

Memorial Park To Be Planted At University

Complete Plans of Work Will Be Presented by George Otten

President Campbell First To Conceive Idea

The first step in a comprehensive plan for the beautification of the University of Oregon is now being undertaken with the preparation of the ground on the northwest corner of the campus for the planting of a memorial park. President and Mrs. P. L. Campbell first conceived the idea of an arboretum, and after President Campbell's death, on the suggestion of Professor E. E. DeCou, head of the department of mathematics, the idea was carried over into a memorial park commemorative of his lifelong love of the beauty of the outdoors.

President and Mrs. Campbell first conceived the idea of beautifying the campus during the city tree planting campaign of three years ago by the Eugene Federation of Women's clubs, under the direction of Professor DeCou. President Campbell, a graduate of Harvard, had seen near the campus there a special planting of trees and shrubs called an Arboretum, and he proposed to provide something similar here. Shortly before the president's death, Mrs. Campbell announced that she and her friends would be glad to give many trees and shrubs for such a park.

The northwest corner of the campus, west of the drive that is to lead south from the proposed memorial gateway on Eleventh avenue, and north of the present walk running from Deady hall to Twelfth avenue, was finally selected as the site for the park. The choice was made after Professor DeCou had talked the matter over with a number of persons interested in such a development, including W. B. Wilcox, professor architecture, and Ellis F. Lawrence, dean of the school of architecture.

George Otten, '11, who majored in mathematics and specialized in landscape engineering while in the University, later taking graduate work at Columbia university, was the man selected to do the work. He is one of the best known landscape engineers and architects in the northwest, and is now practicing that profession in Portland. During his senior year here he made plans for the beautification of the hill east of the University on which are built the Campbell Church, Washburn, Jewett, and McMorran homes, later returning to superintend the landscaping of these places.

Mr. Otten was consulted, and he

Cold Shoulder Given Hard Cash at Depot

A PURSE without an owner is an unusual thing, so there must be someone on the campus who owns the purse which was turned into the lost and found department at the University depot the first week of school. Since the purse contained a ring and money of no mean amount the suggestion is if the owner is a little short of change she had better rush down, name the amount and procure the purse.

It is a question how some students keep from getting drenched by this Eugene rain with about eight umbrellas of various colors reposing at the depot. Why not see if the one you left in the Campa Shoppe last week is there? No wonder several students have to borrow fountain pens and ever-sharps from the kind soul who sits next to them in class with so many of these articles off duty at the department.

agreed to donate a complete plan for the landscaping of the University grounds and a detailed plan for the park. After more than two months work the completed plans were presented for approval to the University Building committee consisting of Fred Fisk, Mrs. Irene Gerlinger, and Colonel W. S. Gilbert.

The plans were accepted with thanks by the Board of Regents, and a small appropriation was made to enable the Building committee to start the work. The work of preparing the ground for planting was started late last spring, and plowing and harrowing has gone on intermittently since then. Planting may be postponed until next spring, according to Professor DeCou.

It is hoped that as time and funds permit the beauty of the present campus may be merged into a unified whole, and following Mr. Otten's plans, may become one of the notable beauty spots of the state.

Library Possesses Valuable Reviews

The library is now the possessor of the bound copies of the Westminster Review down to date with the exception of volumes numbered 151 to 168.

The first number in the collection was printed in 1824, and the last volume, (Vol. 181, No. 1) is dated January 1914. The Review was discontinued at this time. These volumes are very rare, and the library hopes to make the set complete in the future.

New Art Librarian Takes Stuart's Place

Mrs. Mabel Houck, new librarian of the art library and secretary of the department, has come to the Oregon campus this fall from Jefferson high school where she had acted as assistant librarian. Her position in the art department was formerly carried on by Mrs. Reginald Stuart, who graduated with the class of '26. Mrs. Houck intends to enter the University as a major in pre-library work winter term and she desires to carry as many electives in art as possible.

F. L. Stetson to Speak To Educational Group

F. L. Stetson, professor in the School of Education, has accepted an invitation to be the principle speaker at a meeting of the Northern Division of the Oklahoma Educational association, to be held at Blackwell, Oklahoma, October 28, 29, and 30. The meeting is comparable to that held in this state by the Education association.

Superintendent E. D. Price, who was a member of the Oregon summer school staff in 1925, will also be a speaker on the program, along with the Oklahoma state superintendent of public instruction.

Mr. Stetson will return from his trip east by the southern route, coming through California.

Moroni Olsen Players Coming October 20

The Moroni Olsen players, who have appeared in Eugene for three seasons, will present two plays, "Dear Brutus," by Sir James M. Barrie, and "Outward Bound," by Sutton Vane, October 20 and January 26, respectively, at the Heilig theater.

"Dear Brutus" is a typical Barrie fantasy—his own version of Shakespeare's illusion, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." "Outward Bound," which presents a dramatic philosophy of death, has been acclaimed by many metropolitan critics as one of the most thrilling and original plays of the year.

The plays will be conducted under the auspices of the American Association of University Women and the proceeds will be turned into a scholarship fund for a woman from the state of Oregon.
