

Pep Rally Fans Oregon's Spirit For Game Today

Blazing 'O' on Skinner's Butte Throws Thrill In Night Parade

Beer Suits, Pajamas, Lend Color to Howling Mob

"O"—A burning, fighting, Oregon "O!"

Three thousand Oregon students shouting of Oregon fight; the fightingest Oregon rally in years, all to back the Oregon football team which today plays Stanford. That's what it was all about last night.

From the time the Pajamarino formed at the Sigma Chi corner until the last words of the last speaker, Captain McEwan, "I hope you have a good time at the game tomorrow. I think the team can win that game," was Oregon fighting spirit.

Down Eleventh avenue, down Willamette to the Armory went the Oregon line led by the football team riding in cars furnished by the Pettyjohn Motor Company, the Eugene American Legion Drum and Bugle corps, with grads, then Yell King Seabrook, then the R. O. T. C. in their new lemon-yellow and green military-cut uniforms, Order of the "O" men, then the pajama-clad Oregon rooters. Flares, bells, and lots of noise features.

"O" "Boins" Just as the parade got on Willamette street, on top of Skinner's butte appeared an Oregon "O", first a dotted line, then a solid burning, flaming symbol of "Oregon fight" that seared into the minds of all who saw it.

Many famous Oregon men featured in the rally in the armory led by Del Oberteuffer.

"You will see tomorrow, the greatest of the great Oregon fighting teams," said Bill Hayward, veteran Oregon trainer and coach.

"Fight! Fight! Fight! is the one message I bring. That is the one thing worth while, the one big thing. Who cares if we win or lose as long as we fight!" were the closing words of "Beauty" Robison, former Oregon yell king.

Once Oregon Won "Two years ago, when Oregon beat Washington, many suits were ruined when the victorious team was carried from the field. Wear your old clothes tomorrow," advised Bob Mantz, last year's football captain and end coach for the team this year.

"I never saw an Oregon team quit fighting," said Fred Steiwer, an Oregon grad and guard on the team of 1906, in a pep talk in which he analyzed Oregon spirit from pioneer days on down as one of "fight."

"Don't go out there to enjoy the game, alone, go out there to fight with the team. There must be no cynical indifference, we must unite and so form an irresistible force that will win. I believe in the football team. I believe we will win," was the message from President Arnold Bennett Hall.

"Cap" Hopped Up "Win or lose I am proud to be the coach of this Oregon team, right here," said Captain John J. McEwan, pointing to the Oregon squad seated on the platform. "We want touchdowns and a lot of 'em. I think the team can win tomorrow. I've seen Stanford play and they have a real good team, a team that will be hard to beat. I hope you all enjoy the game, I think we will win that game," the captain said.

Del Oberteuffer, who has led many Oregon rallies, and is known to all alums and students, caused every person in the armory, which was jammed to capacity, to stand and show their spirit by exercising their vocal cords. He gave pep talks between the other talks and introduced the speakers.

The flaming "O" on top of the butte reminded students to keep up the fighting spirit, as they left the armory.

Old Grads Come From Far Places To Celebrate Annual Homecoming

Registration of graduates and ex-students of the University began in earnest yesterday afternoon. Many former students arrived in the afternoon and evening and still more are expected today for the game and alumni festivities tonight.

Benjamin B. Beekman, '84, was one of the first to register at the Homecoming booth in Johnson hall. He has been an attorney at law for many years and now is retired and living in Portland.

Vernon Vawter, '13, and his wife Aletha Emerick Vawter, ex-'14, have registered from Medford. Mr. Vawter has been a regent of the University since 1919.

Mrs. Elma L. Eakin, '83, registered from Astoria. She has just returned from Europe where she left her daughter, Eleanor Eakin, '25, studying at the Sorbonne in Paris.

Thomas L. Williams, '03, internal revenue officer of the state, registered Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Veazie, 1890, are in Eugene for the week-end. Mr. Veazie is an attorney in Portland.

Dr. Frank Sciaefe, '17, came up from San Pedro, California, to attend Homecoming this year. He is a physician and surgeon in that city.

Katharine C. Read, '26, came all the way from Denver where she is employed as a social service worker with the Denver bureau of charities.

Frank A. Dudley, '15, registered Friday. He is now in Portland where he is a credit man for Lang and Company.

Jacob F. Hill, '80, editor of the Times-Tribune at Davenport, Washington, came down at the first of the week and has attended the Semi-Centennial celebration.

Pauline Bondurant, '25, has been helping at Homecoming headquarters. She is now living in Portland, where she is campaign secretary for the Juvenile Hospital for Girls which is being built there under the auspices of the Pacific Protective society. Before entering this work she was with the finance department of the Republican Central committee.

Anna DeWitt, '26, registered Friday. She is attending business college in Portland this year.

Andrew Karpenstein, '24, has come back for Homecoming. He has been employed in the accounting department of the Puget Sound Power and Light company since his graduation.

Bob Gardner, president of his class of '26, is back on the campus for the week-end. Since graduation he has been working at the Crown Willamette paper mills, Camas, Washington.

Onofre H. Hipe, '26, is on the campus this week-end. He is attending the Oregon Institute of Technology in Portland this year.

Dorothy Dixon, '25, who for some time was an assistant in the University library, is back for Homecoming. She is librarian at Pacific University this year.

Frank H. Loggan, '26, former manager of the Emerald and now advertising manager of the Bend Bulletin, is in Eugene to attend Homecoming.

Edwin M. Fraser, '24, drove up from Crescent City, California, for the big game. Fraser is now editor of the Del Norte Triplicate at Crescent City.

Mary Conn, '25, arrived late Friday night to attend the Homecoming festivities. She is working in the advertising department of the Oregonian at present and while at school was a member of the Emerald staff and also of Phi Beta Kappa.

Helen Chambreau, '25, is back for Homecoming.

Katherine Kaye, '24, who is now teaching in the Coquille high school, is here for the week-end.

Phil Brogan, ex-'23, drove over from Bend where he is a reporter on the Bend Bulletin. He was managing editor of the Emerald under Kenneth Youel.

Helen Cantine, '26, came up from Merrill where she is teaching in the high school.

Isabel Hollister, '24, arrived Friday from Pasadena, California, to attend the game and the Homecoming festivities.

Colorful Uniforms Given to Bandsmen

The University band was issued its new uniforms yesterday. The costumes have green jackets and yellow pants, Sam Brown belts and green and yellow caps to match. They somewhat resemble those worn by the American Legion drum corps.

The sixty suits were given out yesterday afternoon, this being the total number of uniforms. Colonel W. S. Sinclair, head of the military department, has provided a room in the barracks for the uniforms when not in use. The band will assemble at Hayward field tomorrow before the Oregon-Stanford game to lead the procession of the Order of the "O" which is made up of those who have received a letter in athletics.
