

A. S. U. O. Head Outlines Policies For Coming Year

Inauguration of President And Coach Expected To Add Impetus

Greater Oregon Committee To Bid for Freshmen

Hugh Biggs, president of the Associated Students of the University, Lowell Baker, its sub-chief, and Frances Morgan, its scribe, with a glance at the past, are looking towards the future school year with hopes and ambitions.

"We should anticipate a pleasant and profitable year beginning next September. Every opportunity will be offered to make the year a most successful one in point of scholastic achievement and extra curricula activity. By the inauguration of a new president and a new coaching staff both scholastic and athletic departments will no doubt receive a great forward impetus and can hardly fail to reflect credit on the institution," Mr. Biggs said.

"Through the work of Greater Oregon Committee this summer we are expecting a still bigger and better freshman class. While special emphasis will be laid on the quality of students rushed during the summer there will probably be an increase in student enrollment as well as an improved scholastic standard of incoming students. The University can expand and prosper only as it maintains a high standard of student achievement. It is with this point in view that the Greater Oregon committee will use a more selective process in rushing students during the summer," was Mr. Biggs' statement.

"With the continued cooperation and willing spirit of the student body the coming year cannot fail to be a marked success. The responsibility for a successful year rests, of course, on the student body as a whole—I am confident that it is well placed," was the optimistic statement of the new president gave the reporter. "Drop in again" were his parting words.

This year's intra-mural basketball tournament proved to be a hotly contested meet and many of the games were worth paying to see. The "fighting Phi Deltas" succeeded in defeating all comers.

Out of the dozen or so teams entered, three reached the semi-finals—the Oregon club, Betas, and Phi Deltas. These teams took part in a "round robin" and the Phi Deltas came out on top, with a .1000 average.

Three of the winners were picked on the all star team chosen by the physical education department: Gordon Ridings, Mervin Chastain, and Joe Bally.

Retiring A. S. U. O. Officers' Record Shows Good Work

Handicaps Fail to Offer Barrier to Success In Year's Activity

Success both from an administrative and a financial standpoint has marked the past year of the Associated Students of the University under the careful guidance of Walter Malcolm, retiring president of the student body. Paul Ager, vice-president, and DeLoris Pearson, secretary.

Many accomplishments of the A. S. U. O. administration appear worthy of note. A successful Greater Oregon campaign, carried on during the summer, brought to the University a freshman class that Dean John Straub pronounced early in the year, "bigger and better than ever before."

At the beginning of the school year, the position of the freshman presidency was made one of honor; heretofore an unheard-of situation.

With a debt of $19,000 practically cleared up, the past administration can boast one of the most successful financial seasons in A. S. U. O. history.

The first construction on the student building program was done this year when the bleachers on Hayward field were erected opposite the grand stand and the next step in the building program made when a bond issue of $150,000 was floated for the construction of the basketball pavilion which was started in May first of this year.

Student officials maintained and carried on regular student body activities, including forensics, music, athletics, Homecoming, lecture series, concert series, High School conference, and the general student body conduct was all accomplished under difficult situations.

Able assistants to Walter Malcolm have been Paul Ager, retiring vice-president; De-

Loris Pearson, retiring secretary; Kenneth Stephenson, retiring senior man on the executive council; Betty Rauch, retiring senior woman on the executive council; and Fred Martin, two years yell king, besides the remaining members of the student councils and members of committees throughout the year.

Call of Wild Comes to Teaching Staff; Will Scatter to Four Winds

The entire physical education staff, with the exception of two members who will take advanced study, will be engaged in teaching in summer sessions which range from New York to Southern California.

average needed to allow a girl to participate in competitive sports. This year, for the first time, there was a rather rigid requirement that each girl playing on teams must have a 4.00 average. Next year there will be an attempt made to have the average raised to a 3.5.

Dr. John C. Bovard, head of the department, will conduct classes in theories of physical education at the University of California, Southern Branch.

Harry Scott, head of the men's physical education department, will teach his fourth summer at Columbia University in New York. He will instruct in organization and administration of university physical education. He will also have charge of the recreative program for the summer session students.

Nash, San Francisco Printer, Honors Campus

John Henry Nash, San Francisco printer, will come to the campus each fall to help the typography class, under the direction of Robert C. Hall, head of the University Press, print one edition de lux at this time. The first book will be started at the beginning of the next fall term.

Mr. Nash offered, at the last newspaper conference held here, to furnish the paper and his time if the newspapermen and printers of Oregon would put up a fund for expenses. So far they have raised $657.50. Joel D. Thomasen, president of the Oregon State Newspapermen's conference, hopes to be able to raise a thousand or fifteen hundred dollars for the fund. The book for printing has not been selected yet, but it is hoped one can be found that will be distinctive of Oregon, well written and historical.

Mr. Nash is well known for his unusual work in the printing of fine books. During the last two state newspapermen's conferences held on the campus, he has brought a part of his library of famous old books, some of them among the earliest printed, to the campus for exhibition. He was given the degree of Doctor of Letters at the last commencement by the University for his work.

The Gift With a Soul

A graduation gift must embody the spirit of the occasion as well as being a treasure to be valued and by which to remember the giver. Nothing could be more suitable and better to meet these demands than a rare piece from the Aladdin Gift Shop, a piece of the soul and value of which lies in its art and craftsmanship.
