

Funds Required For Doernbecher Child Hospital

Building on Marquam Hill Equipped to Treat Children's Ills

Portland Medical Students To Do Practice Work

The directors of the Doernbecher hospital of the University of Oregon Medical school have issued a call for $20,000 in gifts in order that the building may be ready for services immediately.

This building, which stands on Marquam hill near the Multnomah County hospital and the Medical school, was originally endowed in October, 1924, by Edward Doernbecher and his sister, Mrs. Ada Doernbecher Morse, who gave $200,000 for the erection of the building. Since then, generous friends and organizations have given large sums for the completion of the building and purchasing of equipment. One of the largest gifts was that of the Portland Rotary club, which gave $20,000.

Cost of Building $220,000
The capacity of this children's hospital is 82 beds, and it has the latest and best arrangements for caring for all kinds of children's ailments except contagious diseases. The work of the Doernbecher hospital does not conflict with that of the Shrine hospital since it will confine itself to the treatment of general diseases of children, and will avoid the charity cases of crippled and indigent children under the age of 14, which is the special province of the Shrine hospital.

The Doernbecher hospital is to be a teaching hospital, where medical students will have an opportunity to do practical work. The building has cost over $223,000. The equipment and furnishings will cost between $45,000 and $50,000.

Many individuals, families, and organizations from all over the state have made gifts in units of $500, which entitles each to name a bed.

Eugene People Give $1000

Some of the many contributions received or pledged are: Women's Federated clubs of Oregon, $20,000; Junior League girls of Portland, $5000 yearly; citizens of Eugene, under the leadership of Mrs. P. L. Campbell, $1000; citizens of Bend, under the leadership of Mrs. Ralph Hamilton, $500.

Last week, the American Legion gave $20,000 as first payment on the maintenance fund they pledged after the governor's veto of the hospital appropriation at the last session of the legislature. One family alone has given $5000 for the infants ward of ten beds. Friends in Dallas, Oregon, led by Mrs. A. B. Starbuck, sent gifts, and other communities have manifested their interest. Practically all of this has come in as voluntary offerings, since there has been no general campaign nor special appeal until now.

Nathan Stauss is the treasurer, and C. C. Colt the chairman of the Hospital Guild. Gifts may be sent to either of these men.

Moot Trials Regarded as Valuable Training for Law, Says Dean Hale

BY FRANCES CHERRY

"The system used in working out our moot trial programs takes the form of a scenario which is planned by the students participating and is later acted out," said Dean William G. Hale, of the law school, explaining the method employed in the Oregon law school to prepare the third year students for their active careers.

The whole aim is to give the men practice in dealing with the problems of law procedure with which they will come in contact later on. On this basis the system is founded and the results have been entirely satisfactory," he said. "Students from the school who have gone into law practice say they consider the trial practices a valuable part of their training. It is a case of learning by practice but in many schools, such practice in moot courts is not given."

In carrying out the plan, the action which is to lead to arrest and trial, takes place in the presence of persons who are not at all advised as to the meaning of what is going on, and they are later asked to serve as witnesses in the trial.

In this way reality is brought into the case, said the Dean. During examination the witnesses are asked to tell exactly what they saw and heard. "his method is to be contrasted with other systems used in some schools of law where a whole case is drafted and even the framed-up testimony is handed to the witnesses who testify such out."

Phi who have returned to take the initiatory work are: Vernon Bulllock, George Bukowski, and Fred Zeebuth, of Portland, Ore.; Reese Wingard, Sprague Wingard, Wade Kerr, and Delbert Hill of Eugene, Ore.; Adam Wilhelm, Monroe Ore.; Mack Weivoda, Lewiston, Ida.; Bert Surry, Wenatchee, Wash., and George Hill, Myrtle Point, Ore.

and dried facts," said Dean Hale. In keeping with the plan, use is made of the circuit court rooms of the Lane county court house. Judges or practicing lawyers preside so that the court setting and atmosphere is obtained.

