Physical Education Plan Corrective Measures For Defects

Harry A. Scott, though busy with his duties as director of the men's physical education department, has been making successful use of his spare time as an author. In the October issue of The Nation's Health, a monthly magazine devoted to community, industrial and institutional health problems, an article of Mr. Scott's was published on "Supervised Exercise Corrects Defects of University Men."

Mr. Scott's article presents facts that have been proved by the local physical education department. "Although controlled physical exercise has been used for centuries in correction of bodily defects, and is today an integral part of most university programs of physical education, it is doubtful if the type of work taught has met the corrective needs of university men." The article points out that a university corrective program must deal with individuals and not with all as a group.

The writing activities of Mr. Scott have not been limited to this one article. In last February issue of The High School, an article was published, "The Place of Physical Education in the High School Curriculum." This deals with the immediate needs and increasing importance of physical education in preparatory schools.

The February issue of The Nation's Health contained another article by Scott on "Physical Education for All Is Aim of College." In this article the entire physical education system of the University of Oregon is explained. The American Review of Reviews deemed this article of such note that a full page discussion was given to it in the April issue.

At present Mr. Scott is working on his next article, which is entitled "The Correlation Between Occupation and Physical Activity Among Adults."

Cross-country Victors Will Be Given Turkeys

"When do we eat?" has been the war-cry around the campus for so long that the authorities in charge of donut sport have gotten soft-hearted and added an event to the athletic program, whereby, the hungry ones may eat.

Turkeys—real live turkeys—in sufficient numbers to gladden at least the first five winners in cross-country run have been put up as a prize for the runners to compete for.

November 6 is the date set for the big event and it is rumored that fraternities are grooming every dark horse possible in an effort to corral the birds and dine accordingly.

All men who have not turned out yet are to report to Bill Hayward at 4 o'clock Monday. Aspirants will have one week to train for the two-mile jaunt.

Three Successful in Try-out for Orchestral Society Membership

Three girls, Dorothy Carter, Bernita Lamson, and Joan Patterson, were elected to membership in Orchestral Society, University dancing society. The tryouts were held Monday and Tuesday nights before judges, and on Wednesday night aspirants danced before the members of the organization and were voted on. It is necessary to make 200 points out of a possible 280 points to be eligible for membership.

Ten vacancies were left from last year, and the small number which was chosen this term leaves several places to be filled at the next tryouts, which will be held the first of the winter term, according to Miss L. L. Stupp, instructor of dancing. Any girl who has had two terms of dancing at the University is eligible.

Margaret Bunn and Emily Williams made over the 200 necessary points, but were ineligible because they had not had two terms of dancing.

For girls who made 180 points in the test, 50 points toward a Women's Athletic Association sweater were given. Roberta Wilcox and Eleanor Poorman qualified for this.

Orchestra will hold an open night some time this term, and give exhibitions of its work.

Southern California Junks Honor System

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, Oct. 26—(PIP)—The honor system has been declared a failure by several of the prominent faculty members and at present student and faculty committees are at work on this problem. The main flaw in the system has been the difficulty in getting students to report violations of the code. The faculty, on the other hand, does not greatly relish the idea of going to police work.

One suggestion was that students should use notebooks and textbooks as much as they see fit during examinations, but to give them questions designed to test their ability to apply, use, and reason out facts learned during the course within a specified amount of time.

Dear Anne:
This has been a Red Letter week for me, and I don't mean maybe. Started it off with a golden gliet shampoo at Hastings (Minor Bldg.) then had a loose marcel at the same place. As usual was awfully pleased with the results and apparently was not the only one for all my old swains have started sparking again.

Went motoring up the McKenzie Tues. and it was just lovely. Wore a snug little hat from Letitia Abrams (bal. Densmore-Leonard). It is a dream of a hat as all of hers are. Comfortable and appropriate—real close fitting, keeps the hair out of the eyes and is of a soft tan felt that harmonizes beautifully with everything.

Arrived back just in time for dinner so popped in at the Anchorage. It was so cozy and warm there and the food was, as the French put it, divine. Real home cooked meals are, indeed, a rare luxury to the average collegiate so it is no wonder the Anchorage is so heavily patronized.

Wed. received an ample check from darling dad. Gave vent to my exuberance of feeling by several wise investments. First at the Aladdin Gift Ware Shop did excavate a stunning jewelry box of eastern luster work. Quite an addition to any dressing table, I should say.

Next to interpret the season's vogue for smart sport togs did succumb to a jaunty 2-piece jersey displayed by Densmore-Leonard. These clever everyday outfits are in sweater and skirt styles and are now popularly accepted as the newest contribution to the college girl's wardrobe.

On the way home still in an amiable mood, dropped in at McKillop's and to treat the gang, bought a goodly supply of their well known delicious candies and so have now an A-1 rating around here. Exceptional quality and variety seems to be the lived up to motto of this candy home.

Drifting and dreaming up the Mill Race is the prevalent pastime now. Of course, hats are taboo in this case so an attractive short bob is the important element for suitability. The best of the aforementioned are to be had at the Co-ed Barber Shop, just next to the Co-op. This place needs no recommendation for it has universally been taken up as the shop for individual hair cuts and trims.

Thurs. had a slight cold and was rather blue at being confined but, Anne dear, about noon an exquisite corsage from Raup's Floral Shop appeared. It was from Ted—he is just as thoughtful to send it as Raup's are to make up such alluring bouquets, anyway it so pepped me up that I ventured out in the afternoon.

Received a note from Kay stating she had just purchased a sweater with hose to match at Berg's in Portland and advised me to take a look at his agency here. So Nell and I investigated and as consequence the former has a new and slick sweater and skirt and as for me, being almost broke I sit back sighing with envy. Ruth Cyrus handles this line of stock at 241 E. 12 St. (1 1/2 blks. west Delta Zeta house).

So you are going in for benefit work, well, so are we. Had Elliott and Underwood's fix up the dandiest box of groceries on board. Surely will be a Lady Luck arrival for the needy recipients. Bet after filling up with all those substantial delicacies they will all be confirmed optimists.

Loving you always,
CAROL
