

Co-eds Against Athletes Getting All Campus Jobs

Men Divided on Question of Partiality in Placing University Work

Curricula, Not Sports Big Influence on Preppers

BY THE EDITOR

The story books say that co-eds just dote on athletes; but if we judge from the returns on Emerald questionnaires, the story books found their material in other places than the University of Oregon. Here are the statistics:

The co-eds were asked, "Do you favor preference to athletes in distribution of campus jobs?" In answer 71 per cent of the ladies thundered "No," while the remaining 29 per cent admitted that athletes should be given the best of the bargain.

College Men More Generous

The college men are a bit more generous with their fellow athletes, 52 per cent believing that athletes should receive more consideration than the average man. There is a very strong tendency for fraternity folk to favor the athlete, while non-fraternity people are quite willing, speaking generally, that he should shift for himself.

The athletic reputation of the University has been almost a negligible factor in inducing students to enroll at Oregon. Less than three per cent of the freshman men listed athletics as an attraction, while of the women, only two freshman women, or less than one per cent of the first year co-eds considered the athletic reputation of the University in making their choice of alma mater. Of course these figures on the "athletic reputation" of the University are open to two interpretations: First, the University may not have any "athletic reputation" or secondly, it may be interpreted that prospective students are not interested in athletics before they reach college.

Many Attractions Named

The latter is probably the case, since approximately 35 per cent of the first year men reported that the scholastic reputation and courses offered were the main attractions. Other factors inducing the student to enroll were: They wanted to come to the state University; they have friends at the University; it was near home.

Even though athletics play a small part in inducing the prospective student to come to the University, once here the students have little grudge against intercollegiate and intra-mural and inter-organization athletics. Fifty-seven per cent of the students wish inter-collegiate athletics to receive the same emphasis as at present, and 26 per cent wish more emphasis on this type of athletics, making all told 83 per cent of the student body wishing as much or more emphasis on intercollegiate athletics than at present. Fourteen per cent wish less emphasis, and the remaining three per cent wish to see this kind of athletics abolished altogether. Fraternity membership, sex and class seem to have little effect on the general attitude.

Both men and women agree that inter-class and inter-organization athletics should be increased, 82 per cent of the former and 71 per cent of the latter being in favor of more intra-mural sports.

Athletics are given little blame for poor scholarship, only three or four per cent of blame being laid at the door of "too much athletics."

Compliment Given U. H. S. Curricula In Book by Hines

University high school has been complimented on its curricula, in the newer books on junior high schools. In "The Junior High School Curricula," by Harlan C. Hines, of the University of Oregon, is quoted, on the subject of the possibilities in the six-year high school for the small town. Professor Douglass is quoted from an article on educational administration and supervision.

Another compliment is given the campus high school, in a book called "The Junior High School," by William A. Smith. He speaks of Professor Douglass's plans of operation in the junior division at University high school, Eugene, Oregon, and believes that the school has a model curricula.

Professor Douglass, supervisor of the campus high school, announces that a revision of the courses of study is about to be published, as the supply of pamphlets is now exhausted.

Oregon, O. A. C. Co-eds to Hold First Play Day

Non-competitive Events to Show Wide Range; Picnic Planned

Play Day, the big athletic event being sponsored by W. A. A. between Oregon and O. A. C., is just a month away. Play Day is to be held for the first time this year, and, if successful, will no doubt become an annual event. It will take the place of the field day which the women sport followers have had each spring.

The innovation will be held on the Oregon campus this year, and O. A. C. will send a large number of her best athletes over to join in sports and a general play affair with our women. The entire schedule of events is to be strictly non-competitive and carried out to the letter, eliminating any feeling of hostility between the two institutions in the realm of women's sports. The teams will be composed of an equal number of O. A. C. and Oregon girls.

Plans for the day are being rapidly brought to a head, and as soon as each member of the general committee has perfected her share of the program, it will be made public. Practically every sport in which the Oregon women indulge will be included in the program for the day.

At the close of the day a big picnic supper will be spread on the lawn in front of the women's gymnasium. Stunts are being planned to use during the picnic hour, and there will be an exhibition of interpretative dancing on the campus lawn just after the supper.

Four Rounds House Tennis Are Scheduled For This Afternoon

The second round and part of the third round of the intra-mural tennis tournament will be played this afternoon, according to the schedule given out last evening. This includes four games for this afternoon at the usual 4 o'clock tennis hour.

The teams matched this afternoon are: Oregon Club versus Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Delta Phi versus Sigma Nu, Kappa Sigma versus Friendly hall and Chi Psi versus Phi Gamma Delta.

The matches of Monday's play were for the most part close and went into high scores. A.T.O. defeated Beta Theta Pi in two hard struggles with a score of 9-7, 9-7. Kappa Delta Phi won over Phi Delta Theta after a hard last game, with a score of 6-4 and 7-5. Sigma Nu defeated Sigma Alpha Epsilon in the easiest matches of the afternoon by the lopsided scores of 6-3 and 6-0. The scheduled Phi Gamma Delta-Chi Psi contest was postponed, and will be played today.