Another important phase is the fact that after the trial the acting judge takes occasion to point out to the participants some of the mistakes they made and how they could have handled such situations in a better fashion.

"The following morning in class we go over the case step by step, discussing all the points involved," he stated.

The attorneys gather the testimony from the witnesses and prepare a trial brief, as they would do in practice. To prepare the case in advance, to anticipate special problems of procedure which will arise in the trial, to select a jury, to get experience in introducing evidence and making objections to improper evidence, are all part of the scheme. The attorneys also get their records in proper shape for appeal, although no actual appeal is made.

"This year we are using two students on each side of the case to act as attorneys instead of one as formerly. Due to the fact that the class is larger it was necessary to make this change. We believe, however, that it works better because it is helpful to the acting attorneys to discuss the case together and for one to watch the trend of the case while the other is actively participating."

Students Send Home Unwieldy Packages

Now that the end of the spring term is nearly here, students are beginning to send home packages that they cannot get in their trunks, according to the post master at the University post office. Numerous parcels are sent every day. The depot warns students that no package measuring over 84 inches can go by parcel post, but must be sent by express.

The Mathematics club has elected the following officers for next year: Helen Shinn, president; Hubert Yearian, vice-president; Edna English, secretary; Edmund Veazie, treasurer; Gladys McCormack, historian.

Sydney Debate Next on Program Of Varsity Team

Past Season Considered Success; J. K. Horner To Be Coach

The next varsity debate will be held with the University of Sydney, Australia, in October on this campus. The question for debate at this time will be prohibition, which will be debated under the new Oregon plan of debate. Definite arrangements beyond this first debate have not been made, and will not be completed until the arrival of the new debate coach Professor J. K. Horner of the University of Oklahoma. Tentative plans for debates have been made with the Universities of California, Leland Stanford, Southern California, Washington, Idaho, and Utah.

The past forensic season has been successful and has shown promising results for Oregon. Two debates with O. A. C. were held, Oregon winning one of these. The question debated was: "Resolved, That foreign government control in China should be immediately relinquished." A varsity debate was held with the Universities of Washington, Utah, and Idaho on the national air service.

The freshmen girls debated with the Eugene Bible University on the question of national reform of the marriage and divorce law. The freshmen men and Linfield College debated on the federal subsidy, as to whether it should be abolished. A varsity women's debate was held with the University of Washington and Reed College. Both were no-decision debates on the question of the present moral standards of youth.

This last forensic season Oregon took part in four oratory contests, and two state debates, one tri-state debate, between Oregon, Washington and Idaho, and one extemporaneous speaking contest held by the Pacific Coast League. Different persons have taken part in every contest, no one man was used more than once; except in the case of Herschel Brown, who took part in both oratory and debate contests.

Among the debaters who won honors this year are: men, Hugh Biggs, James Johnson, Dudley Clark, Owen Davis, Mark Taylor, Jack Hempstead, Max Robinson, Ralph Bailey, Beryl Ludington, Benoit McCroskey, Herschel Brown, and Jack McGuire. Women: Cecil McKereher, Margaret Blackaby, Frances Cherry, May Helliwell, and Mildred Whitcomb.
Herschel Brown and Elam Amstutz won a forensic "O" for three years of debate and oratory work.

Fellowships Offered By John S. Guggenheim

A limited number of fellowships, with a normal stipend not to exceed $2,500 for twelve months, are being offered for 1927 by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, established by the former United States Senator and Mrs. Simon Guggenheim as a memorial to a son who died April 26, 1922. These fellowships may cover research in any of the fine arts, including music.

The Foundation plans to maintain annually from 40 to 50 fellows, either men or women, who have qualified for acceptance. There is no age limit, but the committee of selection will require evidence that candidates have unusual capacity for productive scholarship and work of high merit.

Applications for fellowships must be made in writing by the candi-
