

Do-Nut Tennis Matches Will Begin Friday

Contests Will Take Place At Four O'clock on Assigned Days

Tournament Courts to be Reserved

Intramural tennis teams, which have been getting in long afternoons of practice in the fine weather, will get their first dose of competition when the first round of the doubles tournament is played off Friday, April 19.

Double Teams Entered

Seventeen double teams from as many living organizations in the intramural league have been entered, and from the present turnout and interest shown, the tournament will probably surpass by far that of any previous year.

Courts Assigned

The drawings for the second round, which is to be played Monday, and the courts assigned to the teams are:

Kappa Sigma versus Friendly hall; Sigma Chi versus Phi Kappa Psi, on court 5.

Delta Tau Delta versus Oregon club; Beta Theta Pi versus the winner of the Sigma Pi Tau-Alpha Tau Omega game on court 6.

Theta Chi versus Lambda Psi; Chi Psi versus Phi Gamma Delta on court 7.

Kappa Delta Phi versus Phi Delta Theta; Sigma Nu versus Sigma Alpha Epsilon on court 8.

The court assignments for the winners of the second round will be announced next week. All contests are straight elimination.

Oregon Delegation To be Organized For Seabeck Conference

A committee of eight students, all of whom have attended a student conference at Seabeck, Washington, has been organized by H. W. Davis, director of the United Christian work on the campus, to promote interest in the conference this summer.

The committee met at 7:15 Monday evening in the "Y" hut under the leadership of Byron Serfling, and a tentative list of prospects was drawn up. It was decided to have a speaker visit each of the University student's classes in the churches of the city to talk the matter up. Oregon is expected to send a delegation of 20 men to the conference, and the outlook at present is very bright, as four men have already signified their intention of attending.

The conference is to be held immediately after the end of the spring term of school, June 12 to 20, at Seabeck, Washington, on the Puget Sound. Seabeck is a small summer resort devoted exclusively to student conferences, and is located about ten miles from Seattle. Besides lectures by intellectual and religious leaders, those who attend enjoy ten splendid days of swimming, boating, hiking, baseball and tennis in the beautiful Puget Sound country.

Mr. Davis, whose office is in the campus Y. M. C. A., has full information as to the conference, and will be glad to talk over the possibility of attending with any students who are interested.

Journalism Library Adds 12 New Dailies

Twelve dailies have been added to the newspaper subscription list for the journalism library this term. The leading newspapers in the large cities of the United States, and also one daily from London and one from Paris, are available for reference in the reading room.

The new newspapers subscribed for this term are: The United States Daily, New York Times, New York American, New York Post, Atlantic Constitution, St. Louis Globe Democrat, San Francisco Chronicle, Los Angeles Times, Milwaukee Journal, New York Evening Sun, Chicago Tribune, and the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Deady Patiently Awaits Dedication After Giving Fifty Years of Service

Deady hall, pioneer historical building of early University of Oregon days, has never been dedicated. Old and enduring, it has waited since 1876 for this honor from those who have seen the campus grow from a student body of 100 to over 2,500.

In planning for the semi-centennial celebration of the birthday of the University, to take place October 15 to 23, this great oversight came to light. The committee is arranging a ceremony and an appropriate memorial tablet, which will show that the sacrifices of the pioneers in making instruction possible, are not forgotten.

Back in the early seventies, a group of scholarly men conceived the idea of an institution of learning to be located in Eugene.

Farmers, for they were the residents of this region at that time, gave the site for the campus, and sacrificed parts of their produce to make up a fund for the first building.

Deady hall was built by men who often threatened to strike, because of the infrequency of pay days. It was named for Judge Matthew P. Deady, first president of the board of regents, and member of the supreme court of Oregon at one time.

That the lots surrounding Deady were wheat fields is established whenever remodeling is done on the first floor, according to Dr. W. P. Boynton, head of the department of physics, who described the structure of the double floors, which were inlaid with dirt containing quantities of wheat grains and stubbles in order to deaden sounds.

The stairs of Deady were originally spiral and each room was heated by a large stove, the wood being piled at the west end of the building. Equipment is added almost every year, so that the place is now completely modernized. It needs no rejuvenating as it is considered one of the best constructed buildings on the campus.

