

Gridgraph to Be Shown At McDonald Saturday

Simultaneously with the kick-off at the O. A. C.-Oregon football game at Corvallis Saturday, the lights on the gridgraph at the McDonald theater will flash the play-by-play progress of the game, is the announcement made by Ed Crowley, who is in charge of the affair.

For this game the board will be placed on the stage of the McDonald theater, which will accommodate the larger crowds desiring to see the returns of the annual state grid classic, said Crowley.

Doors of the theater will open at one o'clock Saturday and the returns will begin to be shown at 1:30. In addition to the gridgraph, the complete theater program for the day will be shown, including news reels, comedy and Rod La Roque in "Gigolo."

The show is being sponsored by the Order of the "O" and the admittance charge will be fifty cents.

Theaters

McDonald: Second day: Rod Le-Rocque in "Gigolo," a swiftly-moving romance of the Argentinians, and of Paris, sophisticated playground of love, adapted from the popular novel by Edna Ferber, with Jobyna Ralston and Louise Dresser supporting the featured star; Sharky Moore and the "Merry-Macks" in an entirely new act of syncopated melodies and mirth, twice tonight at 7:20-9:40; Koko comedy; Webfoot Weekly featuring scenes of the California-O. A. C. game; Frank Alexander musically accompanying the picture on the organ.

Rex: First day: Bebe Daniels in "The Campus Flirt," a sprightly comedy of college love and laughter, with the inimitable Bebe in the height of her captivating glory, supported by her recently acquired fiance, Charlie Paddock, the "world's fastest human," and a great cast of favorites; also, another adventure with "Buffalo Bill," the great American adventure stories; International news events; Clifton Emmel at the organ.

Coming—Milton Sills in "Puppets," with Gertrude Olmstead; Zane Grey's "Forlorn River," with Jack Holt, "The Unknown Cavalier," with Ken Maynard.

Heilig: First day: Something startling new in modern western thrillers containing the versatile Tim McCoy, millionaire cowboy, in "War Paint." This is a spectacle of the west when inhabited with Indians.

room, a figure most curiously unlike anyone else."

He is the leader in an occult society there. An instance of his singular personality is evidenced by an occurrence happening at this society as it was told by Miss Young.

Explains Nature Spirits

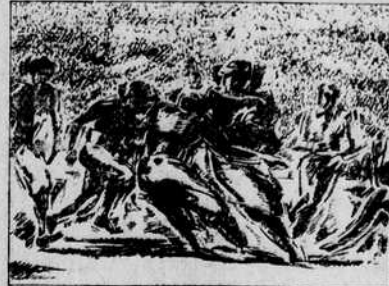

"Genies are nature spirits," she explained. "They are wild storm spirits who can do powerful things and if they make friends with humans they get the worst of it because they haven't the advantage of a legal education."

A picture of a genie was brought into the room and one night Yeats stood in front of it wondering what would constitute proper ceremonies to be used in freeing or imprisoning a genie. He went to bed that night still contemplating, and the next night again stood before the picture and thought how cruel it was to imprison the poor genie. So, with fitting ceremony and ritual, he broke the seal of the picture—and nothing happened! He went to bed. The next day the irate members of the magical society came to see him and wanted to know how the genie had escaped, saying that it had visited each one of them in turn and had caused them great annoyance. Yeats suggested that they interview the genie and send him to his own country—which they did.

At the opening of the assembly, the women's glee club led by Eugene Carr, sang two selections, "Deep River," and "Lure of the Gypsy Trail." Father E. V. O'Hara gave the invocation.
