studies on Skin Infection by Yeast."

Election of new members will be made at a meeting of Sigma Xi just beforehand, graduate students and seniors being considered. Dr. Yocum, president of the club, and associate professor of zoology and chairman of the department; Dr. H. J. Sears; Roger Williams, associate professor of chemistry; W. E. Milne, professor of mathematics; and E. H. McAlister, head of the department of mechanics and astronomy, have been appointed the board of election.

Anna DeWitt to Speak To Women's League Convention in South

Kathryn Ulrich, newly elected president of the Women's League; Anna DeWitt, retiring president, and Virginia Judy Esterly, dean of women, left Eugene Sunday on the Shasta limited for Los Angeles, California, where they will attend a convention of the Western Intercollegiate Associated women students in joint session with the deans of women April 14, to 17. The meetings will be held at the University of California, southern branch.

Oregon was one of the four universities asked to lead a discussion, the others being Colorado, Nevada, and California. Anna DeWitt, who is to lead Oregon's part of the discussion, has prepared a paper on her topic, "Finance in the Association of Women Students," which she will read before leading the discussion.

At the close of the conference the Oregon delegates, with Dean Esterly, will visit the other colleges around Los Angeles, and then will visit Stanford, Mills college, and the University of California on the return trip. They will return about April 23.

Queries

ness to see the results of the campus forum.

Preliminary questions seek the student's class, sex, major, department, time spent in student activities, approximate grade average, and fraternity members—yes or no.

Some of the specific questions asked are: "Do you believe the grade sheet (scandal sheet) is an incentive to better scholarship?" "Should houses with low grades be penalized (probation)?" "Are you in the habit of having individual conferences with professors?"

"Do you favor preference to athletes in distribution of campus jobs?"

"If you could re-enact your University career would you spend on student activities less time, the same time, or more time?"

"Do you think that military training for undergraduates should be compulsory, optional, or abolished?" "You are now paying $5.00 a term for the construction of a basketball pavilion and student union. Should the fee be used (as intended) for a student union, abolished, for a library, or other buildings?"

The results of the questionnaires will be tabulated as soon as possible, and made public.