Exhibit Displayed In Art Building Arouses Interest

Wheelock Paintings Judged Unique Because Of Colors Used

Bronzes, Wood Carvings Part of Collection

An exhibit that is drawing people as much for the satisfaction of their curiosity as for the desire to exercise what knowledge of art they possess is the one now on display in the exhibition room in the art building. This is the Warren Wheelock collection that has been on display for about a week and is still drawing visitors.

Bizarre Quality in Work

Presenting the characteristics of an art of a man who has found the conventional art of the time depressing, artificial and uncommunicative, it is at the same time rather bizarre and deep.

Aside from his technique, his paintings are very interesting for the treatment of color. Wheelock does his paintings in plastic oils, a style of workmanship that lends a softness and mystical quality to the painting.

His wood carvings and bronzes on the other hand present a different idea. Where his figures in oils seem at times out of proportion and grotesque, some of his figures in bronze and wood show a beauty of line. "Adolescent," a figure of a young girl finished in bronze is lovely for its graceful lines.

Japanese Prints Shown

Besides the collection of Wheelock, there are some 30 Japanese prints that are particularly fine. These prints are a part of the Murray-Warner collection, but, because of lack of room, have not been on exhibition in the museum. They include the works of Kunisada, Toyokuni, Hokusai, Utamura and Hiroshige. They are particularly interesting for their design and color and for their costume designing.

The exhibition is open every afternoon from 4:00 and Monday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10.

The work of Wheelock will be removed after today and replaced by works of Maynard Dixon, painter of desert and Indian life.

Old Oregon to Have Recent Report From Visiting Committee

The April number of Old Oregon, alumni magazine, edited by Jeanette Calkins, will be distributed in 10 days. One of the important features of the number will be the report of the Visiting Committee, a group of alumni who spent several days on the campus last week investigating campus conditions and problems.

Another article will deal with the reunion of the law class of 1911 which will take place in Portland, June 18. A banquet will be held at the Multnomah hotel which is being arranged by Clarence Hotchkiss. Beatrice Locke, of the "Spectator" staff, is the author of the article which will tell what members of the class are now doing.

Walter L. Whittlesey, '01, professor of politics at Princeton, has contributed an article to the magazine, as has Philip A. Parsons, instructor in sociology at the University. The latter article is entitled "The Unsolved Problem of Crime."

Among regular features will be another personality sketch of a member of the faculty. Nancy Welch, '24, has written the sketch about Professor A. H. Schreff of the art department.

Campus news, the "Family Mailboy," news of the classes, and sports complete the magazine.

Surprises in Store For Junior Prom, Chairman Asserts

With the arrival of yards and yards of material, so much in fact that the order could not be filled in Portland but had to be sent to San Francisco, actual work will soon start on the preparations for the Junior Prom.

At present, the committee is all agog over its prize idea. It seems that each year the committee cherishes a prize idea and keeps it jealously guarded till the last minute. This year the reporter managed to get this much out of Phil Bergh, chairman of the prom, and Rolf Klep, chairman of decorations: The prize idea concerns the decorative scheme. However, they are very enthusiastic over the idea and declare that it or its like has never been used on the Oregon campus before, and by virtue of newness and effectiveness it will be very successful.

The construction committee is drawing plans and perfecting details and in general the work is well under way.

No Decision Reached In Moot Court Trial

Opinions differ as to the time necessary for a man to become intoxicated. This case was not an exception at the trial of Frank Mayer, accused of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, on the evening of March 31, when the jury was unable to come to a decision. The trial took place in the circuit court rooms of the Lane county court house last night at 7:15.

The attorneys for the defendant were David Evans and Frank Keenan, and their witnesses for the case were James Robertson and Hymen Samuels. Loyd Crow and Harold Emmons upheld the side of the state, with the aid of Warner Fuller and Gert Gooding, acting as witnesses.

L. L. Ray, ex-district attorney of Lane county, was judge; J. Edwin Keech, clerk; James Powers, bailiff, and Grant Williams, reporter; The following acted as jurors: Bruce Curry, David Husted, Rupert Bullivant, John Bryson, Calvin Horn and V. Herbert Brooks.

Doris Eterland, of Portland, has been visiting at the Delta Zeta house for the past week.

