

Freshmen Make Good Scores in Physical Tests

John Anderson Breaks Previous Five-lap Swimming Record

Fourteen Men Complete Test with Eighty Points

One physical ability record was broken, and one of last year's marks bettered in the recent physical tests conducted by the men's department of physical education. John Anderson, freshman from Bridgeport, Connecticut, clipped seven seconds from the swimming record when he finished the five-lap swim in one minute and one second. The former record in this event was one minute and eight seconds, made last year by Art Larsen, sophomore candidate for the varsity swimming team this year. Anderson also leads in total number of points scored. His total is 104 points.

Of the 200 men who took the test, fourteen scored 80 points or more. Eugene Richmond, senior in physical education, made a total of 119 points when he was a freshman, and this mark has been neither equalled nor passed since.

Carl Forstram, Powder River, cleared the bar vault at 6 feet 8 inches, and bettered by 4 inches, last year's mark in this test. The record is held by Don Woodward, former editor of the Emerald, who pulled himself over 6 feet 10 inches in 1921.

Run is Fast

Gilbert Hermance, senior, still holds the record of 22.2 seconds in the two lap run, but Harold Kelly, Portland, pressed his mark uncomfortably close, when he crossed the line in 22.3 seconds. Dwight Kirchner, of last year's freshman track team, made the best time a year ago. He finished in 23 flat.

No records were broken in the rope climb, but five men completed this in 10 seconds, which is very good time, according to officials handling the tests. The five are Patrick Maginnis, Millard Schmeer, William Fowler, Carl Forstram, and Paul Knepp. The record, 8.4 seconds, was made by Alvin Hills in 1923.

Sparrow Holds Record

Ralph Sparrow, former star pole vaulter and Olympic performer, holds the all-time record for the high jump. His leap was recorded at 6 feet. G. H. Strickland holds the high mark this year, with 5 feet 2 inches. Bill Crawford jumped 5 feet 4 inches in 1925.

All men who passed the test are allowed to select their own branch of physical activity, and may take it at their own time.

Following are those who scored 80 points or more: John Anderson, 104; Webb Hayes, 101; Harold Fuller, 93; Millard Schmeer, 91; Patrick Maginnis, 88; Carl Forstram, 88; D. H. McLeod, 88; William Sievers, 85; Elwood Enke, 84; Harvey Pollicar, 83; Harold Kelly, 81; Mercele Lowell, 81; Kirby Kittoe, 80; Ronald Murray, 80.

Next Test October 16.

Another physical ability test, for those who have not yet taken it, and for those who desire to better their present scores, is scheduled for 10 o'clock Saturday, October 16, according to Perry Davis, physical education instructor, who has charge of the work.

South Seas An Eden Of Balmy Days, Fascinating People, Says Mrs. Beck

Music Professor Tells of Summer Cruise Amid Fiji Islands; Finds Natives Intelligent

Radiant sunshine, beautiful nights under the tropic moon and stars, calm seas, balmy air and the graciousness of the natives, are features of the South Sea Islands which make a tour of this scenic paradise the most fascinating and wonderful in the world, is the opinion of Anne Landsbury Beck, head of public school music, who spent two and one-half months cruising in southern waters this summer.

She sailed from San Francisco, June 16, on the Steamer Makura, with a party of twelve, including her brother, J. J. Landsbury, dean of the school of music, Frances Pierce, '26, of the school of music, and several others from Eugene.

"The journey was the most delightful one I have ever taken," Mrs. Beck said, "and it was completely restful, absorbing, enjoyable and full of romance."

After an eleven-day voyage the travelers landed at Tahiti and from there proceeded to Rarotonga, one of the Cook Islands, administered by New Zealand under the British flag.

The voyagers left the ship a half-mile out from land as it could not enter the harbor and reached the island in whale boats. Delicious wild oranges and bananas grow on plantations here but they are not shipped to the United States, due to a fruit disease.

New Zealand was sighted after seven days of sailing and the party remained there for two weeks. This island is noted for its beautiful lakes, rivers and pastoral country. The natives are very handsome persons, intellectual and industrious.

Auckland is the largest city of this land and from here the travelers embarked from Suva, capital of the Fijis, on the Tofua, which was manned by a native crew. They cruised for two weeks in the Tongan and Samoan groups.

"This was the most unique part of the trip and we saw every sort of native, including a princess," Mrs. Beck said.

She witnessed a football game between the Fijians and Samoans in which the latter were victorious. The players were all barefooted.

"The ocean was especially calm and the rising and setting of the sun was particularly beautiful because we had a complete view of the horizon," she continued. One of the interesting features is the Southern Cross which jewels the sky and is only visible in the southern hemisphere.

There is more color in the southern sky and waters than in temperate countries, Mrs. Beck reports, and there is a rest and fascination in which the rush and hurry of the world is forgotten even while working. The ocean breeze and the tropical verdure relieve the heat, making the climate very enjoyable.

The natives are charming and hospitable; the men have handsome physiques and the women are very good looking. They are gracious to strangers and many of them speak English in soft, even tones. They have a natural singing ability.

The islands retain their native habits, though owned by England, and the inhabitants live in villages with chiefs to rule them. The people still wear the lava lava, a light garment, which was formerly made from wood but is now made of flax. They make tapa cloth from wood and also beautiful mats.

The Hawaiian Islands were visited on the last lap of the journey. "They do not offer the same type of interest the other groups do as the people have become Americanized," she said regretfully. The ocean was rougher and it was much colder on the homeward stretch.

"The trip was a realization of all I expected of the South Seas and was thoroughly fascinating and lovely," Mrs. Beck declared in conclusion.