April Follies from Frolic Will Open Junior Vodvil Bill

A light, sparkling, gay scene on board a yacht, peopled with an unusually good-looking group of senior women, will be the setting for the first number on the program of the Junior Vodvil. It has been named the "April Follies," having been taken from the April Frolic. Clever acting, catchy songs and good chorus work were deciding factors in the choice of the stunt for the Vodvil program. The act won a storm of applause at the April Frolic and it is expected to go over big in the performance this week-end. Betty Alexander, DeLoris Pearson, Margaret Powers, Edna Murphy, Adrienne Hazard, Imogene Lewis and Betty Smith, dressed in sports outfits, present a very interesting chorus. Other girls in the act are Janet Wood, who does a Russian dance, and a chorus composed of Mary Jo Shelley, Irva Dale, Betty Lewis and Ernestine Troemel whose sailor hornpipe is particularly amusing.

For those who desire to get "hep" to all the latest campus gossip, an opportunity is awaiting them in the scandal-revealing line offered by the Knotz and Morgan team. These comedians have collected some of the most woe-wracking facts about the supposedly respectable faction that can be imagined and the disclosure of many of the mysterious things that have been happening on the campus lately promise to be anything but bromidic.

Those who have heard William Forbis sing have something of an idea of what he has to offer in "The Soul of Spain," a musical and dance diversion. Etha Clark and Milton George will support him in a Spanish dance. Special sets have been chosen for the proper presentation of his act and novel lighting effects are used to help give the correct atmosphere for the production.

Yesterday was the first day of the ticket sale and according to the turnout of houses and the amount netted from the ticket sale a large crowd is expected to attend.

There will be a story on the three remaining acts tomorrow, two having been written of in a previous paper.

Sprinklers, Rain Vie To Moisten Lawns

April showers may bring May flowers, but the University of Oregon gardeners believe in helping nature along. Did you see all the lawn sprays yesterday watering the grounds in competition with the rain?

At 8 o'clock, as on sunshiny mornings, the sprays were started. Through light showers and occasional heavier downpours they sprayed the lawns until 5 o'clock. Passing students laughed, thinking, perhaps, that University gardeners, too, become absent minded.

The gardeners, however, when called upon for an explanation, declared that the academic lawn was becoming dry too quickly, and that yesterday's rain was not sufficient to keep the grass green.

Y. W. Discussion to Be On Campus Democracy

The Freshman Commission of the Y.W.C.A. will meet Thursday afternoon at 4:30 in the Bungalow. The subject of discussion will be "Campus Democracy," led by Beatrice Mason.

Under the general title of "Campus Democracy," intellectual snobishness, social snobishness, and moral snobishness will be brought up. The point of personal difficulty in overcoming these conditions will be talked over, as well as what Oregon has done to overcome them, including the "Hello" and other democratic Oregon traditions.

Vocal solos will be given by Claire Whitton.

First Year Trackmen Practice Daily; Squad Personnel Is Mystery

With the first track meet of the season almost upon them, the freshman track aspirants are working out daily under the watchful eyes of Bill Hayward and Spike Leslie.

In order to concentrate his time on those who will make up the frosh squad, Spike will hold tryouts for the Babes next Saturday along with the varsity tryouts for the Seattle relays. Just who will make up the squad is a mystery to all, especially after the intramural track meet last Saturday when several "dark horses" appeared on the scene.

The big problem for the coaches next Saturday will be in the sprints. Kircher and Cheshire seem to be the only ones assured of their places. These two will be pressed hard by Ord, Hunter, Clark and McCutchen, who have been improving steadily. In the hurdles Foster, McGee and Crawford are showing up well. Crawford in the high jump, Stager in the discus and Sanderson in the shot put should not have much trouble in taking their share of first places. Little in the mile, McKittrick in the half mile and Standard in the quarter mile should easily cop their share of the points.

The first meet for the frosh will probably be May 1, on Hayward field against the Portland high schools, although this has not been definitely decided. The annual relay carnival against the O. A. C. Rooks will be run in Corvallis, May 15 and the Frosh-Rook dual meet will be held in Eugene, May 28. The date for the Frosh U. of W. frosh meet to be held in Seattle has not been definitely decided upon as yet.

W. F. G. Thacher to Attend Conference

W. F. G. Thacher, professor in the school of journalism, will attend the annual convention of the Pacific coast advertising clubs association at San Francisco, July 5-11, as a delegate of the Portland advertising club.

Mr. Thacher will participate in the department held by the teachers of advertising on the Pacific coast, and will lead the discussion on the subject of "The Place of Advertising Instruction in the University Program."

Parkway on Agate Street Is Improved

The University is putting a grass parkway down the center of Agate street between 14th and 15th streets. The unpaved strip was formerly rutted and weedy and the new grass plot will improve its appearance a great deal. The gardeners have planted the seed and are covering it with straw now, to protect it from excessive heat and to prevent the seeds from blowing away.