Members Will be Considered Soon For Phi Beta Kappa

A meeting of Phi Beta Kappa at which prospective members are to be considered will be held sometime during the last week of April, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dr. Dan E. Clark, secretary of the organization.

Between now and the time of the meeting the committee on membership will make a careful survey of the scholarship, intellectual interests and general activities of members of the senior class, Dr. Clark said. This material will be presented by the committee at the time of the meeting.

Seven members of the present senior class were elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa last fall and initiated on December 11, and 15 or 20 more probably will be elected in May, the secretary said.

1911 Law Class Will Have Reunion June 18

Plans for a reunion of the 1911 class of the Oregon Law School are being made by a group of Oregon attorneys. Members of the program committee are Clarence R. Hotchkiss, U. S. marshal for the district of Oregon and chairman of the committee, Wilbur Henderson, John C. Veatch, Frank Sever, Walter B. Gleason, and Frederick Dempsey. The reunion, to be held in Portland at the Multnomah hotel, June 18, is to mark the fifteenth anniversary of the law class.

The program will consist of an informal gathering of the graduates in the afternoon and a banquet in the evening. William G. Hale, dean of the Oregon Law School, was asked to make one of the principal addresses of the evening, but due to the fact that he will be teaching in the Stanford summer school, he will not be present at the class banquet.

Intra-Mural Track Set for Saturday at 10

The time of the intramural track meet has been changed to 10:00 o'clock Saturday morning, so that it will not conflict with the baseball game in the afternoon.

Today is the last date for turning in names of men who will compete, according to Spike Leslie, who has charge of the meet.

The usual intramural eligibility rules will be in force except that all men competing must have not less than three workouts in each of the three weeks immediately preceding the meet.

Twelve teams have been entered so far, and several more are expected.

Ralph D. Casey Reads Paper at Round Table

Professor Ralph D. Casey, of the school of journalism, read a paper on "Some Obstacles in the Way of the Creation of an Intelligent Public Opinion" at the annual Ladies' Night of the Round Table discussion group last night at the Osburn hotel. Professor George Turnbull, of the school of journalism, secretary of the organization, gave the address of welcome to the ladies.

The Round Table, which consists of one-half University instructors and one-half business and professional men of Eugene having university degrees, meets once a month for discussion. Once a year a meeting is held to which the women are invited.

Dr. James H. Gilbert, acting dean of the college and head of the economics department, president of the group, was chairman of the evening.

Freshman Baseball Squad Holds Practice

Preliminary practice for fresh baseball began yesterday afternoon on the new field. Coach Harry Ellinger and assistant coach, Don Park, were on deck to direct the practice of the 35 men who turned out. They began their work of getting into condition by batting and fielding practice.

The schedule of baseball games between the fresh and outside teams for this season is as follows: April 30, Rooks at Eugene; May 1, Rooks at Eugene; May 12, Rooks at Corvallis; May 21, Rooks at Eugene; May 28, Rooks at Corvallis; May 29, Rooks at Corvallis.

Mrs. E. A. Russell, of Portland, has been visiting Mrs. Grace Russell, house mother at the Delta Zeta house, for the past week-end. Jean Ross, sophomore, has withdrawn from school because of illness. She is a member of Delta Zeta.

Stetson Chairman of Psychology Session At Educational Meet

Professor F. L. Stetson, of the school of education, was chairman of the educational psychology session of the Inland Empire Education association conference in Spokane last week. Members of the association, which includes teachers from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, discussed different phases of psychology in its relation to teaching.

Talks on intelligence tests were presented by Prof. J. W. Barton of the University of Idaho, and Dr. August Dvorak, of the University of Washington. The discussion of personality study by Dr. Charles L. Harlan of the Lewiston normal school, was followed by the appointment of a committee to investigate personality study in the different schools. The report of this committee will be an important part of the next conference of the association, Professor Stetson said.

Oscar Richards Wins Harvard Scholarship

Oscar Richards, Oregon graduate who took his master's degree in zoology last June and is an instructor in that department this year, has recently received a scholarship at Harvard for the year 1927. Beginning in the fall he will work for his doctorate and will also assist in the laboratory of general physiology there.

Mr. Richards plans to spend this summer at Hopkins Marine Station of Stanford University, where he will divide his time between instructing in zoology and doing research work.
